Lewis Calls For Week of 'Stabilizing Inaction'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis yesterday "authorized" all members of his United Mine Workers in the United States to quit work for a week beginning Monday.

In a letter to officers and members of UMW locals, Lewis termed the layoff "a brief stabilizing period of inaction during which a cessation of all mining will occur." There was no doubt here that his "authorization" would be accepted as an order throughout his powerful union.

The reason for this move, Lewis wrote, was that "magnificent production efforts" of miners so far this year had resulted in overproduction, with consequent economic instability among the miners.

"This period of inaction," he explained, "will emphasize a lack of general stability in the industry and the dangers which will accrue therefrom if current harmful practices are not remedied.

"It will contribute constructively to the abatement of current economic demoralization; it will not adversely affect the public interests; it will help preserve property values in the industry; and it will help preserve the living standards of the Mineworkers, their dependents and the communities which depend upon the Mineworkers' income."

Yesterday morning Lewis announced the U. S. Steel Corporation had agreed to begin contract negotiations for its coal mines June 13 at Philadelphia. That is the date set for the start of the "Stabilizing Period of Inaction."

Fruitless negotiations with the Southern Coal Producers Association at Bluefield, W. Va., were recessed yesterday, also until Monday, when the UMW rejected new producers' offers as "grotesque, medieval and a shame." The talks at Bluefield have been under way since June 3.

One coal operator in the Pittsburgh area told the Associated

Carpenter Strike Deadlocks; They Feel It's 'Now or Never'

Workers Say Income Has Advanced Less Than Average Outgo

AFL Unit Disapproves Builders' Plan to Tie Wages to Price Index

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Some 5000 AFL carpenters are on strike, and the issue seems to be simple enough. The carpenters want an increase of 10 cents an hour on their $2.40 wage rate.

The carpenters have been on strike for eight days. Those who have failed to find other work will require more than half a year working steadily, to make up for their loss of wages if they get the full increase. Should the walkout last two weeks, it will take the carpenters a full year of regular work to recoup their loss of income.

Why, then, are the carpenters putting up such a battle for 10 cents an hour, or less than 5 per cent of their present pay scale?

From the carpenters' point of view there are solid trade union reasons for a strike.

Wages for the carpenters—as for all the 19 crafts in the construction industry—have been on the upgrade for a decade.

In this area, the carpenters drew $1.62½ cents an hour in 1940 as against $2.40 today, today, a rise of over 67 per cent. The carpenters argue, however, that the cost of living, as measured by the Consumers' Price Index, has risen dur-

See BUILD, Page 14, Column 5.

The Master Builders Association yesterday proposed to end the eight-day-old carpenters' strike with a new wage contract which would tie pay increases to rises in the cost of living.

The builders offered to continue the old $2.40 an hour rate through 1949, and to reopen wage negotiations in 1950 if the Consumers' Index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed an increase of five points during the year.

If the cost of living increase were less than five points, or if the cost of living declined, then the present wage rates would continue through 1950.

This proposal was turned down by the District Carpenters Council, representing 5000 AFL carpenters, during a four-hour mediation session yesterday. The carpenters also spurned an offer by the builders' negotiating team to "recommend" arbitration to the builders if the carpenters were willing to accept this means of ending the walkout.

At the end of the long session, Federal Mediator James Holden said that for the time being the stalemate, which has paralyzed

Acheson Acts To Let Big 4 Settle Tieup

By Wes Gallagher

Paris, June 8 (AP).—United States Secretary of State Acheson tonight demanded the Big Four powers set a five-day deadline for their Berlin commanders to try to settle the city's trade and communication tieup.

He proposed that the commanders report by June 13. Presumably, if they have not been able to reach an agreement the Foreign Ministers then would tackle the problem.

Acheson advanced the idea at the end of another fruitless session today—the fifteenth of the Paris Conference—and it will be considered by the Foreign Ministers Thursday.

East-West Trade Lags

Unable to agree on a long-term plan for Germany, it thus appears the Foreign Ministers are turning to efforts to bring at least a temporary armistice to East-West contention in the four-power city.

This in reality would mean a diplomatic step backward. The four powers were supposed to have agreed in New York talks last month to end the Berlin blockade and resume East-West German trade.

Actually, however, the New York agreement has been only partly carried out. Berlin still is under a semiblockade because of a rail strike by non-Communist railway workers in Berlin. Only a dribble of East-West trade has been resumed.

American military government chiefs in Berlin say the blockade continues chiefly because the Soviet-controlled Railway Administration refuses to recognize the non-Communist union (UGO). The strike started over the strikers' demand for wages in Westmarks, worth about four times as much as Eastmarks.

The Railway Administration has made an offer to the Communist Free German Trade Union to pay West Berlin workers 60 per cent of their wages in Westmarks, but the strikers refused it.

"Not Proceeding Well"

Western negotiators in Berlin have reported the Russians cooperative in talks on East-West trade. But the West has taken the position that no trade agreement will be signed as long as the strike lasts. The Western attitude is that the strike has to be settled to assure movement of trade under a paper agreement

Acheson, in introducing his proposal, achieved something of a reputation for understatement when he said he understood the present negotiations in Berlin "are not proceeding well."

An indication of the conference's declining tempo was the departure of British Foreign Secretary Bevin for England to attend the British Labor Party's annual conference. He will return Thursday. Lord Henderson, Undersecretary of State for German Affairs, sat in for him today.

Got Secrets From 5, Says Chambers

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 8.—In concluding his testimony against Alger Hiss, Whittaker Chambers today said he bore him no "grudge," but felt it his "Christian duty" to "expose" him as a member of a Communist espionage ring.

Chambers, who declares he received secret documents from Hiss in 1938 when Hiss was a high State Department official, said his decision to accuse his former "friend" was "the last act of a turmoil that has been going on for a decade."

At 4:20 p. m. today, Chambers stepped off the witness stand in Federal court after more than five days' testimony as the star prosecution witness in the involved melodramatic trial for perjury of the 44-year-old Hiss.

He was outwardly unruffled by the grueling cross-examination in which he stated he lied on numerous occasions in order to "shield" Hiss from "further injury"—until, Chambers says, he was forced by circumstances to disclose all his charges against Hiss.

May Be Recalled

Chambers, self-described courier for the spy ring until he renounced communism in 1938 to begin an "honest . . . God-fearing" life that carried him to a $30,000-a-year post as senior editor of Time magazine, may be recalled to the courtroom later for brief testimony.

Immediately after he left the witness stand, the prosecution began calling up the first of a number of technical witnesses intended to support Chambers' accusations, which Hiss denies completely. The perjury charges rest on Hiss' denial that he saw Chambers after January 1, 1947, or gave him documents in early 1938.

Chambers told the court today that Hiss and Henry Julian Wadleigh—whom he has similarly accused earlier—were among a total of five Federal employes who gave him secret Government documents, which he turned over to a Russian agent.

He did not identify the other three persons whom he accuses.

Wadleigh is a former economist for the State Department's trade agreements division. On constitutional grounds, he refused to discuss the charges before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, where Chambers launched his Communist allegations last August.

Met in 1935, He Says

He met Wadleigh in Washington in 1935, Chambers said today, and was introduced to him by David Carpenter, "also known as Zimmerman." At that time, he said, he believed Wadleigh was with the Agriculture Department.

"Did you receive any State Department documents from Mr. Wadleigh?" asked prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy.

"I did," replied Chambers, saying he began receiving such documents in 1937, when Wadleigh was in the State Department. He said Wadleigh, or himself, would give them to Carpenter.

Chambers said he received no documents from Wadleigh after the latter went on a trip to Turkey in 1938 to negotiate a trade agreement.

"Without telling me any names at all," said Murphy, "did you have sources of supply in Govern-

Screen Notables Call Report 'Absurd, Unconstitutional'

Edward G. Robinson — Dorothy Parker — Fredric March
Whose names figure in the Coplon trial

By The Associated Press

Stage and screen figures last night assailed as "absurd" and "unconstitutional" — or they just plain laughed at a secret FBI report that called them Communist Party members.

The report, read yesterday at the trial of Judith Coplon, alleged that noted actors, writers and directors in the film colony were Communists.

Fredric March, stage and screen star, said that the report, which quoted a confidential informant as saying March was "CP member in 1947," was "the most absurd thing I've ever heard of."

March, in Bryn Mawr, Pa., said his remark goes for my wife, too." Mrs. March, and the actress Florence Eldridge, was named in the report as a supporter of Communist-front activities.

Asked if he ever had attended a Communist meeting, March said, "Good God, no."

Writer Dorothy Parker said in Hollywood, "This makes me very sick. . . . I regret to say I know no Russians, but I wish I did. Maybe it would help understanding if we all knew some Russians."

Miss Parker, the FBI report alleged, was a Communist Party member.

"Overthrow our Government?" the writer said with a laugh. "I want to overthrow prejudice and injustice."

She said, "I have no desire to sell any secrets, because I don't know any."

The FBI report, which came from several unidentified informants, was read into the record

Confidential Data to FBI Terms Stars Communists

Fredric March Had Tears in His Eyes On 'Daily Worker' Criticism, It Says

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Movie star Fredric March was identified yesterday by an FBI confidential informant as a member of the Communist Party in 1947.

In an FBI Investigative Report read at the Judith Coplon spy trial in District Court, the same informant reported on July 18, 1947, he was "satisfied" the following were also Communist Party members:

Edward G. Robinson, Paul Robeson, Dorothy Parker, Donald Ogden Stuart, Ruth McKinney, Alfred Maltz, Alvah Bessie, Dalton Trumbo, Millen Brand and Michael Blankfort. They are actors or writers,

The spellings are as given in a transcript of the FBI document.

Decision "Herculean," Says Judge

The seven-page, single-spaced FBI report on March and his wife, Florence Eldridge March, was read to the jury and a jammed courtroom after Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., had pleaded with Judge Albert L. Reeves not to place the top-secret FBI report "before the world" lest the Nation's security be imperiled.

The decision facing him, the judge said, was "herculean." "Herculean . . . herculean," he repeated, almost as if to himself.

But if the reading of "relevant" documents "imperils the Government, the Government ought not to be here," Judge Reeves at last ruled dramatically, and Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer, as he had demanded, proceeded with the reading of the report on Fredric March.

This report is the document on which is based one of the 34 "data slips" which the Government contends were found in Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested March 4 in New York. The report itself, however, was not in the purse. She is being tried on a charge of stealing Government documents.

Report Dated January 1, 1949

The data slip itself is extremely brief. "Stuart Legg — possible Russian espionage agent," it says, then below that, "Frink, NY, 1/14/49, RE: Frederic March."

The investigative report is dated January 13, 1949, and goes in part:

"On April 25, 1947, Confidential Informant ND 402 advised that Fredric March was a member of the Communist Party and has been cooperative for many years. He stated that on one occasion a few years ago March was criticized in the Daily Worker for his acting. March was upset about this and through someone, possibly V. J. Jerome, March sent word to the Daily Worker that he did not mind criticism generally, but he did not like criticism when it came from those who represented the world in which he believed. According to ND 402, the individual who conveyed March's message advised that the subject had tears in his eyes when he sent the message."

The same informant reported March was "active in the Communist infiltration of the motion picture industry."

Others Named but Not Accused

"On July 18, 1947," the report states, "Confidential Informant ND 402 advised SAS William J. McCarthy and Daniel F. Garde that Lionel Berman, head of the cultural committee of the Communist Party, has been successful in using well-known Hollywood personalities to further Communist Party aims, Fredric March being one of the persons who came under his influence. The informant further advised that he was satisfied the subject, who is active in the Communist infiltration of the motion picture industry, is a Communist Party member along with Edgar G. Robinson, Paul Robeson, Dorothy Parker, Donald Ogden Stuart, Ruth McKinney, Alfred Maltz, Alvah Bessie, Dalton Trumbo, Millen Brand and Michael Blankfort."

Mentioned in the document, but not accused of being Communists, are Sylvia Sidney, Paul Muni, Allen Campbell, Melvyn Douglas, John Howard Lawson and John Garfield.

These—along with March, Florence Eldridge, Donald Ogden Stu-

Experts Study Jobless Trend, Find Idle Pay Cushions Slump

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

What does the trend in unemployment, which jumped another unexpected 273,000 between April and May, indicate?

That question has got employment experts studying charts, tables and reports from all parts of the country. Those studies lead the experts naturally to a collateral question: What has the unemployment insurance program done towards cushioning the Nation's economy against the present increasing idleness?

The rise in the number of the Nation's jobless began last November. Since then it has continued steadily, although its rapidity fell off slightly in March and April reports.

The March and April figures gave the Government's labor experts a touch of optimism, which was dashed by Tuesday's report. The latest decline was passed off with the pessimistic comment that it was "contrary to seasonal expectations."

Largest Number Since '42

The May 14 total unemployed of 3,289,000 was the largest number of jobless in the United States since March, 1942—more than seven years ago.

At the offices of the Bureau of Employment Security, officials rattle off the names of cities that are especially hard hit by unemployment. These follow a pattern. Cities dependent upon single industries are those in worst shape, particularly those industries that have caught up with consumer demand.

These statistics month after month show that the District of Columbia is unique among all the cities in its steady, stable level of employment. From month to month the figures for Washington vary only fractionally.

The first to be named usually is Lawrence, Mass. Following immediately are Providence, Boston, Baltimore, Muskegon, Mich., and then always "of course, New York City."

Pacific Coast Cities Hit

These officials then add that "all the Pacific Coast cities, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, are among the tops in unemployment."

The New England cities depend upon the textile and shoe industries that were among the first businesses to feel the postwar slump. Baltimore and New York are clothing centers, and Muske-

Ives Suggests Congress Act In Big Strikes

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A new substitute for injunction or plant seizure as a weapon against national emergency strikes was introduced yesterday in the Senate's splintering labor debate.

The latest "compromise" proposal came from Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) as Administration advocates of outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act traded punches in debate with Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

"Mandate" Is Suggested

Ives, who kept aloof from earlier bipartisan compromise moves, proposed the President be "mandated" to put any national emergency work stoppage directly up to Congress for action on the spot.

John L. Lewis had just called a week's "stabilizing period of inaction" among mine workers when Ives introduced his "lone wolf" amendment.

Senators clustered in the cloakroom, discussing the UMW announcement. Administration Senators frankly viewed it as a "bad break" in their uphill fight to repeal the Taft-Hartley law. Labor legislation drawn in the heat of a national strike is nearly always more drastic.

Ives explained his "put it up to Congress" amendment this way:

"It simply means that, in the case of a national emergency of the type to which I refer, whenever there may be a work stoppage after such emergency shall have been proclaimed, the President is mandated to bring the matter to the attention of Congress, if in session, or if Congress does not happen to be in session at that time, to convene it immediately for that purpose."

Ives said he approved everything but the seizure and injunction provisions of the Taft substitute. He

Hickenlooper Accuses AEC On Shipment of Isotopes

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Atomic Energy Commission was charged yesterday with exceeding its Congressionally conferred authority by shipping radioactive isotopes to the Norwegian Military Establishment.

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), who has called for the resignation of AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal, termed the shipment "the opening wedge" in the exercise of discretion by the commission "to the potential imperilment of our national security."

Hickenlooper pointed out that the Norwegian military establishment asked for the isotope of iron for research in the rate of diffusion of iron in steel at high temperatures. He pointed out that such research is very useful in developing steel to stand the heat of sleeves for a jet engine and also in rocket ships.

The question, Hickenlooper said, was not whether it was desirable for Norway, an Atlantic Pact country, to have such friendly assistance from the United States, but whether in shipping such isotopes without congressional authority, the commission had violated the act.

Two main lines of discussion followed—first as to whether or not shipment of isotopes could be considered information on atomic energy with another nation for "industrial purposes," and second whether it was the intent of Congress to ban such information on radio-isotopes for industrial purposes.

Lilienthal maintained the shipments disclosed no information that could be classified as information on atomic energy.

He was supported by Dr. Henry DeWold Smyth, author of the 20 Educators Declare Reds Unfit to Teach

By Elsie Carper

Members of the Communist Party are "unfit" to serve as teachers and should be barred from the profession, 20 of the Nation's foremost educators said yesterday.

The commission includes Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harvard President James B. Conant and National Education Association President Mabel Studebaker.

The statement was contained in a 54-page report prepared by the educators on "American Education and International Tensions."

Boy, 2, 'Drowned' In Tub Is Revived By Rescue Squad

Quick thinking and fast action by Penn-Daw Rescue Squad members were credited with saving the life of a 2-year-old child yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Whidden — Clayton, Jr.

Clayton Donald Whidden, jr., after he had become submerged in a basement laundry tub at his home, 1437 Washington ave., Huntington, Va.

State police quoted Dr. John Sims of the Alexandria Hospital staff as saying that the application of artificial respiration "undoubtedly saved the child's life."

According to police, Clayton had fallen down the front steps and had been placed in the tub by his mother, Mrs. Clayton D. Whidden, sr., to be scrubbed. Cries of a younger child upstairs summoned the mother from the basement and when she returned Clayton was submerged in 18 inches of water.

The child was not breathing when the rescue squad arrived, a member said, but under the pulmotor he began to breath faintly. Dr. Sims was hurriedly summoned from the hospital when squadmen were fearful of removing the pulmotor for the trip to the hospital.

After further treatment by Dr. Sims, Clayton was taken to Alexandria Hospital.

House Group Votes to End Leoffler's Golf Concession

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

A long step was taken yesterday to end the 28-year reign of Severine G. Leoffler, sr., District public golf course concession king.

The House Public Lands Subcommittee which started its investigation of his operations early in March voted unanimously to report favorably a bill to take control of the courses from the Interior Department.

If it becomes law, it will put Leoffler out of business. And the District Recreation Board will take over supervision of the public links.

The bill originally was introduced by Representative Rivers (D., S. C.) March 15. That was the day after Assistant Secretary of Interior C Girard Davidson announced his intention of renewing Leoffler's contract despite an earlier demand by Rivers for a complete investigation.

Rivers said yesterday he was gratified by the subcommittee's action. "I've said again and again that the Interior Department forfeited its right to run the golf courses because of its gross negligence," he added. "Let's have someone take over who will show some real interest."

Then the South Carolinian promptly introduced a new bill that specifically calls for the transfer of the golf courses from the Interior Department to the Recreation Board.

His original bill didn't. But Representative Redden (D., N. C.), chairman, who announced the subcommittee's decision, explained that it had the same effect.

Until final action is taken by Congress and the bill becomes law, there will be no change in the current operation of the golf courses. Leoffler will continue under the supervision of the Interior Department on the contingent basis he's been on since the expiration of his five-year contract, December 31.

Members of the Recreation Board were happy enough over the subcommittee's action. They've contended all along that Congress intended to have them supervise public golf when it enacted the Recreation Act in 1942.

Final proceedings yesterday morning were enlivened by heated exchanges between Representative Poulson (R., Calif.) and Leoffler and Oscar J. Bernstein, his accountant.

At Tuesday's session, GAO Auditor Bertram B. Barr testified that Leoffler owes the Government $119,515. Yesterday, James B. Robinson, assistant chief of concessions for National Park Service, said his audit took exception to $31,135 charged as operating ex-

Tribune Paid Patterson Estate $478,086 in 5-Month Period

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

The estate of Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, late publisher of the Times-Herald, netted $478,086 in a five-month period from stocks, bonds and dividends from the Chicago Tribune.

This was revealed in District Court yesterday as the Riggs National Bank, collectors for the estate, filed a final accounting.

The complex 45-page document showed the personal property of Mrs. Patterson, in the hands of the collectors, including the Times-Herald, to be valued at $3,489,664. The newspaper itself was valued at $2,132,986 after liabilities.

Not included in the figures was the value of Mrs. Patterson's Chicago Tribune holdings which are large enough to have given her estate monthly dividend payments of $40,875 each plus a special dividend of $204,375 from August 30, 1948, to January 17, 1949. The holdings have not yet been evaluated it was said.

Also excluded was the bulk of Mrs. Patterson's extensive real-estate holdings since rent was not involved and the properties have already been willed. The entire estate has been estimated to be worth upward of 17 million dollars.

Disbursement items filed by the collectors ranged from $11 paid to a Henry Harmon, day laborer at the Dower House in Prince Georges County, to $625,000 paid out for Federal income tax for the period August 1, 1947 to July 24, 1948.

Receipts of the Times-Herald for a 6½-month period ended last January 31 totaled $4,995,680.43, the collectors reported.

A net operating profit of $312,571.02 was shown for the same period.

Military Pay Bill Advances, But Officers' Raises Are Cut

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A revised military pay bill was unanimously approved by a House Armed Services Subcommittee yesterday after the subcommittee trimmed another slice off the increase proposed for officers.

The measure comes before the full House Armed Services Committee this morning for a vote, which is expected to mean indorsement. Sponsors hope to have it back on the House floor next week.

One change was approved by the Kilday Subcommittee yesterday in the revised bill made public last Saturday. It sets the subsistence allowance for all officers at $42 instead of $45 a month. This will save $6,800,000 a year, committeemen said.

The amendment was one of several presented yesterday by Representative Case (R., S. Dak.) to cut down the cost of raising military pay. As the bill stands, it would cost 273 million dollars in 1950, 346 million in 1951, 316 million in 1952 and 302 million thereafter.

These increases in the Federal budget do not include expected "huge" savings in sharply curtailing officer physical retirement benefits, under the bill. Pentagon officials say these economies will be large and may offset the pay raises but have been as yet unable to accurately estimate them.

Case also proposed the following economy amendments which were rejected by the Kilday Subcommittee:

1. Reduce all monthly pay to the even dollar, except for recruits

PXs Agree to Drop Some Luxury Items

By The Associated Press

The armed forces have agreed to cut out sales of expensive jewelry and other luxury items at post exchanges and ship's service stores, a congressional committee was informed yesterday.

John Koehler, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, told a House Armed Services subcommittee that representatives of these services signed the agreement last Friday. The subcommittee has been investigating military retailing operations for several weeks.

Among other things, Koehler said, the services have agreed to start collecting the 20 per cent Federal excise tax on luxuries at least by August 1. Military retail stores in this country already have been ordered to repay the Government for electricity and other utilities used by the stores, Koehler said.

"Mr. Secretary, it looks like we are beginning to get somewhere," commented Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), Armed Services Committee chairman.

A subcommittee headed by Representative Philbin (D., Mass.) is studying all military retailing. It has heard repeated complaints from local merchants, and from officials of national retail associations, that service stores compete unfairly with civilian stores because they do not pay Federal or local taxes, and that many of the stores sell to civilians.

Koehler said he has visited many ship's service stores in the past three months.

"Wherever I have found expensive watches for sale," he said, "I have come right back and dressed down the admiral responsbile."

The new agreement, he explained, limits "special order" sales to a top of $300 an item. The Army has had such a limit for years, but the Navy had none.

Under the "special order" arrangement persons entitled to buy at post exchanges or ship's service stores can have those stores order items not carried in stock. Records given the committee show purchase of furniture, television sets, household appliances such as electric refrigerators, and many other expensive items. These are obtained at only a little over wholesale prices.

Koehler told the subcommittee that post exchanges and ship's services stores turned over $15,800,000 from profits in 1948 to welfare activities of the various services.

"The days of a Spartan-life Army and Navy are a thing of the past," he remarked. "We have to make available to a man coming into uniform the things he got in civilian life."

The services now have a single list of items that can be sold over the counter, Koehler said. The top money limit is $85 for a radio.

The new list includes all items on the old lists used by the services, but the money limits are cut down. There is now a $50 top on watches.

The limits apply only to the cost of the item to the post exchange or ships service store, however. A $50 watch will sell for $62.50, Koehler said, after Federal taxes and a markup to cover new costs are added.

Koehler said the services are working on similar agreements to cover commissaries, which are the service grocery stores, and on stores operated to sell uniforms.

Among witnesses yesterday was George Falkenstein, president of the Greater Washington Retail Jewelers Association, who called for discontinuing of the special order for post exchanges and ship's stores, which he said "allows the purchase of almost any item desired in the higher cost brackets."

To Study Strategy

House Votes Inquiry Into B-36 Deals

The House yesterday approved a full-dress investigation of the Air Force's B-36 bomber procurement program and strategic air power policy.

By unanimous vote, the House authorized its Armed Services Committee to go ahead with the inquiry at a cost of $50,000. The investigation was prompted by rumors and reports, laid before the House by Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.), linking top defense officials with Consolidated-Vultee, maker of the B-36.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington, mentioned by Van Zandt, have denied his "innuendos" and welcomed the inquiry.

Besides the alleged "political influence" in B-36 orders, the committee is expected to consider whether the Air Force was wise in selecting the giant B-36 bomber as its chief striking weapon and whether it is vulnerable to present-day jet fighters.

Meanwhile, congressional sources reported that the USAF's next year bomber procurement program includes only two planes—the piston-engined B-36 and Boeing's Jet B-47. Total orders, it was said, will range from 166 to 200, in addition to spares, under the budgeted $1,426,000,000 for aircraft buying.

Guard Backs Gray as New Head of Army

National Guard chiefs said last night they would support Gordon Gray's confirmation as Secretary of the Army, having received "assurances" that Pentagon officials have abandoned plans to federalize the Guard.

This statement is expected to pave the way for quick confirmation of the 40-year-old Undersecretary to the top Army post. Indorsement by the Senate Armed Services Committee is looked for this morning.

Only possible obstacle in the way of confirmation had been opposition for the politically potent National Guard. Gray headed a top level National Guard-Reserve policy board last year, which recommended that the Federal Government take over control of the Guard from the States. Guard leaders violently opposed the plan.

Speaking for the National Guard Association, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord said last night:

"We keenly desire to support Secretary Johnson in the great task before him. Although we definitely disagreed with Mr. Gray on the federalization of the National Guard, we have certain assurances that neither Mr. Johnson nor Mr. Gray will again raise that question. We are therefore supporting the confirmation of Mr. Gray in the hope that under his guidance, the National Guard will continue to expand and improve."

and privates. This shaving of pennies would save $3,600,000 a year, Case said.

2. Cut the pay of recruits from $75 to $70 a month for the first four months instead of increasing it to $80, at a saving of $8,500,000.

3. Alternatively, reduce recruits' pay to $50 a month for the first four months and save $42,500,000 annually.

Representative Sutton (D., Tenn.), who led the fight against the pay bill in the House, yesterday insisted his chief aim was to increase the pay of junior officers and enlisted men even higher than proposed. He suggested applying the money saved when family allowances end in 1952 to further raises for those groups.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Army personnel executive, told reporters that a survey of the House vote recommitting the pay bill belied statements that "former G. I.'s beat the bill." Of 82 World War II veterans who voted, 41 former officers voted to recommit and 35 against, while 16 former enlisted men split on the tally.

"As the recommittal vote was about two to one, we got better support from the veterans than nonveterans," he declared. "The vote turned on other issues—economy for one. We were glad to see the veterans weren't mad at us."

Air Force Quits Plan for Center At Philadelphia

By The Associated Press

The Air Force announced yesterday it has abandoned plans to establish a reserve training center at Philadelphia's southwest airport.

The announcement said that aside from hangars and runways it had found facilities at the port inadequate for the purpose contemplated.

The Air Force said it will study the possibility of establishing the center somewhere else.

Services Ordered to Limit Their Censorship to Security

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson yesterday ordered Army, Navy and Air Force public information officers to stop censoring speeches and articles for anything other than security.

This newest directive apparently was aimed at dissipating the widespread opinion that military officers have been "gagged" from expressing opinions on current defense issues.

It makes it unnecessary hereafter for officers to submit any written material for "policy and propriety" review before publication. The order reads:

"The responsibility of public information officers, including the office of public information of the National Military Establishment, for the review of manuscripts or other material submitted in accordance with Army, Navy and Air Force regulations is limited to deletion of matter which is classified for security reasons.

"It is directed that all Army, Navy and Air Force regulations, directives, letters or memoranda which are in conflict be changed to conform with these instructions."

The order supplements an action last week by William Frye, defense information director. It cancels an April directive, which was interpreted as requiring all members of the armed forces, regular, retired and reserves, to submit articles for policy and propriety, as well as security review.

Army and Air Force regulations for some years have required policy and propriety precensorship. Navy regulations have made officers personally responsible for the propriety of their remarks with disciplinary action possible for offenders. Yesterday's order applies the Navy standard to all services.

Four Russians Rout 200 Berlin Strikers

Berlin (Thursday), June 9 (AP).—Four angry Russian officers drove out a mob of railway strikers who had smashed their way into the headquarters of the Russian-controlled railway in the American sector of Berlin last night.

The officers beat at the leaders of the mob of 200 strikers with their bare hands and shouted "Raus, raus (Out, out)."

Driven by the Russians to the ground floor of the five-story building, the strikers were directed by newly arrived West Berlin police to leave.

"The United States military government does not want you here," the strikers were told.

Rabbit Punch Used

One Soviet lieutenant pulled a small black pistol from his holster. But instead of using it he struck a striker on the back of the neck with his left fist. The German fell down a flight of stairs.

The Russians arrived at the building a little more than an hour after the strikers had stormed it. The strike leader, a youth who wore four pistols strapped to his body, had disarmed two Soviet-sector German police guards.

The officers marched tight-lipped to the upper floors where the mob was combing darkened rooms for the Soviet-appointed railway officials believed hiding there.

When the Russians saw the strikers tearing down pictures of Prime Minister Stalin and Lenin from the walls their anger exploded and they struck out at all Germans within reach.

Russian Zone Property

The mob fell back in disorder.

By sanction of the Western Allies the strikers from the strongly anti-Communist UCO (independent labor organization) have shared occupation of the railyards with the western Berlin police since the fourth day of the 19-day rail strike.

But the railway headquarters in the American sector is recognized by the four occupation powers as Russian zone property. It had not been a center of strike disturbances until last night.

Barrier to Understanding

A high American official said last night Berlin's railway strike was all that stood in the way of East-West trade and transport agreements.

With that settled, he said, the economic agreements could be concluded "within 12 hours."

A United States proposal in Paris that the Berlin commandants try to settle trade and communications matters and report to the Foreign Ministers by June 13, was regarded as feasible.

The walkout of 14,000 anti-Communist strikers was the big hitch.

The workers struck for payment in Westmarks, recognition of their anti-Communist union (UCO) and job security.

Talks Critical On Indonesia

Batavia, Java, June 8 (U.P.).—Talks between Dutch and Indonesian representatives were reported to have reached a "critical stage" today over the question of whether a cease-fire order should precede restoration of the Indonesian Republic at Jogjakarta.

United Nations sources admitted privately that the Indonesian government may not begin to function again at Jogjakarta this month, although mid-June had been the target date.

The Dutch are understood to contend that under the terms of a provisional accord reached May 7, the republic was reduced to the status of a state within the United States of Indonesia, therefore no longer has authority to maintain an army. Thus, if a cease-fire were signed before the restoration, it would clarify the status of guerillas as "armed republicans."

The Indonesians claim they cannot sign a cease-fire until the republic is restored, and the provisional accord is ratified by the Republican Parliament.

Cold War Hits Labor Parley

Geneva, Switzerland, June 8 (U.P.).—Czechoslovakia and Poland injected the East-West cold war into the thirtysecond annual conference of the International Labor Organization almost as soon as it opened here today.

The two countries introduced resolutions aimed at giving equal pay to workers in colonies, increasing the number of worker delegates on ILO agencies, and indirectly blaming United States export controls for rising unemployment.

Delegates opened the conference by electing Sir Guildhaume Myrddin-Evans, British government representative, as president.

Delegates from 43 countries, including every eastern European member except Hungary, were represented. A delegation of Japanese observers attended for the first time since the war.

Margaret Plans U. S. Visit in Fall

London, June 8 (AP). — Fun-loving Princess Margaret Rose plans to visit the United States for several weeks this fall.

It's to be a private trip, but she will play a good-will role.

Sources close to Buckingham Palace said today the princess, younger daughter of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, will go to Washington and New York and "Probably will travel outside" those cities.

It was 1 0years ago today, June 8, 1939, that her parents arrived in Washington on a brief tour of the United States and Canada.

Princess Margaret, who will be 19 August 21, is trying to see for herself what makes the world tick. She returned only last weekend from a month's trip to Italy, Switzerland and France.

One of Princess Margaret's concerns is her press reception.

During her tour of Italy, newsmen and photographers swarmed after her nearly every minute. Some London newspapers finally printed editorials urging that newsmen "let her alone."

A source close to the royal family said "the palace hopes, of course, that there will be no such performance by the newspapers in America."

Kuomintang Outlawed by Chinese Reds

Shanghai, June 8 (U.P.).—The Communist military control commission today outlawed all political parties affiliated with the Kuomintang, the Nationalist party which had ruled China for 20 years.

The order specifically mentioned the Democratic Socialists, the Young China Party and the San Min Chu I Youth Corps. Their offices were ordered closed and their assets and files frozen.

The Communists at the same time disbanded all Kuomintang secret service organizations and associated groups and directed their personnel to "report to the Peoples Government to atone for their past errors."

U. S. Ambassador's Return Here Forecast

Nanking, June 8 (AP).—Diplomatic sources say Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart will return to the United States by the end of June. The purpose is to consult with the State Department.

Stuart wants to return to China if and when the United States recognizes the Communist regime, these sources said. The Reds are not expected to set up a government eligible for recognition before fall.

The American Embassy today said Stuart will visit Shanghai Saturday to confer with Consul General John M. Cabot, American businessmen, missionaries and educators.

is a movement to adjourn the Council for at least three months. Red Misinterpretation Charged

Today's four-and-a-half-hour session was marked by a two-and-a-half-hour speech by Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky, who used the same terms he has used in the past four meetings attacking Western proposals for long-range political settlements in Berlin.

Western sources said it was an argument on legal grounds and in several places interpreted Western statements in a manner quite opposite to the way they were intended.

At one point he sought to defend continuation of veto rights, which broke down four-power machinery in Germany. He said it was not the veto method but the "worsening of the political atmosphere" that was at fault.

French Foreign Minister Schuman said Vishinsky's remarks today, coupled with his proposals, seemed to mean the Big Four would assume a "permanent trusteeship" over Germany.

Hoffman Asks A 'Little ERP' For Koreans

The State Department and the Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday asked Congress to help Korea against the threats of economic disaster and Communist penetration.

Paul G. Hoffman, head of the ECA, suggested a three-year "little Marshall Plan" for the new Republic of Korea. He said such a program would be only slightly more costly than direct relief and "it simply makes no sense to adopt a relief program."

Earlier, Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb testified that without United States aid the new nation would "suffer a rapid and inevitable collapse and under such circumstances only the Communists would win." The republic occupies the southern half of Korea, the northern half of which has been under Russian occupation since the war.

Both officials appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee to urge approval of President Truman's appeal for 150 million dollars for southern Korea beginning July 1.

After Webb testified, the State Department announced that all United States troops now in the area would be withdrawn "soon" and that only an "augmented military advisory group" would remain.

The department made public a note to Dr. Syngman Rhee, president of the Korean Republic, formally setting up the advisory mission, which heretofore has been established there temporarily.

The note said Brig. Gen. W. L. Roberts would head the mission, which will train south Korean forces.

Bolivia Settles Big Mine Strike

La Paz, Bolivia, June 8 (U.P.).—Representatives of government and labor today settled the nationwide mine strike, ending the labor crisis which threatened last week to plunge the country into civil war.

The agreement called on 27,000 miners to return to their jobs today.

The government agreed to limit military control of the mines, and to repatriate exiled labor leaders for formal trial, but refused to grant the strikers' request for regular pay during the period of the walkout.

Court Says Uranium Isn't War Material

Frankfurt, Germany, June 8 (AP).—A United States Military Government court acquitted nine Germans today on the ground that uranium in its natural state is not necessarily a war material.

Uranium is used in making atomic bombs. Scientists are striving to harness its power for peacetime uses.

The nine Germans had been accused of possessing, transporting and attempting to sell a 2300-gram block (about 81 avoirdupois ounces) of uranium in violation of military government law prohibiting traffic in war materials.

Uranium was used by German scientists in wartime nuclear fission experiments at Kaiser Wilselm Institute in Wuerttemberg and the block was one of many thrown into a stream when Germany surrendered.

The accused Germans admitted attempting to sell it to a United States Army agent.

Judge Fred G. Cohn of Raleigh, N. C., ruled that "if the element uranium is deemed to be a war material, there must be legislation" specifically to that effect. He said that if uranium in its raw state were a war material because the processed element may be used in an atom bomb, then the same would be true of all other raw materials that could be used for making weapons.

British Reject Poles' Demand

London, June 8 (U.P.).—Britain today rejected a Polish demand that Britain pay damages to Gerhart Eisler and punish the men who dragged the fugitive Communist from the Polish steamer Batory off Southampton May 14.

A British note delivered to the Polish Foreign Office in Warsaw rejected the charges paragraph by paragraph and accused Poland of using the case for "political propaganda."

The note also complained that Poland's formal protest over the Eisler case had insinuated that the United States exercised undue influence over British actions.

"This is not true," the British note said.

The note added that Eisler's arrest was "in strict accordance with international law" and that British police used only "the minimum degree of force necessary to overcome his resistance."

Missing Tenant's Property Seized By Tax Collector

Personal property of Charles B. Davison, missing tenant of an apartment at 4607 Connecticut ave. nw., was seized by Collector of Taxes Guy W. Parson yesterday, and will be sold at auction June 24.

Pearson said Davison owed almost $900 in delinquent personal property taxes for 1946 to 1949. He directed the Adam A. Weschler & Son auction firm to place the furnishings on sale June 24 at their establishment, 905 E st. nw., at 1 p. m.

Police have made an unsuccessful preliminary search for Davison, but have not launched a broader investigation because no close relative has reported him missing, according to Samuel J. Kidd, chief of the city's delinquent tax section.

House Group Moves to Cite Red Organizer

NYHT News Service

Contempt of Congress papers were ordered drawn yesterday by the House Un-American Activities Committee against a Communist Party organizer linked with charges of wartime atomic-bomb espionage at the radiation laboratory of the University of California.

The committee voted to take the first step toward initiating contempt proceedings against Steve Nelson, of Pittsburgh, after he repeatedly dodged questions yesterday by refusing to answer on the ground his replies might tend to incriminate him. The committee last year charged Nelson with helping to obtain secret atomic data from a mysterious "Scientist X."

Must Be Approved

Chairman John S. Wood (D., Ga.), said the full committee yesterday authorized preparation of the contempt papers. Once drawn they must be approved again by the committee and sent to the Speaker for presentation to the House for action.

If approved by the House the contempt citation probably would be referred to the United States district attorney's office here for consideration by a Federal grand jury.

Nelson admitted to the committee yesterday he was a member of the Communist Party, but did an abrupt about-face in the afternoon when he refused to answer a question on his party membership.

His refusals to answer ranged from a question on whether he wrote stories appearing under the name of "Steve Nelson" in The Daily Worker to those to which an affirmative answer would have tended to link him with the committee's previous findings on West Coast atomic espionage.

His attorney, Emanuel H. Bloch, of New York City, said that 11 Communist leaders are on trial in New York because of their activities with the party. He said that in view of the New York trial an admission of active participation in the Community Party would be self-incriminating.

Talks to Reporters Later

Time after time Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) admonished Nelson with the assertion that his refusal to answer many of the questions left an implication of guilt.

Among questions Nelson refused to answer were a series involving a passport application he later told reporters he made under the name of Joseph Fleischinger. The application was granted and Nelson told reporters he used it to go to Spain to fight in the civil war with Loyalist forces.

The name of Fleischinger cropped up also in the hearings at the morning session when Nelson admitted he entered the United States with his mother and two sisters in 1920 as a son of his uncle, Joseph Fleischinger, from Yugoslavia.

Across Capitol Hill, a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee also laid the groundwork today for citation of two witnesses for contempt of Congress because they refused to answer whether they held membership in the Communist Party.

AEC Accused on Isotope Shipment to Norway

famous Smyth report on atomic energy, who was recently confirmed as an AEC commissioner.

AEC Commissioner Lewis B. Strauss, who was outvoted four to one, several times by his fellow commissioners on this issue, supported Hickenlooper.

Strauss said that he believed his fellow commissioners "overstepped the law" in approving the export of radioactive isotopes for industrial research.

The United Press from Oslo, Norway, last night quoted Robert Major, director of the Norwegian Technical Research Council, as stating that it was not correct that the radioactive isotopes of iron were sent for military research.

Major told a United Press reporter that Norway has received some 30 shipments of radioactive isotopes from the United States but all have been used for civilian research. He said most of the shipments were used for therapeutic and agricultural research.

In accordance with United States stipulations, Major said, detailed reports of the use made of the isotopes have been submitted to the United States Government.

Other Developments

Other developments yesterday included:

1. Lilienthal angrily protested that the investigation of the AEC is being exploited to "smear people by innuendo" and demanded that everyone whose name, even indirectly, is brought into the hearing be given a chance at a public hearing. Hickenlooper retorted that Lilienthal had said far more to identify "Case A" than he.

2. Dr. Edward U. Condon, whose name has repeatedly been brought into the hearings, notified Chairman Brian McMahon (D., Conn.) last night that "I am not asking to be called up because your committee has a very full schedule and I am myself heavily loaded with urgent scientific work." He expressed his "complete willingness to cooperate fully with your committee."

Senator William Knowland (R., Calif.) said he was fully satisfied with a change in the wording of a security memorandum issued by the Austin Co. for a nonrestricted area at the University of Chicago, where new laboratory buildings are being constructed. His comment was made after the testimony of Charles K. Widener, project engineer for the Austin Co. Widener described how "green parking" tickets for officials were issued.

4. In the Hickenlooper-Lilienthal exchange over "Case A," Hickenlooper brought out that "A" had been cleared for secret atomic work by a three-man board, a member of which was Dr. Shields Warren, director of the commission's biology and medicine division. He then quoted Shields as telling the Senate Appropriations group he was not "competent" in the field of subversive activities.

5. Lilienthal said "Case A" had first been cleared by an FBI investigation, and then the inquiry had been reopened as the result of an anonymous letter. Then, said Lilienthal, the informant who wrote the anonymous letter later testified under oath he had no basis whatever for his information. Other informants refused to testify, Lilienthal said.

6. Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.) said he was glad to have so many employes of the commission in attendance on the hearings. They will have an opportunity, he said "to get infiltrated in the basic idea that we have some laws here."

A little later Millikin told Smyth that lawyers handled scientific problems with about equal stupidity with scientists trying to deal with legal problems.

Later Smyth drew a laugh from spectators when he remarked that "atomic energy radiated hot air, too."

Your Columbia Federal Savings Account helps you grow old GRATEFULLY

Growing old gracefully is a much simpler task when you have the means. And, unless you are well supplied with wealthy and generous relatives, the only way that "means" accumulate is through your own good judgment. High income alone is not enough—the man with modest income and regular savings habits is far better off than the man whose savings, if any, are of the residual, or "I'll start saving next month" variety.

To grow old gracefully and gratefully, save regularly. Columbia Federal welcomes savings accounts of all sizes. Liberal dividends, compounded semi-annually, augment your savings. There's never any question about assured safety, for in addition to Columbia Federal's careful policies, every account is Federally insured up to $5,000.

THE MEN'S STORE
SECOND FLOOR

June the 19th is the day to—

Pay Father his Royal Rights

... and The Men's Store is a "natural" to select his gifts

Remember Father is a practical fellow and he more than likely looks on gifts as a usable rather that decorative importance ... which after all is quite natural—for he is faced with reality 365 days of the year ... so that is why The Men's Store has gathered together this assortment of ties ... some hand painted, some foulards, some silk or rayons—in fact an assortment so complete, so ample to make any father, whether you call him POP ... DAD or DADDY, smile and remark, "Just the kind of tie I wanted ..."

Sketched

BOW TIES, all silks and rayons ..... $1.50 to $2

... all silk jacquard, in soft blending colors and rich patterns $6.50

... hand-painted and tailored of soft silk crepes $10

Price range from $5 to $27.50

... all silk foulards in unusually neat designs $5

Other ties from $1 to $27.50

Ransom Tweed Sports Jacket of fine wool tweed and quality tailoring to give Father correct, cool, comfortable styling. Brown and gray herringbone in three button model, patch pockets $40

Wool Gabardine Slacks, designed for ease, good looks and service. Tans, browns or blues $18.50

If Father has a sporting side

... and likes the summer smartness and comfort that comes with wearing a handsome sports coat and slacks you might give him this affair—

Lightweight Tweed Jacket by Oakloom exceptionally comfortable in warm weather. Tans, grays, blue in neat all over patterns. $29.50

Rayon Slacks of spun rayon ... tailored for complete comfort. Plain colors and colorful plaids. $12.50

Above clothing available in regulars, shorts and longs

If Father has a loafing side

... give him one of these excellent robes in fine cotton ... handsome patterns, neat stripe effects ... generously cut in the popular wrap-around model. Sizes small, medium, large and extra large. $12.95

If you do not know what Father wants give him a Gift Certificate

... or if you are not sure of his size or type of gift he wants then—give him a Gift Certificate ... and he can come in later at his leisure and choose his own ... with your certificate you receive a miniature hat or shoe.

Hats range in price from $5 to $35

Shoes range in price from $8.95 to $27.50

A-Apparatus 'Loss' Laid to Low Funds

How was the Russian export firm, Amtorg, able to ship restricted atomic-research instruments to the Soviet in 1947?

That is the question that has atomic-energy security officers disturbed. They are not concerned over what the Judith Coplon trial Tuesday revealed had been shipped—they are more concerned about how the Russians were able to outwit our security forces and get it out of the country.

There are six semirestricted types of instruments exported by Amtorg in August, 1947. They all are types designed for the same, or related, purposes—to find irradiated materials, to count them and to register the count.

No Secrets Revealed

Hundreds—perhaps thousands—are in use in the United States. They are also common abroad, in certain areas. They reveal no secrets. But the Atomic Energy Act which America considers its bulwark against being overwhelmed by nuclear power controlled by others forbids their export without Atomic Energy Commission approval.

Back in August, 1947, when the revealed records show these instruments were shipped, control over exports was in the hands of the Export Control Division of the Commerce Department. This unit had had the same duties under the Manhattan Engineer District, the managerial outfit that ran the first atomic energy project and the predecessor to AEC.

Last night Francis McIntyre, who was in charge of that division at Commerce, blamed the niggardliness of Congress.

"That is the price we paid for extreme shorthandedness," he commented. "At that time we had only 125 people in the whole department, due to lack of funds.

"Apparently the material was improperly classified in the export declaration, whether wilfully or not, and the clerk, who was both administrator and law enforcer, thought no license was required. It is amazing that so little did get by."

McIntyre pointed out that Schedule B, under which licenses were issued, contained several hundred pages of regulations on what may or may not be exported.

The instruments reveal no secrets, but those produced here are the most efficient in the world. AEC officials pointed out that scores are in use in the Washington area alone.

Many Used at Beltsville

There are many at the Agricultural Research Stations at Beltsville, Md., where they are used to measure the absorption of various types of fertilizers by plants and the effect of direct application of atomic energy to plants. They are also used in a score of other experiments dealing with both livestock and plants.

Others are used in hospitals where radioisotopes, such as radioiodine, radiosodium, etc., are being used clinically. Others are used in industrial laboratories to measure the thickness of films, the wearing of bearings and other surfaces due to friction, the removal of sulfur from such things as rayon, etc.

Stars Laugh at FBI Report

at the Coplon trial over Government protests.

Charge Censorship Is Aim

"We knew that political censorship of the screen was the objective of certain Congressmen like Mr. Rankin and Mr. Thomas. . . . However, until today, we did not know that the Department of Justice was engaged in any such unconstitutional activity," they said.

"We cannot believe that this report reflects the official adoption of any such policy, and it is probably a case of misplaced zeal of some individual investigator."

Maltz said in a statement "the contents of Miss Coplon's purse seems curiously similar to the contents of Representative J. Pannell Thomas' mind, there is an unpleasant smell of herring about both."

The three screenwrtiers are among 10 cited for contempt of the House Un-American Activities Committee for refusing to answer questions about political affiliations.

Millen Brand, also named as a Communist, said at his Barto (Pa.) home:

"I sure am in distinguished company, but I don't know why my name was mentioned. I am not and never was a member of the Communist Party."

Brand was co-script writer of the movie, "The Snake Pit."

Clyde R. Miller, listed in the report among "fellow travelers," was not available immediately at his New York home. He was identified as a professor at the Columbia University Teachers College.

However, a spokesman for Teachers' College said Miller had been only a part-time instructor and his connection with the college was ended in July, 1948, because the courses he handled were no longer being taught.

A Columbia Broadcasting System spokesman in New York said Norman Corwin, whose name also appeared in the "fellow traveler" list, had not been on the CBS staff for more than a year but was preparing a special broadcast for the network at this time.

"We do not believe," the spokesman said, "that Norman Corwin is a Communist or a fellow-traveler."

Corwin could not be reached immediately for comment.

Clark Gets New Film Idea From Eisler Case

Attorney General Tom C. Clark would like the producers of "Illegal Entry," a motion picture about the Immigration Service, to prepare a sequel entitled "Illegal Exit." He made the comment in introducing the film at its premiere at Keith's last night. He said he had the Eisler case in mind.

Coplon Trial Involves Hollywood Notables as FBI Reports Are Introduced in Evidence

art and Dorothy Parker—are listed as members of the Hollywood Anti-Nazi League who were "singled out for praise" in a 1939 issue of "Internationale of Literatur"—"a German language literary magazine of the Comintern."

Above this item is the line: "Reference: Report of SA Irving T. Weeks, 6/21/48, Los Angeles."

The report seethed with well-known names:

"Confidential Informant T-6 advised in December, 1947, that Fredric March and Canada Lee were two outstanding Communist Party fellow travelers connected with the Institute for Democratic Education, Inc., 415 Lexington ave., New York City, along with Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University; Clyde R. Miller, a professor in the Teachers' College at Columbia University, and Norman Corwin of the Columbia Broadcasting System."

The report went into great detail on reported activities of Fredric March, Hollywood and Broadway actor.

"On November 27, 1945," one passage goes, "Confidential Informant ED 324 advised that he had observed a throw-away advertising a meeting to be held in Madison Square Garden on December 4, 1945, at 8 p. m.

"This circular was headed 'Crisis Coming, Atom Bom —for Peace or War?'

Wallace On Speakers' List

"The program was set forth and listed Fredric March thereunder as a speaker, along with Dr. Harlow Shapley, chairman; Julian Huxley; F. R. S.; Senator Charles W. Tobey, R. J. Thomas; Colonel Evans Carlson, Dr. Harold C. Urey, Helen Keller, Danny Kaye, Jo Davidson and Henry A. Wallace.

"Confidential Informant ND 336 advised on December 5, 1945, that March attended the above-described meeting at Madison Square Garden, New York City, on December 4, 1945. The subject read a poem by Norman Corwin captioned "Set Your Clock at U-235."

(Uranium-235 is a fissionable material used in manufacture of atomic bombs.)

Another occasion with March present is reported in the same document read to the jury:

"On October 16, 1944, SA Russell S. Garner attended a 'Salute to Young America Dinner' in honor of 'the youth of America' given by the American Youth for Democracy on its first anniversary in the ballroom of the Hotel Commodore, New York City.

"Time" Man Gets Scroll

"Approximately 1000 persons were in attendance at this dinner. During a series of presentations of AYD scrolls of Achievement to young Americans, the subject presented such a scroll to John Hersey, 'Time' magazine correspondent and author of 'A Bell for Adano.'"

Again: "The 'Daily Worker,' January 24, 1945, page 4, column 4, reflects that the subject was one of 'the top figures in American culture' who was honored by the 'New Masses' magazine at an awards dinner in the Hotel Commodore, New York City, January 22, 1945."

The report continues:

"Confidential Informant ND 305 advised December 25, 1945, that the subject partook in the entertainment program at a meeting sponsored by the American Society for Russian Relief held at Madison Square Garden, New York City, December 18, 1945.

Alfred Maltz — Alvah Bessie — Paul Robeson

Dalton Trumbo — Michael Blankfort — Millen Brand

Actors' and writers' names figure in Coplon trial

"The informant, who was one of about 13,000 attending the meeting, stated that Helen Hayes, noted actress, and the subject portrayed a Russian school-teacher and a Soviet soldier, respectively, in a skit, whereby they described the devastation of Russia by the Nazis at the battles of Stalingrad and Leningrad."

The report is headed "Fredric March, wa. Frederick McIntyre Bickel."

"Frederick Bickel," the report states, was the name used by March when he worked as a bank clerk in New York in 1919 and 1920 before his rise as an actor.

"Currently Have No. Knowledge"

"March was patron of American-Soviet Friendship 1942," the report states, "a sponsor of American Committee for Yugoslav Relief in 1945, and national officer of Progressive Citizens of America in 1946.

"Informants report and newspaper items reflect Communist front activities and pro-Russian contacts by March and wife."

It adds then: "NY confidential informants currently have no knowledge of subject's activities."

Numerous "confidential informants" made inquiries into March's activities, the document indicates.

"Confidential Informant T-3 advised on September 18, 1946, that the subject had contributed $5000 to the World Today, Inc.

"This organization, located at 450 West 56th st., New York, is a documentary film producing business headed by Grierson and Legg, both of whom are subjects of investigation at New York as possible Russian espionage agents."

Then from another informant:

"On November 22, 1946, according to Confidential Informant T-4, Theodore Bayer, administrative secretary of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, had a conference with Alexander Trachetenberg, member of the National Review Commission of the CP, at which time they discussed the possibility of having the subject speak at a rally to be held in Madison Square Garden on December 2, 1946 and sponsored by the NCASF to climax a 'get together with Russia month.'"

One paragraph is clothed in mystery, listing only some of the Nation's better-known names and little more:

"On October 6, 1947 Confidential Informant T-5 advised that Pavel Ivanevich Fedosimov, vice consul of the USSR at New York in charge of Public Relations, asked Bernard Koten of the American-Russian Institute, if he had obtained the list of names he, Fedosimov, had requested.

"Koten replied in the affirmative and furnished the name of the subject along with Judge Anna Kross, Samuel Gelfin, Israel Epstein, Frank Kingdon, Alexander Barlovsky, David Weingard, Archibald McLeish, Robert St. John, Leland Stowe, Ralph Ingersoll, John Hersey and Raymond Walsh."

"Anti-Communist Group" Quoted

The document quotes from a resume which it says was prepared by "the anti-Communist group in the Actors Equity Association:"

"'His (March's) Communist Front affiliations are even more numerous than those of Jo Davidson. They include the following: American Committee of Liberals for the Freedom of Mooney and Billings, American Committee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, Films for Democracy, Film Audiences for Democracy, Hollywood Anti-Nazi League, Hollywood League for Democratic Action, National Council of American Soviet Friendship, the New York Tom Mooney Committee, Council for Pan-American Democracy, "New Masses" Dinner Committee, and the American Committee of Jewish Writers, Artists and Scientists.'"

The report on March concludes: "The following New York Confidential Informants advised that they have no knowledge of the subject's current Communist activities in the New York area: ND 342, ND 359, ND 384, ND 388, ND 400 and ND 403."

There follows a shorter report on the actress Florence Eldridge, his wife. Excerpts:

"Confidential Informant T-7 advised on February 25, 1946, that the name of Florence Eldridge March was mentioned in a conversation between Lionel Berman and Bella V. Dodd, both of the Communist Party. This conversation concerned the names of those people whom Bella Dodd had secured for a new front organization, the nature of which was not known."

"Confidential Informant T-8 advised on August 20, 1946, that Mary Jane Keeney, who was well known on the East Coast for her Communist and espionage activities, stated she desired to get into the ICC (Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions) and would look into the job in New York when she next saw Mrs. Florence March, a vice president of the Congress of American Women and a person whom she knew very well."

The document is headed "Federal Bureau of Investigation . . . This case originated at Los Angeles . . . Criminal Division 100-91140-CTG . . . Report made at New York."

Courtroom Is Packed

The courtroom which heard Defense Attorney Palmer read it with Prosecutor Kelley checking over his shoulder was packed to the last seat.

From the corridor more faces stared avidly through the small rectangular windows in the rear doors of the court. Behind these still other spectators waited, hoping for a seat inside or at least a peek through the glass.

As the mountain of FBI confidential-informant reports on March erupted into the record, a weird atmosphere settled over the courtroom.

The 28-year-old, brunette Miss Coplon, the charge against her of using her Department of Justice job to filch Government secrets for Russia, the whole nature of the present trial, all seemed completely forgotten, crushed down for the time by the sensational charges against March and the other Hollywood personalities.

It was obvious that Judge Reeves was facing one of the great decisions of the trial as the question of whether the March document should be read finally reached a definite crossroads.

Palmer had tried to find out from FBI Special Agent Robert J. Lamphere, on the witness stand, who the "Frederic March" mentioned so tersely in the "data slip" was.

The effort was fruitless. Lamphere said he didn't know "offhand."

Palmer finally started to read the long investigative report itself, which he had in his hand.

Kelley leaped to his feet: "Do I understand," he asked Judge Reeves in an incredulous voice, "you are going to permit him to read the entire report without first establishing its relevancy under Your Honor's ruling of yesterday?"

Judge Reeves had ruled that the 12 of the 34 data slips found in Miss Coplon's purse, and which the Government had asked withheld on grounds their disclosure would endanger national security, must be produced. He also had ruled that the reports back of the data slips must be produced, but that relevancy of the latter must be established by the counsel offering them.

"That would require I should examine all the reports," Judge Reeves replied.

"Do so, sir!" Kelley pleaded.

"Let me examine it," Judge Reeves said, reaching over the bench for the document.

"I do not wish to place that burden on you," Kelley said. "But it is a matter of great importance."

The judge leafed for a moment through the document, then spoke:

"I regretfully have to state that a judge is charged with a responsibility—to see that justice is done. If it turns out that the Government has come into court exposing itself, then it will have to take the peril. If it imperils the Government to disclose relevant material, then the Government ought not to be here."

"I assume that the burden is on the executive as well as the judiciary to protect this country at all times," Kelley again pleaded.

"The oath of the office of the judge is to see that justice is done," Judge Reeves repeated.

Defeated, Kelley asked that the document on March be disclosed only to the jury.

He was defeated on this as well.

"Courts of law are open to the public," Judge Reeves said. "I have no right to say to newspapermen or the public that they can't be here—they have a right to be here."

"It's before the world," Kelley said.

And so it was.

Earlier in the day Palmer had stated that "the reason I want to read the twelve data slips is that they're supposed to affect internal security.

"If they don't mean a thing, as I contend, I've proved my point," he declared. "On the other hand if they do, they'll be bombs or boomerangs."

Coplon Lawyer Sued For Typist's Fee

Archibald Palmer, defense attorney in the Judith Coplon espionage trial in District Court, has been sued for an $85 stenographer's fee, it was learned yesterday.

The fee was for typing up "69 or 70" pages, with copies, of a motion by Palmer to suppress evidence in the case, the attorney of David E. Spatzer, private court reporter, 1410 Maryland ave. ne., said.

When Spatzer tried to collect from the defense attorney, he was told "my client is too poor to pay," John Prebilich, who is Spatzer's attorney, claims.

Had 5 'Contacts', Chambers Testifies

ment agencies other than the State Department?"

"I did," answered Chambers.

"How many other sources of supply?" interposed Judge Kaufman.

"Three, I guess," replied Chambers.

Judge Kaufman later asked, "... when you testified before the House Committee in August, 1948, in substance that you had nothing to do with espionage, ... (had you) forgotten all those sources of supply?"

Murphy then interceded to say, "I submit there is no testimony that he forgot to tell the House Committee."

(Chambers has said he told the House committee last August and a Federal Grand Jury last October that Hiss and others were Communist workers. Not until November did he make his charge that Hiss supplied him with secret documents.)

The prosecution has introduced 65 typewritten documents, 4 handwritten documents and 2 strips of microfilm in the perjury case, material allegedly supplied to Chambers by Hiss.

"Did Mr. Wadleigh give you any documents that are introduced in this case?" Chambers was asked.

"I believe not," he replied.

"What do you mean by that," demanded Judge Kaufman, leaning across the bench, "aren't you certain of the fact?"

"I am as certain of that as I can be," replied Chambers, who went on to say that "none whatsoever" in the case came from Wadleigh.

"What is there about them that makes you feel that way?" asked Murphy.

Chambers said Wadleigh had given him only State Department "originals" and not typewritten documents, "paraphrases" of documents, or handwritten documents.

As to the microfilm, he said, while it included a document involving an agreement on German trade, it was shown only partially on one of the two strips of microfilm in evidence, and was "then carried over to the second strip and followed by cables and dispatches of the kind I got from no one but Alger Hiss."

Later, when chief defense counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker took over the witness for recross-examination, he submitted Chambers to penetrating questioning on this point.

During the taking of pre-trial depositions in a $75,000 libel suit filed against Chambers by Hiss in Baltimore, Chambers was disclosed to have stated that he had "no independent recollection" of the circumstances under which he received some of the microfilm.

(Only part of the microfilm that Chambers says he secreted in 1938 and recovered last November from a relative's home, then hid again for several days inside a pumpkin on his Westminister, Md., farm, is at issue in the present trial.)

While Stryker sought to prove that Chambers cannot remember how he obtained the microfilm in evidence here, Chambers insisted he received it all from Hiss, while Murphy contended that Stryker was misinterpreting Chambers' replies.

"You always had remembered who the person was who gave them (the microfilms) to you?" demanded Stryker.

A. "There was no question in my mind that I always knew who the person was who gave me the evidence."

"Nevertheless," said Stryker, later, in Baltimore, you said, 'I don't recollect that Alger Hiss gave me this (there are approximately 53 exposures on the film) particular document from which the original was made in this case.'"

"What I recollect," declared Chambers, "is who gave me the documents. What I don't recollect is the circumstances under which I received the document."

Stryker then inquired if Chambers was not asked in Baltimore about five other photographs of documents, and quoted him as replying, "I do not recollect who handed them to me."

Asked if this was a false reply, Chambers said it was not.

"You do see, of course," declared Stryker, "an inconsistency between that statement and the statement you gave here . . ." earlier.

"I see a very one-sided provocative line of questioning," Chambers called out angrily, in one of his rare outbursts on the witness stand.

Judge Kaufman ordered the remark stricken out, and said later that the question of consistency or inconsistency was for the jury to decide.

Chambers' conversation with Adolph A. Berle, when the latter was an Assistant Secretary of State in 1939, was again examined today.

Under questioning by Murphy, Chambers said he told Berle in 1939 that "Alger Hiss was a Communist . . . that he had been a member of a Communist underground apparatus which included other members."

Berle told the House committee last August 30 that Chambers had come to him to discuss Alger Hiss, his brother, Donald Hiss, and others, but Chambers "did not make the direct statement that any of these men were members of the Communist Party," but were "sympathetic to their (the Communists') general point of view . . ."

Showing Chambers that record today, Stryker asked him if it "refreshed" his memory.

"It does not," declared Chambers, maintaining he told Berle they were Communists.

Chambers conceded he had not told Berle anything about "espionage," saying Berle didn't ask about this. Because "nothing was done" as a result of his talk with Berle, he said, he did nothing further about his charges until years later, because he felt it was "futile."

As he did yesterday, Chambers today denied any political motivation in his charges before the House committee last August.

He also denied:

1. That he has ever received treatment for mental illness at any time. (This question was first raised before the House Committee, and during the present trial, the defense has had a psychiatrist in court to "observe" Chambers all the time Chambers has been on the stand.)

2. That he "inserted" anything at the time in the envelope he recovered last November, containing the alleged 1938 documents and microfilms now introduced in the case as evidence against Hiss. A dirty manila envelope that allegedly held this material was passed among the jury members for their examination.

Chambers said he told his wife in November only that the documentary material would "make a great change in affairs."

He said he did not divulge the microfilm to his lawyers immediately because, he said, some of the microfilm was undeveloped. (The House committee later had the undeveloped film processed.)

The only reason he first produced the documents in the libel suit, he said was because his attorneys said "that I had practically no other choice."

"Your pocketbook, perhaps your whole pocketbook, you understood, was at stake in this civil action, wasn't it?" asked Stryker.

"It was not," said Chambers, and went on to say that "my property stands in my wife's name and mine."

"You mean you are judgment-proof, is that it?" Stryker asked.

"I believe there was never any question of taking my property," countered Chambers.

Chambers, under questioning by Murphy to show that he had an intimate knowledge of the various Hiss residences, where he said he sometimes stayed overnight, gave a broad detailed description of the two homes directly involved.

He said the home at 3415 Volta pl. nw., where the Hisses lived from late 1937 to 1943, included in its furniture a gold mirror with an eagle on top." He said the wallpaper had a design of "mulberries."

Their residence at 1245 30th st. nw., in 1936-37, he said, had a dining room in the rear, and in front, "a small kitchen on the left-hand side as you enter the house."

After Hiss was indicted last December 15, Chambers conceded, FBI agents drove him past the houses in a car, to identify them, but he vigorously denied Stryker's suggestion that he could see much of the interior of the homes from the street.

Asked which persons in Washington knew him by the name of Chambers, he replied "George Silverman," and also "Dr. Gillman, who was my superior in the national research program (Chambers said he was employed there in 1937), and who was a Communist."

"Did Mr. Hiss know you by that name?"

A. "I do not believe Mr. Hiss knew me by the name Chambers."

Hiss has declared that he knew Chambers as "George Crosley" a free lance writer he says he befriended.

Stryker asked if he had not told the House committee that Hiss was one of the "concealed enemy against which we are all fighting and I am fighting?"

The witness admitted this, and Stryker then asked, "Can you imagine anything worse to say about an American, than that he is an enemy, and a concealed enemy, of his country?"

"Yes, I can," came the reply, amid laughter from the courtroom spectators.

The next two witnesses called to the stand briefly were Mrs. Florence T. Stafford, an office assistant of the University of Marylands registration office in Baltimore, and Donald T. Appell, an investigator for the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Both were questioned by Thomas J. Donnegan, special assistant to the Attorney General and assistant to Murphy in the prosecution.

an unsettled world that will continue to fight a "cold war."

The group concluded that principles and practices of communism should be taught in the schools "accurately" and objectively" but not advocated.

American youth, it declared, is more likely to reject totalitarianism if exposed to the facts in the classroom than if "left to be the prey of propaganda through out-of-school channels often possessing the enhanced appeal of forbidden fruit."

The commission also proposed that schools "continue with vigor their programs for giving young citizens a clear understanding of the principles of the American way of life and a desire to make these principles prevail in their own lives and in the life of their country.

"Amelioration of economic injustice, psychological insecurity, racial discrimination, substandard housing and other evils that beset us will help to produce a soil in which the seeds of communism cannot thrive," the commission said.

While declaring that Communist Party members should not be employed as teachers, the commission condemned "careless, incorrect and unjust use of such words as 'Red' and 'Communist' to attack teachers and other persons who . . . are not Communists, but merely have views different from those of their accusers.

"The whole spirit of free American education will be subverted unless teachers are free to think for themselves.

"It is because members of the Communist Party are required to surrender this right, as a consequence of becoming part of a movement characterized by conspiracy and calculated deceit, that they should be excluded from employment as teachers."

The commission warned that training of the Nation's youth now is periled by an inadequate supply of teachers and buildings and by overcrowded classrooms.

"Having neglected the ordinary replacement of both buildings and personnel for a decade, the Nation must now pay the penalty in the form of higher State, local, and Federal support," the commission said.

The educators recommended an 11-point program for classroom teachers to follow in helping to prepare youth to face life in a world of tensions.

They called for an improved school health program, with emphasis upon good nutrition, mental hygiene, family life, personal adjustment and healthful living.

Teachers were urged to develop in students, skills and habits of sustained and purposeful work, a reasonable degree of self-confidence and self-respect, and feelings of comradeship and partnership in school and community.

On religion the commission said that schools should redouble efforts to teach youth to understand ethical principles "common to all our religions, to avoid bigotry, and to use and defend the privilege of religious freedom."

The commission said that present educational practices need a sharper definition of objectives, better methods of teaching, and a more carefully designed curriculum.

The commission said that students should be taught more about the history and geography of other parts of the world, current events guarded against special pleading, and more about the United Nations and its specialized agencies.

Other members of the commission in addition to General Eisenhower, now president of Columbia University, Dr. Conant and Miss Studebaker were:

Morals And Propaganda

Maryland has a board of motion picture censors of which there is no counterpart in the District of Columbia. All pictures to be shown within the State must carry a license, issued by the board after an examination of the film. The powers of the board, however, are limited by statute, and it has no authority to withhold a license for any film which has not been adjudged "immoral" within the terms of the statute.

In the main the board appears to have exercised such powers as it has with discretion and restraint, for little is heard about it and it is probable that no more than a relatively slight proportion of the citizens of Maryland are even aware of its existence. Recently, however, the board opened itself to charges of usurpation of power by prohibiting the showing of a Polish film called On Polish Land. The board objected to this film on the ground of "Communist propaganda." But since this was not a sufficient reason for refusing a license it was stated that the film was also "immoral," because it was a "false and misleading" representation of life in Poland under the Communist regime. Polish-Americans are numerous in Baltimore and very well organized. They are for the most part bitterly hostile to the present Polish government, and it is not unlikely that this had something to do with the decision of the board. Thus the prohibition of a picture on what are said to be purely political grounds has been denounced as an infringement of the civil liberties guaranteed by the State and Federal constitutions.

The main difficulty seems to be the loose and ambiguous wording of the statute under which the board has operated. Popular usage tends to restrict the word "immoral" to matters of sexual vice, and it seems to have been this sense that was in the minds of the authors of the statute. An "immoral picture," then, would be one that might put such vice in a favorable or attractive light. But in another and more accurate sense, immorality is considered to be anything that is contrary to traditional ethics. Thus, conceivably, those who approve the board's decision might argue that whatever aims at deliberate deception for political purposes is ipso facto immoral.

However, if all movies which give a false representation of life were to be prohibited on moral grounds, very few would ever be shown. Moreover, the authority to decide what is moral and immoral in so broad an application of the term seems too great a power to entrust to a politically appointed board. It is even dangerous, as the history of the Inquisition seems to show, when entrusted to persons specially trained in such problems. The notion that the public is best qualified to judge of political moralities has much to be said against it, but up to now no better standard has been devised.

Party Roadblocks

Perhaps it was inevitable that a Republican should have disclosed the role of House Democratic Leader McCormack in obstructing conference committee compromise on the reorganization bill. But it is most unfortunate. The best that can be said of the situation is at the same time the worst: that Senator McCarthy's charge redresses the balance of partisan blame for what is happening to the Hoover Commission recommendations.

The revelation of Mr. McCormack's party-in-power indifference to reorganization comes opportunely for Republicans. Just a few days ago their own national committee was caught in a bad breach of ethics on the same matter. Last April Mr. Hoover made five radio broadcasts factually explaining the Hoover Commission recommendations for reorganization of the executive branch of the Government. Transcriptions of these were made available for rebroadcast on request—to the Republican National Committee among others. The committee, however, put parts of them to an unorthodox use. On new transcriptions it combined the voice of Mr. Hoover ostensibly answering questions put to him by certain members of Congress. On some of these, at least, the question-and-answer part of the record was preceded or followed by statements of a partisan nature by the participating member of Congress.

This was an obvious attempt to employ Mr. Hoover and the Hoover Commission's prestige for party advantage. On this the former President has already had his say, emphasizing that the commission and its recommendations have been carefully nonpartisan throughout. Indeed, any attempt to impute partisan values either to Mr. Hoover's factual analysis or to the entire project seems to us impossible except by misrepresentation.

This, in fact, is one of the central and most admirable facts to keep in mind. The commission itself was bipartisan in composition and nonpartisan in approach. Its recommendations were not intended as party ammunition and have the genuine support of the present occupant of the White House as well as the former President. As many of its congressional advocates have lamented, reorganization has a tough enough road ahead without the addition of any partisan roadblocks.

Secret Evidence

Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves has taken what seems to us the only tenable position regarding Government evidence in the Judith Coplon espionage trial. In ordering the Department of Justice to produce secret FBI documents allegedly found in Miss Coplon's purse, Judge Reeves reaffirmed the principle that a defendant is entitled to be confronted with the evidence against him. There was no choice in the matter. There can be no such thing as secret evidence in a legal sense, for "evidence" means something plainly visible. Nor could the judge reasonably have permitted the inference, once the secret documents were mentioned, that they were so vital that they could not be shown to the jury. For this would have militated against the right of Miss Coplon and every defendant to be presumed innocent until proved guilty. Judge Reeves' ruling emphasizes the contrast between court procedure and the woeful lack of protection for defendants in Federal loyalty hearings.

Whether Judge Reeves was correct in his appraisal of the FBI papers as not suggesting "danger to our national security or our national defense" is something else. Here, however, the basic decision was not one for Judge Reeves. It belonged to Attorney General Clark. Mr. Clark had a choice. If he had thought that disclosure of the secret information really would have injured the national interest, he could have withdrawn the case. Apparently he determined that the compromise of the FBI was less important than the effort to obtain Miss Coplon's conviction.

The responsibility for this decision was great. Exposure of FBI files on espionage cases is not something that can be undertaken lightly, or without the threat of grave damage to sources of information or personal harm to agents. The precedent is alarming. Even though this order was issued by a Federal judge with the apparent acquiescence of the Attorney General, it now may be more difficult to resist similar demands of other agencies, such as the Un-American Activities Committee, for FBI files. Whether the additional evidence thus introduced will be worth the damage to the FBI is an open question.

Aside from the compromise of FBI sources, the data introduced so far give little indication that the Russians have obtained really important information. It is fatuous to represent the smuggled shipment of radiation detection devices to Russia as a capture of atomic secrets. Geiger counters and similar detection devices are not so classified; they are merely under export control. They are being denied to Russia because this country has decided not to aid Russian atomic experimentation. But they have nothing to do with the harnessing of atomic energy itself. They have about the same relation to atomic development as a hammer has to building a house—they are useful tools. But they do not show how to construct a bomb.

Again, Judge Reeves has kept a level head in the face of considerable aggravation. What his ruling means is that hearsay, even of a damning nature and from highly competent sources, cannot be admitted as fact. This ruling in itself has no bearing on the importance of protecting FBI informants. Rather, it concerns the manner in which data from such informants are to be used. The implication of Judge Reeves' order is that if information from such sources is to be presented in court, then it must be of such nature that it can be presented openly and judged on its merits. In other words, even more important than protection for the FBI is the integrity of the fundamental safeguards of the American judicial system.

Johnson's Team

With the appointment of Mr. Gordon Gray as Secretary of the Army, Secretary Johnson's team at the Department of Defense is completed, and the task now remains of cultivating a like-mindedness that will promote unification. It is of first importance to this task that the men at the top shall be congenial. Example at the top, combined with authority, is the way to promote recognition in the armed services that the national defense has prior claim on allegiance. To get this, Secretary Johnson must command confidence and likewise delegate confidence. For the operating heads of the departments must be substantive administrators as well as team workers.

Secretary Johnson when he came to the department soon found that Secretary Symington is a competent as well as a zealous administrator. He is never loath to promote the cause of the Air Force, yet he and the air generals under him have always been pro unification. They were, indeed, pioneers of unification, and they have never ceased to clamor for such a strengthening of the over-all organization as would add to the influence of the Defense Secretary and the cohesion and viability of the Joint Chiefs.

When Francis P. Matthews was appointed Secretary of the Navy, there was some eyebrow raising. Mr. Matthews hails from Nebraska and is a banker and businessman with national interests. Some publicists dug up against him his chairmanship of the Committee on Socialism and Communism of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The report of this committee contained some wild and whirring words about alleged Red cells in the Government service. Here, the report darkly intimated, was the reason for the postwar diplomatic sell-out to Soviet Russia. It certainly seemed strange that the perpetrator of these charges should be acceptable to a President who had assailed such charges as red herrings and who himself was responsible for much of the diplomacy under attack. But politics makes strange bedfellows. Mr. Matthews is a Roman Catholic, as his predecessor was; is said to have a good record as administrator, and seemed to offset his witch-hunting by accepting membership on the President's Civil Rights Commission.

Evidently, Mr. Johnson, who had himself picked Mr. Matthews, wanted another friend to serve as Secretary of the Army, viz, Mr. Curtis E. Calder, chairman of the board of Electric Bond & Share Co. Here again there was reason to wonder. To judge Mr. Calder (and, for the matter, Mr. Matthews) in the context of Truman election oratory, the President was committing the Defense Department to the plunderbund of big business! Mr. Truman could have explained that he was merely giving Secretary Johnson a free hand, and, without a doubt, this attitude is in itself a contribution to unification. However, Mr. Calder has declined the appointment, and Mr. Gray has been elevated from the Undersecretaryship.

Mr. Gray, like his predecessor, Mr. Kenneth Royall, is a North Carolinian, and in that State has won respect as a newspaper publisher and a State legislator. As a GI in the war he knows conditions in the Army at first hand. It is reassuring to have him in the Secretaryship. The appointment will be greeted with unmixed pleasure, for Mr. Gray has done well in the department and has proved his title to the job by sheer merit. He has a natural sense of cooperation and a fidelity to duty and ideals which will fit him into the hierarchic framework of the national defense.

Futile Delay

In previous Congresses the Rules Committee's 7 to 5 vote Tuesday against the housing and slum clearance bill would have ended the matter. The bill would have been dead without a chance for the House itself to give it consideration. Now, thanks to the procedure adopted at the outset of this session, the executionary power of the Rules body is curbed. The housing bill is not dead but delayed.

The revised procedure is worth describing again, since it is not yet generally understood. When one of the legislative committees reports a measure, with its approval, the chairman of that group introduces a resolution asking for House consideration. The bill is placed on the calendar and the resolution is referred to the Rules Committee. Nominally, the Rules Committee's function is that of traffic officer, deciding which measures shall move ahead first and how much time for debate shall be allowed. It is not supposed to examine the substance of legislation—though it often does.

If the Rules Committee has taken no action within 21 days after a resolution is referred to it, or 21 days after it has voted adversely, the chairman of the legislative committee can get busy. On the second or fourth Monday in any month, following expiration of the 21-day period, he is privileged to call up his resolution on the floor of the House. If the House approves the resolution, the bill then comes before it for debate.

In the case of the housing bill the earliest date when this can happen is June 27. Chairman Spence of the House Banking Committee can then call for a House vote on his resolution to consider the measure. And the Rules Committee will have accomplished nothing but an increase in the pressure of legislation in the closing month of the session.

This is a measly sort of accomplishment that few members of the House are likely to appreciate. Nor will the public, we surmise, if the result is loss of the measure in the last-minute rush. The Eightieth Congress wound up that way, and took a shellacking for it from Mr. Truman in the election campaign. The Eighty-first Congress will earn the epithet "Eighty-Worst" if it has learned nothing from that lesson.

AND WHAT IS BEST

By God's design,
At His desire,
The sluggard swine
Sleep in the mire;
And serpents crawl,
And falcons fly,
And tares grow tall,
And seasons die.
With His intent
The huntsman stalks
The subtle scent
Where beauty walks.
Foreseen, foreknown,
As He has willed,
The arrow's flown;
The blood is spilled.
But at His word,
In moonlight pale,
Have lovers heard
The nightingale;
Have mothers hummed
Their babes to dream
As raindrops drummed
By sill and beam;
And what is best
He did intend.
All plowmen rest
At furrow's end.

Home Rule Education

The collapse of opposition to the home rule bill in the Senate appears to have been largely due to the educational campaign carried on by various groups of citizens. Most of the opposition to local self-government in the District of Columbia is the result of lack of correct factual information.

Throughout the years since home rule was taken away in the 1870s the opponents of local self-government have been very assiduous in suppressing facts and disseminating untruths, with the result that a surprising number of persons, both within and without the District, have very distorted, not to say fantastic, ideas about the subject.

Few persons outside of the metropolitan area of Washington know that the people of Washington bear all the burdens of a self-governing community but have none of its privileges. Still fewer persons within and without that area know that the District had home rule during the first half of the 150 years that have elapsed since the District was constituted.

The untruth that the founding fathers intended that residents of "the seat of the Government of the United States" should be denied the basic right of local self-government has been diligently proclaimed for 75 years. The truth is that these founding fathers would have been profoundly shocked if they could have foreseen that future generations would so misconstrue the simple words which they used to insure the freedom of "the seat of the Government" from control by any one of the States of the Union.

Most Americans have come to take their political liberties so much for granted that they lose sight of the struggles through which they were won. Yet they instinctively react in favor of traditional American principles of government unless swayed by prejudice or misled by incorrect information.

The task of the home rule supporters is, therefore, primarily an educational one. Opposition in the House of Representatives can be overcome in the same manner as it was in the Senate. In the larger task of enlightening the home rule opponents in the District of Columbia, in order to insure favorable action in the referendum, the public press of Washington can and should play a large part.

"Dr. Bunche Declines"

Many thanks for your June 4 editorial, "Dr. Bunche Declines." The thoughts that were expressed have sufficient intensity of meaning to shame our most profane bigots. It is unfortunate that those who perpetuate, accommodate, patronize or seek to justify racial segregation, even though strongly impressed when confronted with editorials of this nature, are not moved to the point of recession.

As no argument against Jim Crowism has been able to mitigate the force of this evil, and since the majority of American people favor the abolition of discriminatory practices, Congress should take immediate steps toward the enactment of legislation outlawing the racial segregation.

While the right of the States to solve their own problems should be considered, we must admit that only a very few States have made any discernible progress over a period of 36 years toward protecting the basic rights of their citizens. Why, then, should we assume that foreseeable progress will be made through State action within the next two generations?

The Federal Government and not the State is responsible to the people of the Nation as a whole, and segregation is widespread. Given the authority, the Government would be equipped to take quicker, more effective, direct and definite action toward the elimination of segregation. Moreover, this Government by virtue of its Constitution is legally required to take such action.

Roosevelt Memorial

The Roosevelt Memorial Association is trying to get in touch with surviving friends, associates and followers of Theodore Roosevelt, and we need your help. We want the names and addresses of men and women who knew the great "T. R." or in any way felt upon their lives the impact of his personality or his leadership.

They may be former Progressives, or volunteers for that division of the First World War which never materialized, or scientists, or hunters, or newspaper men, or neighbors, or people in his audiences at political rallies, or newspaper readers who rose to his challenge during the First World War.

Will you help us locate them, to send their names and addresses to Theodore Roosevelt House, 28 East 20th st., New York 3, N. Y.

"Forrestal Building"

The plan of Representatives Hill and Gillette to change the name of the Pentagon to the "Forrestal Building" is a stroke of sheer genius.

But why stop there? Let's change all those unimaginative names to something more pertinent. For instance, the State Department to the "Hull Building" (as Senator Tydings suggested might happen); Treasury to the "Hamilton" or "Mellon Building," Navy to the "Denby Building," Interior to the "Fall Building," White House to the "Roosevelt Building," etc., etc.

However, it might be desirable to alter this policy slightly to find more descriptive titles for other buildings, such as changing the Internal Revenue Department to the "Headache Building" and the Capitol to the "Gas House."

Rude Policeman

Here to attend the traffic safety conference, recently I crossed with one or two others at a corner and waited on an island to continue. As we stood there a patrolman drove up on a motorcycle and in a sneering manner ordered us back. There was no explanation, and since at that corner there was no "wait for light" sign, his conduct was puzzling. When we crossed, there was no car nearer than a block away.

I'm for traffic safety, but Washington, for all its prize winning, could do a better job of training its public relations aides. Smart-acting cops produce nothing but resentment.

Whitewashing The Nazis

It seems that the "whitewash Germany" campaign instigated by certain elements in this country has now turned into "smear the Allies" propaganda.

I would like to call attention to a recently published book called The Crime of Our Age which is a fantastic whitewash for the Germans and Nazis and at the very same time is an outrageous smear against the United States, France and Britain. It can only be classified in the category of Pan-German writings. The author is a Rev. Dr. Ludwig Adolphus Fritsch, of Chicago, who also figures as publisher.

While it is written in English (in a very bad English at that) the book is being heavily advertised in German-language newspapers throughout the country.

Here are some typical chapter headings:

"The Real Aggressors Are the Great Powers of Today," "Germany, the Protector of Christianity and the White Race," "The Victors Have No Moral Right," "The Allies Were the Aggressors Through the Centuries," "The Allies Were the First Slave Traders," "The Allies Were the First Mass Murderers," "The Allies Committed More Crimes Than German Doctors," "The Allies Are the Greatest Looters of History," "Shame of Our Troops," "Even the Russians More Honest," "What Would Pan-Germanism Give the World?"

And here are some significant quotes, picked at random, which need no comment:

"The Germans are accused of having started an aggressive war. For that crime their leaders were hanged. Every historian knows that this accusation is a great lie. The Germans wanted to reach their rightful goal in rescuing Europe by peaceful means. In the case of Austria and the Sudetenland, they succeeded. A peaceful agreement with Poland also would have been possible had not Churchill, encouraged by Roosevelt, instigated the leaders of that unfortunate people. . . .

"The Germans were accused of having introduced the concentration camps as a new means of war. For this crime their leaders and helpers were hanged. The Germans, in their 2000 years of glorious history, never used this objectionable means . . .

"The Germans were accused of destroying the village of Lidice and of executing about 200 British-sent murderers of a governor. The perpetrators of this crime were hanged. On the other hand, the victorious nations committed thousandfold greater crimes. . . ."

I have just received a small folder containing some indorsements of Crime Of Our Age, which its author, the Rev. Fritsch, distributes in the Middle West. I was quite amazed and shocked to find that Judge Edward LeRoy Van Roden of Media, Pa., wholeheartedly comes out in support of this book.

Judge Van Roden was a member of a three-man commission named by former Secretary of the Army Royall to investigate charges that United States war crimes investigators in Germany had allegedly used brutal third-degree methods against Nazi SS Stormtroopers accused of shooting down American prisoners of war after the Battle of the Bulge.

It is very strange, indeed, to see an American judge and a former member of an official Army investigation commission speak out in favor of this book.

Combatting Smart Morals

By Malvina Lindsay

Honor in 'Exams'

SOME SMALL tucked-away news stories recently have been a disturbing barometer of public ethics to those concerned about what kind of people Americans are becoming.

Cheating trouble in examinations is reported from this college, that university. A crime expert or an FBI man tells parents they are abetting lawlessness by their own slick practices—getting traffic tickets fixed, beating the tax collector, seeking and getting political pull for private profit, putting over a fast trick in business, outsmarting the grocer. And the old "get it for you wholesale" cult is bobbing up again.

It is hard to say just how serious are the reported cheating scandals in final "exams." A general trend in this direction has been cited recently as part of growing national lawlessness. Yet some educators maintain there's less cheating in exams than formerly—it's just that standards are higher, hence the offense receives more attention.

THE GROWTH of the honor system in colleges is one evidence of these higher standards. As yet this system is extremely rare in high schools. But the general trend in both high schools and colleges is to get away from the examination bogey with its temptation for cheating.

Instead of making one big final nerve-wrecking examination a criterion of the student's knowledge, modern educators prefer to integrate small examinations and other forms of tests with the regular school work. Many of them feel that the examination system is inadequate. But despite their efforts to reform or abolish exams, the system still prevails widely as a test of knowledge and a challenge to youthful honor.

If examination cheating is indeed growing, its portents are serious. It could indicate that the chief weaknesses of the American character, lawlessness and carelessness, were gaining firmer grip. Social historians say there has been a gradual decline in standards of sportsmanship. But they are generally hopeful the strong points of American character will override the weak.

What is back of this "exam" cheating of youth and the "smart guy" morals of their parents? For one thing, the get-ahead motif, which naturally gains strength in an industrial society with its growing emphasis on material standards. In such a society youth also tends to get softer, wants to get things the easy way. Then the decline of authority on the part of the copybook, the home, the church, has loosened up standards of honor.

THIS IS NOT to imply that no one was tricky in business, shabby in honor, dishonest in exams in the "good old days." Indeed robber barons and political grafters operated more extensively and brazenly then than now. And if people generally, including youth, were a little more steadfast and less devious, it was owing partly to fear, and partly to lack of temptation and opportunity for smart dealing.

Both youth and adults are being put morally on their own in today's complex society. For them it is a transition time from authority to self-direction—always a time of temporary moral casualty.

But there is no going back to eagle-eyed professors policing examination classrooms. The honor system and the movement for student self-government point the road to tomorrow. Thirty years ago the National Self-Government Committee, including such educators as Prof. John Dewey, President Hamilton Holt of Rollins College, Dr. Charles A. Beard, Dr. Angelo Patri, was formed to promote self-government by students as a means of teaching democracy. Results have been encouraging. While both this and the honor system may still be a little ahead of public conscience, they are setting standards that will do more to encourage good ethics than any amount of fear and reprimand.

British Medicine

According to the London correspondent of the A. M. A. Journal, frauds are already being practiced against the British government under state medicine although it has been in effect only a few months. Because of secrecy, the extent of abuses cannot be determined definitely.

However, one example of abuse of the health service was the case of a woman obtaining a doctor's prescription for which she had little or no need—she may have feigned illness to get it—and then trading it to a pharmacist for cosmetics and other things he sells. "The pharmacist has no difficulty in getting paid for the prescription, as he returns it to the government with all the others he has dispensed," says the correspondent.

Both patient and pharmacist score with this fraud. The woman obtains her cosmetics for nothing and the druggist probably makes an increased profit on this sale of cosmetics. Those who lose in these frauds are government and indirectly the taxpayers of this country who pay the bill for socialized medicine in England.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Berlin Fantasia

EVEN MORE discouraging than the disagreement between Mr. Acheson and M. Vishinsky over how to govern Berlin is that both of them talk as if they still believed it possible for four governments to rule one wretched, ruined, and desperate city.

LIPPMANN

The differences between the Acheson and the Vishinsky proposals are considerable, perhaps irreconcilable. But what is much more serious is their similarity, that, as Mr. Dooley once said of two candidates for President, they are as far apart as the two poles and as much alike. For the notion, or at least the pretense, is common to both proposals, that despite the plain and obvious lesson of the past four years, the occupying powers should work side by side making daily decisions on a whole mass of intricate and largely unintelligible details.

IT IS self-evident that the Soviet proposal is sheer nonsense. The four powers, which are at odds on almost any subject they discuss, are, according to M. Vishinsky, to pass by unanimous agreement on all legislation enacted by the city council, on appointments, dismissals and resignations of administrative personnel, on public security and the police, on the "trade" of Berlin, on supplies, on city transport, the municipal budget, municipal taxes, on credit, prices, fuel and communications. They are also to revise the election law, determine who has the right to vote, and they are to authorize political parties and public organizations, and supervise the elections.

But is the American proposal really much more sensible? It calls for quadripartite supervision of elections, including electoral preparations and campaigns. It provides that if the four commandants cannot agree, each commandant in his own sector may take "whatever action he considers appropriate" for the "protection of the elected deputies and city officials against interference in the performance of their functions under the constitution so as to insure the independence of the city administration and the exercise of its legitimate authority." This is a blank check for chaos and confusion, making each commandant in effect the judge of what the constitution of the city means in his part of the city. It would be like trying to govern the city of Washington with Senator McCarran having the last word in Southeast Washington, Senator Kefauver in Northwest Washington, and let us say Senator Hickenlooper, to insure efficient government, in the remainder.

NOT ONLY is neither proposal likely to be accepted, but even if either, or some compromise between them, were accepted, the thing could not be made to work. Military government is in itself a hopelessly bad method of government except immediately at the end of a war. Quadripartite military government by unanimity, or by majority, or by sectors, over an extended period of time is an utter impossibility, capable only of creating confusion, misgovernment, intrigue, corruption, and conflict.

It is difficult to understand the process of thought by which we, who know and have been proclaiming our conviction that close collaboration with the Soviets is impossible, nevertheless come forward with one more paper project for collaborating with them in one city, in one confined place, about the myriad details of a municipality.

ONE WOULD suppose that after the interminable quarrels in Berlin, after the division of the city, after the blockade, and the air lift, Mr. Acheson would have come forward with something more relevant than have another blueprint for quadripartite control. Is it not the lesson of the Allied failure in Berlin that the four powers cannot collaborate? Why then pretend that we believe they can? Is it not the lesson of the blockade and the air lift that the strategic encirclement of Berlin is a threat to the peace of the world, and that the first and imperative "solution" of the Berlin problem is to end the strategic encirclement?

Why then have we discarded all the plans for ending it? And why have we come forward instead with a proposal which, whether it is accepted or rejected, perpetuates our dangerous military entanglement? Why have we not come forward with some one of the several plans for a redistribution of the occupation forces so that, at the least, we do not have to sit in Berlin surrounded by the Red Army?

Is it because we think the Soviets would not agree to a redistribution of the military forces? If that is the reason, surely it would be better to break up in Paris on that issue, which really means something to our own vital interests, to the peace of Europe, and to the Germans, than on the differences between M. Vishinsky's and Mr. Acheson's rival blueprints, for starting to do once more what both of them must know we cannot do at all.

gon labor is almost entirely in its world-famous foundries.

But here some strange contradictions set in, that only close acquaintance with the localities themselves explains. Probably a more accurate diagnosis of the Nation's labor health can be obtained from the figures of the Employment Security Bureau than from the Census.

The census report, after all, is only a miniature survey covering one person in every 2000, blown up to fit the entire 147 million population. The Employment Security Bureau's report, although it covers only the 55 to 60 per cent of the Nation's workers that are covered by unemployment insurance, is far more detailed.

Unemployment Worst in R. I.

This report showed that in March for the country as a whole there were 60 insured persons unemployed for each 1000 insured workers employed. By May 14 this had increased to 64.

The same report shows that for every 1000 insured workers employed in Rhode Island on May 14 there were 240 out of work. In March only 108 were unemployed for each 1000 in Rhode Island employed.

Rhode Island had the highest average of unemployment. But other New England States also showed up in the "bad" column, compared with March.

For each 1000 insured workers employed in the following States, the following were unemployed on the two dates, showing a rapid deterioration in this section.

State	March	May 14
Connecticut	70	85
Maine	86	135
Massachusetts	86	106
New Hampshire	97	137

D. C. Situation Stable

These charts show the happy situation in Washington, D. C. Although virtually a one-industry city, Government, the District normally has the lowest number of insured unemployed in the country. On May 14 for every 1000 employed there were only 20 unemployed — slightly fewer than in March, when there were 22 unemployed for each 1000 employed.

Jumping from the New England States across the continent, we find that the Pacific Coast has improved in the March-May period. This is in the face of continued reports that Pacific coast cities are still among the Nation's worst.

In the three ocean States the number of employed in proportion to those employed (all insured) has declined since March, as follows:

State	March	May 14
California	125	106
Oregon	111	44
Washington	101	55

Unemployment Rising Nearby

Coming closer to home, let's look at Maryland, Virginia and some Eastern and Southern States. Here unemployment has gone up slightly except in Tennessee:

State	March	May 14
Maryland	44	66
North Carolina	56	63
Virginia	38	39
South Carolina	48	67
Tennessee	94	87

There are some questions that may be answered in new investigations and new charts. For instance, an important one is what effect is lower farm prices having on general business? Reports from Moline, Ill.; Waterloo, Iowa, and some other cities wholly dependent on farm machinery manufacturing, will tell that story soon. Part of it already has been told in the dwindling sales of the mail order departments of our large mail order stores. New catalogues of both Sears Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward carry lower prices on thousands of items in an apparent effort to bolster farm sales. But their monthly and quarterly reports will be closely scrutinized.

Idle Pay Cushion Hard to Judge

How much effect unemployment insurance is having in cushioning the blow of rising unemployment is difficult to estimate. Officials quote both the Wall Street Journal and Business Week as saying that without unemployment insurance Lawrence, Mass., would be in the depths of a depression today.

Payments average $20 a week throughout the country, with New York the highest with about $26. This is estimated to be about one third the normal average earning capacity of those on the unemployed rolls.

Payments have gone up month after month as follows:

December	$79,966,000
January	103,010,000
February	115,264,000
March	152,204,000
April	136,558,000

Although there is no measuring stick to determine what effect these huge payments are having to keep the Nation's purchasing power from crashing, officials declare it must have great importance.

Payments of this size, with the bulk going into the centers where it is needed the most—the centers of greatest unemployment—can't help but be a fairly thick cushion for American economy.

Ohio Drafts Aid Act Like Depression Law

Columbus, Ohio, June 8 (AP).—Emergency legislation reminiscent of depression days was drafted today to help counties meet mounting poor relief costs, termed by Gov. Frank J. Lausche the State's No. 1 crisis.

Hamilton County Senators William H. Deddens (R.) and Maurice A. Niehaus (D.) said they will introduce a bill similar to the Carey Act, permitting county commissioners to issue bonds to pay poor relief costs.

The Governor said local relief officials were in financial difficulties in Cleveland, Franklin, Hamilton and Stark Counties, as well as other places.

State Welfare Director John H. Lamneck reported that the State on July 1 will be two million dollars behind in its 50-50 matching of local poor relief funds.

Wheeling Steel To Halt Work in Three Plants

Wheeling, W. Va., June 8 (AP).—Wheeling Steel Corp. officials said today that workers at three plants will be laid off in the near future because of the lack of business.

Abaout 1100 employes are involved in the layoffs, but 600 will be sent to other departments.

Washington Calling

The AFL In Politics

THE TAFT-HARTLEY ACT has wrought one major change that has received almost no notice. It has put the American Federation of Labor into politics and all indications are that the AFL means to stay right in the thick of the political struggle.

Childs

That the law, which was meant to take the unions out of politics, should have had this influence on the staid, hitherto nonpolitical AFL is one of life's little ironies. But there it is and Senators now debating the future of Taft-Hartley are very much aware of the eagle eye of William Green's political operators.

Labor's League for Political Education was created by the AFL to get around the T-H prohibition against unions spending their own funds for political activity. In a big brownstone house that was occupied until a few months ago by one of the last of Washington's cave dwellers the league is fairly bursting out with politics.

The league's director is Joseph Keenan, long on leave of absence as president of the Chicago Federation of Labor. On Keenan's staff are a group of bright young men and women using radio, a new weekly paper, films and every other resource to put over the AFL point of view.

THEY RECENTLY started a radio series now being carried on more than 160 stations throughout the country. Some 70 members of Congress, considered "right" by AFL standards, are contributing to this series with the advice and help of the league's able young experts.

But this is merely the surface. The real concentration is on grass-roots organization in almost every congressional district in the Nation, and the goal is to get the labor vote registered as near 100 per cent as possible.

Representatives of the league from every State have been called to Washington for a meeting on July 19 and 20. At that meeting the groundwork will be laid for the 1950 campaign. The league expects to play a far more important part in next year's contest than it did last fall when it was a new organization.

But looking back on the '48 campaign, those who run the league are still inclined to think it was a good job. Of the 172 members of Congress elected with active AFL support, only two have "gone bad." The test, of course, is the House vote on the Wood bill, which the Republican-Dixiecrat coalition offered as a substitute for the Administration labor bill.

Taft-Hartley is the one question on which all the diverse AFL unions can be united. But labor issues are far from being the sole preoccupation of the league.

AN IMPORTANT objective for 1950 is to try to make the farmer see that his interests are essentially with labor. The working pattern here is the campaign the league waged last fall in Minnesota against Senator Joseph Ball, Republican, who was badly defeated by Minneapolis' Mayor Hubert Humphrey, Democrat. In Minnesota the league sent to every farm family in the State a copy of Ball's voting record on farm bills, which underscored the insistently repeated statement that Ball was as "wrong" on farm issues as on labor.

Significantly, Keenan will be one of the speakers at the Midwest conference of Democrats from 16 States to be held in Des Moines, Iowa, on Sunday and Monday. The theme to be stressed at that meeting will be the common stake of farmer and laborer in the Truman Fair Deal.

The league is directing efforts to come together with such organizations of farmers as the cooperative groups formerly under the Rural Electrification Administration Law. Farmers are being told that when their representatives voted against rent control, presumably because farmers wouldn't care what was happening in the cities, they were voting to give more of the consumer's dollar to the landlord, who is the farmer's sharpest competitor.

The first issue of the new paper, the League Reporter, suggests that Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper's attack on atomic Chairman David Lilienthal was inspired by the power lobby. Hickenlooper comes up for reelection in Iowa next year.

As Ball was the symbol in '48, so Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio will be target No. 1 next fall. Plans for the Ohio campaign are being carefully prepared. And nothing like this could have happened if it had not been for the Taft-Hartley Act.

U. N. Reports Production Still Rising

Lake Success, N. Y., June 8 (U.P.).—The United Nations monthly bulletin of statistics disclosed today that industrial production continued to rise in most of the world during the first quarter of 1949 despite increases in unemployment.

The major exception noted was the United States, where a rise in unemployment was accompanied by a fall in industrial production.

Wholesale prices fell in most countries but, again with the United States as a major exception, were still above those of a year ago and had not been generally reflected in the cost of living indices, which in most cases were above the level of a year ago.

The report showed industrial production rose in 12 countries making reports to the U. N., fell in 10 and was unchanged in 2.

Unemployment increased in 8 reporting countries, decreased in 16 and was unchanged in 1.

Rep. Roosevelt Plans Discussion On Israel

Tel Aviv, June 8 (NYHT).—After a week's inspection of Israel, Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., said today he intended to meet as soon as possible with President Truman to report on the internal conditions in the new state and on political factors affecting the peaceful settlement of the Palestinian war.

The young New York Congressman said he expected to be in Washington next Wednesday to take the oath of office in the House of Representatives.

Picture slides on Korea will be shown to members of Phi Delta Theta fraternity at the group's regular weekly luncheon at noon today at Olmsted's Restaurant. The slides will be shown by Nelson H. Fritz, who served in Korea with the United States Military Government.

Laborites Plan to Increase Controls, Leaders Tell Them

Blackpool, England, June 8 (AP).—Two cabinet members told the Labor Party conference today the government's socialist program will be expanded with further controls over industry if the party wins the next general election.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison said the wartime controls over industry and manpower, which expire in 1950, will be made into a "permanent and revised" law.

Private industry "will be pulled up sharp by a Labor government" for antisocial conduct, Morrison declared.

Bevan Denounces Cartels

Health Minister Aneurin Bevan charged that British private enterprise was "tangled and frustrated by monopolies, cartels and price rings.

"We are going to make an attack upon all those restrictions that prevent private enterprise from doing its job," Bevan said. "We are going to take power to compete (with private business)."

The two ministers received ovations from the 1480 delegates.

They spoke during debate on the party's platform for the general election, which is expected to take place next May or June.

A preliminary platform already has been written by the party's executive committee.

It calls for nationalization of six more businesses—sugar making, cement manufacture, industrial life insurance, "all suitable" mineral resources, water supply and meat wholesaling and storage.

Protest Management

Rank and file delegates protested about the way some state-owned industries are being run. They protested the lack of worker participation in the management, high salaries for executives and lack of wage increases.

Nationalized industries include coal mining, railways, gas and electricity and inland transport. A bill to nationalize iron and steel is pending in the House of Lords.

Several delegates demanded state ownership also for shipbuilding, chemical making, iron foundries and farming land.

War Minister Emanuel Shinwell, former chairman of the party, told the conference the government has not abandoned its idea of eventually taking over the land. But he said it would be "unwise to throw a spanner and disturb the farming community" now when all-out food production is needed.

Breakdown Patients Get Reassurance

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, June 8.—A heartening report for persons who believe themselves on the verge of a nervous breakdown was presented here today by a Boston research team.

Four Boston physicians reported their findings of a followup study of 173 patients treated for nervous breakdowns before 1938. The whereabouts or present condition of two of that number could not be ascertained, but of the rest, they reported:

1. One hundred and fifty-three living patients, of whom 56 per cent were in good health, 35 per cent in fair health, and 9 per cent doing poorly.

2. Eighteen had died in the 20-to-25-year interval between onset of the illness and the followup survey.

Deaths Fewer Than Average

Concerning the latter, the investigators observed:

"No characteristic cause of death was suggested for this disorder (nervous breakdown) by the information recorded on the 18 death certificates. Fewer of these patients died than would have been expected to, according to vital statistics mortality rates."

The patients had what is medically termed neurocirculatory asthenia, often called anxiety neurosis, "soldiers' heart," or neurasthenia. It is characterized by breathlessness, giddiness, sense of fatigue, pain in the chest and palpitation of the heart.

The special survey results were outlined in a joint paper by Drs. E. O. Wheeler, Paul Dudley White, E. W. Reed and M. E. Cohen, presented before the section on internal medicine in the ninety-eighth meeting of the American Medical Association.

Reassurance Used

The report said the patients had little treatment aside from simple reassurance.

"The course of the disorder did not differ from some published reports on similar patients treated with various measures, such as prolonged psychotherapy and psychoanalysis," the physicians observed.

The disorder, they said, did not progress into other serious psychiatric diseases such as schizophrenia, depression or hysteria.

In another study, two doctors associated with Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., found a close tie-in between menstrual irregularity and infertility. They urged treatment of ovarian disorders to improve childbirths.

The study and recommendation was made by Drs. Lois A. Day and Philiip L. Smith, who traced the record of 425 young married women who came to the clinic because of menstrual disturbances.

High Rate of Sterility

Of these, they said, 237 or 55.8 per cent had been unable to conceive in an average period of six years. The other 188 had 339 pregnancies combined, but produced only 126 living children or less than 1 per patient.

"It is evident from this study that this group of women with menstrual irregularities had a high incidence of sterility," they said.

"When the patients conceived, they had abortions (miscarriages), ectopic (out of normal place) pregnancies, and premature termination of pregnancies. Pregnancy was accompanied by a high incidence of toxemia, prolonged labor, still births and malformed infants."

Suggested treatments to "assure a better seed bed" included use of estrogen, thyroid or stimulating X-ray therapy to the pituitary and ovaries, fewer pelvic operations for lower abdominal or pelvic pain, hygienic living and diet.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 8 (NYHT.).—The American Medical Association today announced it will sponsor a national health conference this summer or early fall to implement the association's 12-point public health program.

As for compulsory health insurance, today's report, like all other previous AMA statements on the subject, made the position of the doctors crystal-clear: they are opposed to it.

The report said the association supports the following moves:

1. Establishment of an independent national health agency, with a physician in charge.

2. Establishment of a national science foundation.

3. Rapid extension of voluntary hospital and medical care insurance.

4. Establishment of a medical care authority in each State to administer and distribute Government funds.

5. Extension of hospital and diagnostic facilities under suitable control.

6. Provision for establishing public health coverage for the country.

7. Increased safeguards for the public against charlatans in mental hygiene and establishment of necessary mental hygiene clinics.

8. Continued and expanded public health education by the AMA, State and county societies.

9. Furtherance of the care of the chronically ill through support of the Commission on Chronic Illness.

10. Protection of the veteran in his rights to medical care of the highest quality.

11. Continuation of the activities of the Council on Industrial Health and cooperation with the National Safety Council and other organizations in an effort to reduce accidents.

12. Encouragement of local and private support of medical education and use of Government aid only if shown absolutely essential.

Patrol Wagon Pickpocket

Columbus, Ohio, June 8 (U.P.).—While being hauled to city jail early today in a patrol wagon, John Kidwell, 42, Burkesville, Ky., picked the pocket of a fellow prisoner of $4, police reported. Kidwell was being taken in on a drunkenness charge.

Doctor to Unify Medical Services

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
DR. RAYMOND B. ALLEN, president of the University of Washington, will direct the unification of Army, Navy and Air Force medical services. He is expected in the Capital July 1, and plans to have the job completed by October 1, when he will turn it over to another person and return home

House Passes Bill to Create Central U. S. Buying Agency

The House yesterday passed a bill creating a new Office of General Services, which would take over from a number of Federal agencies the job of buying all supplies for the civilian branch of the Government.

A part of the Hoover commission's recommendations for reorganizing the executive branch, the bill now goes to the Senate, where the Executive Expenditures Committee has approved a similar measure.

A second commission proposal, which would permit the President to reorganize executive departments, subject to congressional veto, is deadlocked in a Senate-House conference committee.

The bill passed by voice vote in the House would lump several Government agencies employing 60,000 persons into one bureau, which would buy everything from paper clips to building lots. It also would control storage space for supplies and records.

Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.), chairman of the Executive Expenditure subcommittee that handled the bill, estimated it would save the Government "hundreds of millions" by wiping out duplication.

The Office of General Services would absorb the War Assets Administration, the Federal Works Agency, the Public Roads Administration, the Treasury Department's Bureau of Supply, the National Archives and a number of minor agencies.

Iron Curtain Envoys Restricted by Turkey

Ankara, Turkey, June 8 (U.P.).—The Turkish government has imposed travel restrictions on diplomats from eastern Europe which will keep them within the city limits of Ankara and Istanbul, it was revealed today.

Special permission will be required for travel outside these two cities.

The move was interpreted as a reprisal for restrictions on diplomats in Iron Curtain countries, and for last week's attempt by Soviet Embassy officials to kidnap a Russian refugee.

Tuck May Seek Regional School Plan Amendment

Richmond, Va., June 8 (AP).—Gov. William Tuck today indicated he may ask for a constitutional amendment, if necessary, so that Virginia may participate fully in the Southern regional education program.

In a letter to the program's board of control at Atlanta, the Governor pointed out that the State constitution presents "a legal impediment" to full participation. But he promised to take steps "at the earliest possible moment" to see that it is removed.

Tuck explained in the letter that under the Virginia constitution (Section 141) "no appropriation of public funds shall be made for any school or institution of learning not owned or exclusively controlled by the State or some political subdivision thereof."

Alexandrians Ask Nonpartisan Vote

Revision of Alexandria's City Charter to allow nonpartisan local elections was urged last night at a public hearing of the Alexandria Charter Commission.

The hearing was one of two the commission is holding this week to receive suggestions from the public on revising the city's 17-year-old charter.

The next hearing will be Friday at 8 p. m. in the City Council Chamber at City Hall, where last night's hearing was held.

The Alexandria League of Women Voters suggested the change to nonpartisan elections on the ground local elections should be decided on issues rather than party membership.

Recommendations Listed

The league felt the change would bring out qualified Republican and independent candidates who now shy away from running because of what it called a tradition in Alexandria that the city's Democratic primary settles the election.

The league also recommended:

1. A broad grant of power be given the City Council rather than cluttering up the charter with details;

2. Appointment by the city manager of the city auditor, city assessor and city collector;

3. Establishment of a department of finance.

4. Changing the start of the city's fiscal year from January 1 to July 1;

5. Long-range budgeting for capital improvements;

6. An advisory referendum on the revised charter before it is submitted to the Virginia General Assembly for enactment.

Mayoralty Change Urged

The North Ridge Citizen Association suggested (1) delegating much rezoning authority to the City Planning Commission to save the City Council time and (2) holding referendums on any proposed bond issue.

The Chamber of Commerce recommended the City Council elect its own mayor

Truman Expected To Name Canaday Munitions Chief

President Truman is expected soon to name Ward M. Canaday, Toledo automobile executive and developer of the Willys Jeep, as chairman of the Munitions Board.

Official sources reported that Canaday will take over the job of coordinating munitions buying among the three armed services about June 24. The present chairman, Donald F. Carpenter, is resigning.

Canaday has been working with Carpenter since May 20, when he joined the Munitions Board as a "consultant" to learn the ropes. His duties will include the planning of armament production for any war emergency.

Arlington Group to Pick U. S. Workers for Primary

A "town meeting" of Arlington independents to pick a candidate for the County Board will choose among three, possibly four, Federal employes.

The meeting is scheduled for June 15 at 8:15 p. m. in Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, 816 S. Fillmore st.

The three who definitely will seek the independents' nomination are Miss Margaret E. Martin, 1118 N. Kenilworth st.; Robert Cox, 2518 S. Second st., budget officer for the Federal Communications Commission and a member of the executive committee of the Arlington Civic Federation, and H. Herbert Howe, 1313 N. Wayne st., a mathematician for the Coast and Geodetic Survey and president of the Home Protective Association.

The candidate in doubt is Mrs. Arthur F. Souther, of 1220 N. Quinn st., who heads the selective service records branch of the Army Surgeon General's office. Mrs. Souther paid her poll tax June 2, records show, but May 7 was the deadline.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has ruled that political activity by Federal employes in connection with the "town meeting" is permissible under the Hatch Act and Civil Service rules.

Mental Illness Is Made Divorce Ground By Bill

Representative John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.) introduced a bill yesterday to make permanent and incurable mental illness a ground for divorce in the District.

Under the bill, divorce action divorce action could be filed against a spouse who had been confined to an institution for at least three years. Medical testimony would be required that the ailment was permanent and incurable.

Hawaiian Strike Put Up to Truman

Or Face 'Steps'

Halt Strike, Britain Says To Dock Men

London, June 8 (U.P.).—The British government today warned dockworkers striking in sympathy with Canadian seamen to go back to work or it would "take all necessary steps" to unload food cargoes rotting aboard strike-bound vessels.

An estimated 8500 dock workers were on strike at Liverpool alone although a few returned to their jobs today. Seventy vessels, including 50 seagoing ships, were tied up in the harbor.

There were similar strikes at Bristol and Avonmouth. At Bristol troops were used to unload grain and flour from the Canadian freighter Montreal City.

In another dispute, 1350 freight handlers at the Nine Elms yards here decided to abandon their go-slow movement and work on normal schedules beginning at midnight tonight. The men started their go-slow strike for a $2 weekly raise.

Joseph R. Farrington, Hawaiian delegate to Congress, asked President Truman yesterday to use all powers of his office to halt a longshoremen's strike in Hawaii.

He said he also will ask Congress to enact a special law dealing with shipping stoppages to Territories because, Farrington said, the President doubts he has adequate authority.

The strike has tied up Hawaiian shipping since May 1.

Farrington talked over the situation with President Truman and told newsmen on leaving the White House:

"The White House is very actively interested, but I got no assurances that any action could be taken. The President has grave doubts that he has adequate authority to deal with it."

Hawaiian Economy Squeezed by Strike

Honolulu, June 8 (AP).—Thirty-nine days of waterfront strike squeezed virtually every business and home in Hawaii today. The end was not in sight.

CIO longshoremen struck the islands' six ports May 1. They wanted to boost their pay 32 cents an hour to $1.72.

Two U. S. Government mediators, the territorial Governor and mounting public pressure have failed to narrow this gap. Both sides have quit talking. Each is out to wear down the other.

Date for C&O Strike Chosen But Not Revealed

Richmond, Va., June 8 (AP).—Union leaders chose, but kept secret, today the date on which they will call a strike of 1700 firemen and enginemen against the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

H. E. Gilbert, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said the date was set after conferences by telephone with D. B. Robertson, international head of the union, in Cleveland.

Meantime, the National Mediation Board in Washington prepared machinery to attempt a settlement of the dispute, involving some 600 grievances.

Bay State Bus Workers Vote to Continue Strike

Boston, June 8 (AP).—Bus workers of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. voted today to continue a strike which for six days has deprived an area of 500,000 population of normal transportation.

The vote came on a proposal to return to work pending arbitration if wage differences between the AFL Bus Drivers Union and the management in negotiations for a new contract. The union sought a 15 cents an hour increase, the company a 10 cents an hour pay cut.

said his own proposal would be "more desirable" because (1) the President would hesitate to proclaim a national emergency unless it was truly national in scope and (2) unions would hesitate to call a work stoppage that would put the whole matter before Congress for action.

Earlier, Senator Taft opened his attack on the President's bill with the blunt charge that Administration Democrats seek repeal for political reasons.

Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) replied for the repeal advocates. Pepper called the Taft-Hartley Act a "symbol of infamy." He said it is "just a question of time" before all of its provisions go off the books, even though votes may be lacking for complete repeal now.

Taft told the Senate he had no objections to "technical repeal" of the law named for him, providing the new act "retains the main principles of the Taft-Hartley Act."

Taft charged Democrats "forced" their bill through the Labor Committee by a party line vote without permitting any changes. He said the Democrats who recently joined with an equal number of Republicans in a compromise effort "hope to make it more like the Taft-Hartley Act in order to secure votes for its support."

Contending a majority of the legislators who ran for Congress last fall were opposed to repeal, but were elected anyway, Taft told the Senate:

"There may be a mandate on the President to request repeal, but there is certainly no mandate on Congress."

Morse Commends Ives' Plan

Replying in detail to each point in the Taft substitute, Senator Pepper called the present law a "badge of degradation" and charged Taft is opposed to the best interests of "worthy working men and women."

Opposing any change in the Administration's Thomas bill, Pepper disputed Taft's statement the present law and his substitute seek equality for labor and management. He said they were intended chiefly to "regulate" labor unions and would result in more labor strife.

Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), who has aligned himself with the bipartisan group of eight Senators sponsoring a 5-point compromise, took the floor after Ives introduced his own compromise plan. Morse said he "liked" Ives' suggestion and "commended" it to the Senate.

100 million dollars worth of construction in this vicinity, was "hopelessly deadlocked."

Meanwhile, Conciliator Holden will seek today to obtain a settlement between 2500 building laborers and the builders. The laborers went out on strike a day after the carpenters. Informally, the building laborers have let it be known they'd be willing to settle for 15 cents more an hour.

The builders have offered to extend the laborers' old wage rates of $1.35 an hour.

There was no action at all yesterday in the strike of 100 salesmen-drivers against four pie-making companies here. The drivers, who are asking $4 a week raise in pay, went out Friday.

Meanwhile, the Central Labor Union, assembly of AFL locals in the District, yesterday announced its official support for all three strikes. The announcement declared that "violence would not be condoned and picketing is being discouraged."

Montgomery Urges Defeat of Reds Now

London, June 8 (U.P.).—British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery warned tonight that communism is threatening western Europe's way of life and must be defeated now before it leads the world into a shooting war.

In a speech before a youth organization, Montgomery said:

"It is conceivable that this cold war struggle may one day lead to a shooting war. If you read the papers, you would say it was very probable. I would say it is not impossible."

Lewis Suggests Miners Quit

Press: "Many coal operators will be glad to see a shutdown. It has been all outgo and little income recently because of supply backlogs." The United Press reported similar reaction by other operators.

All UMW contracts expire June 30 and the miners policy has long been one of "no contract, no work." Yesterday's call for a week's layoff was interpreted here as a move to place the union in a strategic position for bargaining. Production lost during next week will be added to that lost when the miners take their annual 10-day holiday beginning June 24.

In recent years Lewis has called out his miners a number of times for "mourning" periods and the like, which he insisted were not strikes. Twice he and the UMW have been heavily fined for contempt of court in instances arising from walkouts.

In 1946, when the mines were still under Government control, he was enjoined from striking against the Government and was fined when he disregarded the injunction. The second time, in 1948, he was enjoined under the Taft-Hartley Act and merely notified the miners that their contract was not in effect. The court held that under UMW policy this amounted to a strike order.

Yesterday's letter, couched in Lewis' customary vigorous and sometimes ponderous language, said the only work which would be done next week would be that "essential to the protection of human life and property." General work, he wrote, would be resumed June 20.

Overproduction "Folly"

"The magnificent production efforts of the Mineworkers during the current year," he declared, "have created menacing instability in the mining industry. Results are apparent in more than adequate tonnage for the domestic and export market; irregular and broken working time affecting some hundreds of thousands of men, while other mines' work steadily; economic inequities affecting the Mineworkers, and a general condition of instability throughout the whole industry.

Inescapably, continuation of this folly will eventuate in irreparable damage to our basic industry and the national economy."

The UMW, he wrote, was unwilling "further to jeopardize" the security of the industry and the miners and the "collective bargaining structure." Therefore, he declared, the miners were "required again to protect affirmatively the human and property values inherent in the coal-mining industry."

Some friends of the Taft-Hartley Act predicted that Lewis' latest action would spell sure defeat for the Administration drive to repeal the act.

Senator Ellender (D., La.) said the Lewis order "ought to be a good plug to kill the Administration labor bill and continue the Taft-Hartley Act without change."

Ellender said the development "probably will kill all moves to amend the Taft-Hartley Act."

"It has been my contention all along," Ellender said, "that it has been men of the caliber of Lewis who have caused Congress to enact such legislation."

Carpenters Feel It's a 10-Cent Increase Now

ing approximately the same period by 72 per cent. Thus, say the carpenters, their wages merely have been chasing on the heels of soaring living costs.

The 10 cents an hour, insist the carpenters, would just about equalize the price-wage balance.

Wages Leveling Off

There's a second good reason for the fight, in the eyes of the District carpenters. There are indications that the construction industry is softening up, at least in other sections of the country. As a result, carpenters, along with the other building mechanics and laborers, have been signing 1949 contracts at 1948 rates.

This stop-where-you-are trend is still minor compared to the stronger trend toward another boost in pay, but the leveling off of wage scales, already affecting such metropolitan areas as New York and St. Louis, is significiant, and—from the local carpenters' point of view, ominous.

The carpenters feel this well may be the last year for some time in which they can obtain a wage increase. After that, if the "disinflation" continues, the carpenters may have to battle to hold the line against wage cuts.

Getting Less Work

There's another factor troubling the carpenters. Although the hourly rate has gone up, there's been a drop in weekly earnings because the Nation's carpenters have been getting less work.

Bureau of Labor Statistics' figures show that whereas the average carpenter earned $67.98 for a 37.9-hour week in 1947, he took home $64.51 for a 35.7-hour week in March, 1949.

Yet, on a national basis, the average page rate for carpenters in 1948 was $1.79 an hour, as against $1.80 in March, 1949.

There's a psychological reason, too, for the carpenters' stand. At $2.40 an hour, the carpenter working a 40-hour week earns $96. A 10-cent an hour raise will bring him into the select circle of those workers making $100 a week.

Also, the carpenters point to the fact that, despite the leveling off tendency, carpenters in numerous cities, have obtained modest pay increases this spring. They argue further that only recently wage increases have been won by the District painters, 12 cents an hour; lathers, 25 cents an hour, and electricians, 10 cents an hour.

Competitive Pressure

Thus, from the point of view of union leadership, there's the competitive pressure to win a wage increase for membership.

However, as in all labor disputes, there's another picture in the carpenters' walkout.

The builders apparently feel as keenly as the carpenters over the issue of 10 cents an hour, since, like the carpenters, they also must suffer financial loss.

Every day of idleness adds to the cost of financing a construction project. Rent is lost for each day beyond scheduled completion date of a new apartment house, hotel, office building, or other rental property. And there are deadlines to be met. Some builders may have to pay large sums for failure to fulfill their contracts by specified dates.

Yet, for the time being at least, the builders are willing to stand the loss in order to remain firm against the carpenters' demands.

The builders argue that other construction costs, such as materials and services, either have leveled off or are turning downward, therefore why should labor costs keep moving up?

The contractors meet the carpenters' cost of living argument with the assertion that many items in the cost of living already have reached their postwar peaks and are on the decline.

Comparisons in Pay

Carpenters in this area, the builders observe, with a working rate of $2.40 an hour, get higher pay than carpenters in Richmond, $1.80; Baltimore, $2.20; Philadelphia, $2.25. The $2.40 an hour, the builders contend, compares favorably with the national average rate of $2.24 for carpenters.

Furthermore, the builders say, there's plenty of steady work available here for carpenters, unlike other cities. Housing construction dropped off here considerably in the first three months of this year, but union carpenters are employed chiefly in nonhousing construction, which is booming now, compared to 1948.

The builders feel that if they give way to the wage increase demand of the carpenters, they will have to yield to the building laborers, who also are on strike, asking 15 cents more an hour; and to a dozen other AFL crafts, with which contracts already have expired or will soon run out.

The issue in the carpenters' strike is only 10 cents, but it adds up to much more than a dime.

Phone Union Asks $25,000

A local union that recently affiliated with the CIO yesterday charged the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. here with breach of contract and demanded $25,000 damages, $2093 in withheld union dues and an injunction.

The union is Washington Division No. 36, Communications Workers of America.

According to the complaint filed in District Court, the C. & P. had denied the union rights under a collective bargaining agreement and claims that there is a "question of representation" since the union affiliated with the CIO.

The union claims there is no difference in its status or autonomy since the affiliation with the international group.

Asking the court to determine its rights, the CWA petitions for a decree to force the C&P to honor the bargaining contract, which is dated May 22, 1948. It is claimed that since May of this year the company has withheld dues collected by it for the union and maintains that recognition ceased May 11.

Envoy to Colombia To Get Degree At Georgetown

Willard L. Beaulac, United States Ambassador to Colombia, will receive an honorary degree of doctor of laws from Georgetown University at commencement exercises Monday afternoon.

At his request, his name was omitted from the commencement list because he did not expect to be able to leave his post. However, he now expects to attend the exercises.

Beaulac, one of seven who will receive honorary degrees, was a member of the first graduating class of Georgetown Foreign Service School, in 1921. Because of his alphabetical position in the class, he was the first student to receive a degree from the school.

Girl 'Imprisoned' By Killer Suspect

Pittsburgh, June 8 (U.P.).—Mary Ashton, slender, 20-year-old laundry worker, today said she was forced to live in terror for a month as the prisoner of a youth accused of slashing and beating another woman to death with a broken beer bottle.

Police arrested Joseph Yeager, 22, son of the president of a Pittsburgh packing house, and charged him with the hotel-room murder of Betty Donovan, 32, last May 5.

The body of the victim was found in a cheap hotel room, nude, her face slashed, and the imprint of a rubber heel on her bosom. A $10 bill was beneath the body.

The Ashton girl, who said she had lived with Yeager for a year, told police she suspected he was the slayer from the time he walked into their room the morning after the killing. He carried a blood-spattered woman's purse and clothing, she said.

She said Yeager made her quit her job, forbade her to leave the house without him and threatened her life if she went to police.

"I'll do the same to you as I did to her," he quoted Yeager as saying.

Yeager was arrested early today. Police said he admitted evidence pointed to him, but insisted, "I can't believe I'd do that."

He said that after reading of the slaying, "I assumed it must have been me that did it."

Yeager's father, Wilbert M. Yeager, president of Henry Lohrey Co., hired counsel to defend his son. According to Miss Ashton, Yeager had been estranged from his parents since he returned from the Army two years ago, but they had helped support him.

Helicopter Record Set By Army At 21,220 Ft.

New York, June 8 (U.P.).—A new world's helicopter altitude record of 21,220 feet has been set by an Army pilot, the National Aeronautic Association announced today.

Charles S. Logsdon of the NAA said the new record was made by Capt. Hubert D. Gaddis, assigned to Army Field Forces at Fort Bragg, N. C. The record was set in a Sikorsky S-52-1 helicopter over Bridgeport, Conn., on May 21.

Couple and Son Accused of Shoplifting

Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Crown of Derwood, Md., pleaded innocent yesterday in Municipal Court to a charge of shoplifting Monday with the assistance of their 13-year-old son.

Jury trial was set for March 24 for the parents with bond of $600. A charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor against the couple has been referred to Juvenile Court.

Detectives at Sears Roebuck, Wisconsin ave. and Albemarle st., said that they observed the husband, wife, and son lift articles off the counter and carry them out in shopping bags.

Taken, it was charged, were an alarm clock, a lady's slip, men's shirts, boys' shorts, girls' undergarments, talcum powder, hair oil and a baseball bat. Total value of the goods was placed at $42.99.

Safe With $2812 Recovered

A 500-pound safe containing $2812 was taken from the Oxon Run Inn in Oxon Hill, Md., early yesterday but Prince Georges County police later recovered the safe 15 miles away with its contents intact.

Police arrested Lee C. Higdon, 22, a coin machine operator, of 5804 Baltimore blvd., Hyattsville, and a 15-year-old Hyattsville boy in connection with the theft.

County police said Higdon told them he and his companion broke into the place, which is known to its patrons as "the Bucket of Blood," on Indianhead hwy. near the District line, after it had closed.

The pair, police said, got the safe outside and into a Crosley car, then drove about 15 miles to a wooded area near Accokeek where they hid the safe in the woods.

Theft of the safe was discovered when the inn was opened for business in the morning. Some time before noon, police got a tip and five scout cars were placed on the Indianhead hwy. and roads leading into Accokeek.

At about noon, Lieut. Elon A. Turner of the county police arrested Higdon as he drove by in a truck rented earlier at a rental agency in Washington.

Taken to Upper Marlboro, police said, Higdon admitted the safe robbery and implicated the 15-year-old boy. The boy's father surrendered him to county police at Hyattsville.

Police recovered the safe. It had not been opened.

Higdon was charged with storebreaking and will have a preliminary hearing Friday in Upper Marlboro Police Court. The boy was released in his father's custody pending a Juvenile Court appearance Friday.

'Lonely Hearts' Murder Couple Lose Appeal Here

By the United Press

Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson yesterday turned down an appeal for delay of the murder trial of the "lonely hearts" couple in Bronx, N. Y., Supreme Court Thursday.

Jackson denied an application for Supreme Court intervention filed by Herbert E. Rosenberg, attorney for Raymond Fernandez and Mrs. Martha Beck.

Rosenberg made a last-minute effort to prevent trial of the couple, who face the death penalty if convicted of murder. They are charged with murdering an Albany, N. Y., widow on Long Island. The couple was extradicted from Michigan, which does not have capital punishment. They were charged with slaying a mother and her child in Grand Rapids.

47 Naturalized In Alexandria; Many Brides

A record group of 47 persons—a majority of them war brides—were naturalized as new citizens yesterday at Alexandria District Court.

Most were young women whose uniformed husbands and small children packed the courtroom to watch them take the oath of allegiance. Only eight men were in the group, which represented 21 countries.

The new citizens were welcomed by representatives of the Dr. Elisha Dick Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. They were also addressed by the Rev. Michael J. McDermott of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Alexandria, and the Rev. Wilbur S. Hogevoll of the First Christian Church of Alexandria.

Crack Down On Vendors, Police Told

A crackdown on vendors who ply their trade in the District on Sundays was ordered yesterday by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett.

Police regulations permit vendors to work from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. on weekdays but forbid them from working at all on Sundays.

In his order to all commanding officers, Major Barrett said that vendors have become increasingly busy on Sundays in the last few months, so much so that they have become "a positive nuisance."

The pleasant weather and the large number of tourists visiting Washington have made Sunday vending more profitable, Barrett noted. They work especially around parks and memorials, he said.

His order cited ice cream, balloon and other types of vendors. He later said his order also applied to street photographers and souvenir venders.

Barrett said the devices used by some of the vendors to attract attention (such as the ice cream trucks which ring bells) are not only an annoyance but also create a hazard in that children dart across the streets through heavy Sunday traffic to make purchases.

"Proper police action will be taken to remedy this situation," Barrett ordered.

Judge Denies Bar to Search During Arrest

Annapolis, Md., June 3 (AP).—No Maryland statute absolutely requires a warrant for incidental searches made during a lawful arrest, Judge Charles Markell of the Court of Appeals said today.

Judge Markell filed a dissenting opinion in a Montgomery County case that the court majority had ordered tried all over again.

Judge William L. Henderson concurred with Markell, but they were outvoted 4-2 in a decision handed down last month.

The court directed a new trial for Mrs. Lillian C. Johnson, 501 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring. She had been convicted in Montgomery County Court of running a disorderly house, possessing lottery slips and selling liquor without a license.

Mrs. Johnson's lawyers contended the evidence should not have been allowed since police had only a warrant charging her with operating a disorderly house.

A Toast to June . . . THE CHAMPAGNE MONTH!

Ah June, month of romance, delight of young and old . . . and by tradition the Champagne Month. In its honor (and for your pleasure) we proudly present the cream of all the thousands of party recipes . . . recipes that we have garnered from top authorities . . . and that have won and kept highest acclaim through the years. Clip them and save them for your next party . . . and remember Plain Old Pearson's for the most of the best for the least!

CHAMPAGNE PUNCH No. 1

This is for those who savor fruit flavoring. It originated in Charleston, South Carolina, back in the very infancy of our Nation—and it still stands supreme in its class.

Peach Brandy, 1 fifth—(We suggest Hiram Walker's liquor, 60 proof.)
Jamaica Rum, 1 tenth—(We suggest Myer's, imported from Jamaica, 97 proof.)
Dry Champagne, 5 fifths—(We suggest Grand Bouquet domestic, bulk process, 12% by vol.)
Cognac Brandy, 1 fifth—(We suggest Exshaw, imported from France, 84 proof.)
Sugar 2½ cups
Fresh pineapple, 1, ripe, sliced, cored and chopped fine.
Lemons, 6 (or limes, 10), sliced thinly.
Green tea, 1 fifth.
Club soda, 2 fifths.

Slice lemon and pineapple and marinate, tightly covered over night. At noon add rum, tea, sugar and peach brandy. Just before serving put in bowl with large cake of ice, add champagne, then soda.

CHAMPAGNE COCKTAIL No. 1

A recipe reputedly brought from India, land of the fabulous and exotic. You may alter the designated size at your discretion—but be sure to retain in proper proportions.

Use the largest chilled goblet obtainable, at least 14-oz. Into this turn 2 jiggers of well-chilled cognac—(we suggest Exshaw, imported from France, 84 proof)—drop in a lump of sugar doused with Angostura bitters, fill with chilled dry champagne—(we suggest Grand Bouquet, domestic, bulk process, 12% by vol.) and garnish with a spiral of green lime peel.

There you have it, the father perhaps of all champagne cocktails

Plain Old PEARSON'S Liquor Stock Exchange 2436 WISCONSIN AVENUE, N. W.

Special

Grand Bouquet American bulk Process champagne, Extra dry, 12% by volume, fifths (eight generous servings)
(We reserve the right to limit quantities)

CHAMPAGNE COCKTAIL No. 2

Again we confess that the recipe should perhaps be adjusted IN SIZE at your discretion—but please do not alter proportions.

Fill a large 16-oz. thin goblet with finely cracked ice. In the center place a lump of sugar well saturated with Angostura bitters, then add 2 jiggers of good cognac—(we suggest Exshaw, imported from France, 84 proof), then fill with chilled champagne—(we suggest Grand Bouquet, domestic, bulk process, 12% by vol.), finally float, very carefully, on the surface 2 teaspoons of Green Chartreuse—(a liquer, imported from France, 110 proof).

No fruit, no garnish, but it is cooling, refreshing and a delight to the eye and palate.

Plain Old PEARSON'S Liquor Stock Exchange 2436 WISCONSIN AVENUE, N. W.

CHAMPAGNE PUNCH No. 2

For those who dislike fruit flavoring (or who prefer the drier types of punches). The finest of the so-called "straight" punches, a recipe from an old and honored Virginia family.

Champagne, 8 fifths (We suggest Grand Bouquet, domestic, bulk process, 12% by vol.).
Sauterne, 1 fifth—(We suggest Christian Bros. [Calif.] or Taylor's [N. Y.], 12% by vol.)
Cognac, 1 fifth—(We suggest Exshaw, imported from France, 84 proof.)
Benedictine, 1 tenth—(An imported liquer, 86 proof.)
Cointreau, 1 tenth—(Famous liquer, 80 proof.)
Dry Sherry, 1 fifth—(We suggest Christian Bros. [Calif.] or Taylor's [N. Y.], 20% by vol.)
Club Soda, 4 fifths.
Heavy syrup, ½ pint.

Mix still ingredients in advance. Just before serving pour over a large cake of ice, followed by champagne and white rock. Allow ten minutes to chill before serving.

Plain Old PEARSON'S Liquor Stock Exchange 2436 WISCONSIN AVENUE, N. W.

FISH HOUSE PUNCH

This is America's most famous punch, at least it is known by name and reputation to more people than any other. There are thousands of versions, but this recipe has come from 1732—over 200 years—unchanged and unimproved for the simple reason that it could not be improved upon.

Jamaica Rum, 2 fifths—(We suggest Myers, imported from Jamaica, 97 proof.)
Cognac, 1 fifth—(We suggest Exshaw, imported from France, 84 proof.)
Loaf sugar, 2/3 lb.
Water (spring water, the recipe says!), 2 fifths.
Lemon or lime juice, 1 fifth—(lime is more delicate).
Peach Brandy, 1 jigger—(We suggest Hiram Walker's liquer, 60 proof).

Put sugar in bowl, add enough water to dissolve, then add balance, stirring diligently. Add the largest possible lump of ice and allow to stand undisturbed for at least an hour.

ECA Spending 4 Billion Less Than Figured

NYHT News Service

Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, told Congress yesterday the European Recovery Program will end, as scheduled, June 30, 1952, and will have spent by then four billion dollars less than the 17-billion-dollar originally estimated.

He predicted in testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee that by the time the 4¼-year program has come to an end it will have succeeded in its goal of putting western Europe back on its feet economically.

Hoffman, in effect, told the committee he would accept the cut in ERP funds recently made by the House, but he warned that if they were reduced any further the program would be jeopardized.

Last month the House cut the Administration's $5,272,200,000 request by $629,730,000, voting a total of $4,642,470,000, of which $1,074,000,000 was for the three months ending June 30, 1949, and $3,568,470,000 for the 12 months beginning July 1, 1949.

To permit a higher monthly rate of spending, however, it provided that the President could authorize the use of the entire sum by May 15, 1950, instead of stretching it out to June 30, 1950.

$17,000 Award In Gas Blast

A District Court jury yesterday awarded a total of $17,000 damages resulting from a gas explosion here in which one man was killed and two others were injured.

Killed by burns suffered in the blast May 26, 1946, in his home was Guiseppe Biancaniello, 46, of 911 Decatur st. nw. His widow, Mrs. Angelina Biancaniello, and her three children will receive $10,000.

Stefano Biancaniello, the dead man's brother, will get $5000, and Anthony Biancaniello, Stefano's son, $2000. Both were burned.

The plaintiffs were represented by Attorneys Leonard S. Melrod and Albert Brick. John J. Wilson represented the defendant, the Washington Gas Light Co. The trial was before Judge Jennings Bailey.

The three Biancaniello men were building a recreation room in Guiseppe's cellar when the explosion occurred. Guiseppe, a $90-a-week tilesetter, died on June 6, 1947, at Garfield Hospital.

Correction

A typographical error in a story about swimming pool licenses listed the YWCA pools as operating without paying annual license fees. The story should have referred to the YMCA. The Washington Post regrets the error.

U. N. Approves Kindler Plan For Artists

By the United Press

Dr. Hans Kindler, former conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra announced yesterday he has received United Nations approval for a plan to promote an international exchange of artists."

Kindler would not disclose details of his project, but indicated the exchange would include "iron curtain" as well as other European countries.

He told reporters American Embassy officials abroad advised him on his recent European tour "artists can do no better than to go unescorted to European countries."

"We should show them that we don't send our artists around with two fellows at their sides like (Dmitri) Shostakovitch" (the Russian composer), he said.

He said his reception in both Budapest and Prague, where he conducted several concerts, proved that the appearance of American artists without escort "does only good to the cause of democracy."

Kindler said he underwent no "censorship" on what he could play in either Czechoslovakia or Hungary, now under Communist-dominated regimes.

ALP Brings 3000 Here From New York for Demonstration

A well-disciplined and voluble army of 3000 "lobbyists" descended on Washington from New York yesterday commanded by the American Labor Party.

In an all-day campaign, representatives of 45 separate organizations, seven of them on the Attorney General's list of organizations termed subversive, did the following:

1. Called on 32 Congressmen and eight agency chairmen to press for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law, enactment of the civil rights program, increased minimum wages and social security benefits, health insurance, rent control, housing, Federal aid to education and support of farm prices.

2. Put a 1500-man picket line in front of the White House.

3. Staged a mass demonstration in the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds to hear summaries of the day's work and an address by Congressman Vito Marcantonio, (ALP, N. Y.).

From the time the lobbyists arrived in Union Station at noon until they departed at 7:30, their demonstrations were orderly. En route from the station to Capitol Hill, the group left the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan Police and entered the bailiwick of United States Capitol Police, who made the demonstrators break up into groups of five or less.

In front of the White House, the picket line was led by Dr. Annette Rubinstein, defeated ALP candidate in the race for the congressional seat won by Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.

The day's demonstration was managed by Paul Ross, chairman of the steering committee of the "People's Lobby," the title assumed by the group. He is a former administrative assistant to New York Mayor William O'Dwyer.

In addition to the ALP, the following unions were represented by locals: International Fur and Leather Workers, United Office and Professional Workers, United Public Workers, Hotel Workers, Shoe Workers, United Electrical Workers, Marine Cooks and Stewards and Bakers.

The seven organizations listed as subversive by the Attorney General, and represented yesterday, were the Communist Party, the Civil Rights Congress, the Congress of American Women, the Council for American-Soviet Friendship, women's division; the American Slav Congress, the Jewish Peoples' Fraternal Order, and the International Workers Order.

Rent Hearing Is Set For Fairfax Village

A public hearing on a request for a 10 per cent increase in the rents of 837 units of Fairfax Village, large Southeast Washington housing development, will be held in the board room of the District Building at 9:30 a. m. today.

Rent Examiner James G. Tyson will hear evidence on a request filed by Ernest F. Henry, attorney for Realty Management, which operates the development, for the increase. Present rents range from $48 to $69 a month.

One on the Aisle—

Douglas Makes A Real Champion

By Richard L. Coe

"CHAMPION," at the Palace, snaps, crackles, beats itself into a fine fight picture. It boasts a finely realistic background, some hard-hitting performances and a boxing finale as tough as any ever screened.

There are any number of virtues in this financially modest picture. Kirk Douglas in the title role shows what an assured player can do when he gets his teeth into a part. Director Mark Robson rushes his story along at an exciting clip. The settings are strikingly real, Dimitri Tiomkin's score complements the visual pace and by the time the fight's over you'll be limp as the champ's towel, though hardly so banged up as Douglas' Midge Kelly.

If Midge Kelly is a vaguely familiar name to you, it's because you've remembered Ring Lardner's famed 30-year-old short story on which the picture is based. Lardner had no mercy on his Midge. He was, in the original story, a brute in which there was just no good from the day he was born.

In the screen play by Carl Foreman there is a strain of mercy which may be unfaithful to the virtueless heel of the original, but attempts to create sympathy for Kelly. This is plausibly done by showing he was at least as much sinned against as sinning at first and that his transgressions followed a friend's financial theft which broke him. He is kinder to his lame brother and to his mother than Lardner's original was, but it's still a good yarn.

Crackling Final Fight

The story tells how "Champion" rises from the lowest hash-slinging job to the top. He marries a girl against his will; he'd wanted only a strong flirtation. He steals one man's girl after he's deposed him as champion in a fight that was supposed to be fixed, but ditches her when she's of no further use. He fires the first manager who had confidence in him, turns on his adoring brother and ultimately destroys himself in that final fight sequence.

Still, for all the care to make clear how Midge Kelly got that way, the tone is reasonably bitter and the story is emphatically not one to win friends for the fight game.

Douglas does a grand job, particularly in those fight scenes, and Paul Stewart is outstanding as his first manager. Arthur Kennedy plays the brother with his exceptional compassion and the three girls are sharply drawn by Ruth Roman, Marilyn Maxwell and Lola Albright, in order of their rise and fall.

All told, "Champion" is what it sets out to be—a corking, lively picture about some rough, pathetic people.

"CHAMPION" United Artists release produced by Stanley Kramer. Screen play by Carl Foreman from a short story by Ring Lardner. Music by Dimitri Tiomkin. Song, "Never Be It Said" by Tiomkin and Goldie Goldmark. Photographed by Frank Planer. Directed by Mark Robson. At the Palace.

NO NEWS YET on where or when ticket sales will open for the Meridian Hill performances. . . . Equity's Council has given the group permission to play Sunday nights on a seven-nights-a-week basis, not usually done, but since there will be no Meridian matinees, the eighth performance can be allowed . . . As soon as the downtown box office site is decided, you will be informed.

APOLOGIES are in order to the Fairlington players, about whose current production of "Dear Ruth" some erroneous matter crept into the paper . . . The comedy is being played through Saturday night at the Fairlington Elementary School . . . Beverly Coffman and Ray Nolan have the leads. . . . Barbara Norby plays the "kid sister," Ethel Groundwater, Ed McCrensky, Ben Groundwater, Viette Sandbank, George Dennis, Betty Rhame and Cliff Johnson have supporting roles . . . Priscilla Sangster is the producer.

BILL GOLD'S readers will probably be pointing out that the Little's current double bill is "One Night of Love" and "You Can't Take It With You."

BATYA HELLER, of the Erika Thimey Dance Studio, will direct a "Modern Dance Demonstration" tonight at the AVC Clubhouse, 1721 New Hampshire ave., with the AVC Auxiliary as sponsor.

Keith's "World Premiere"

Guarding Our Borders Has Its Thrills in 'Illegal Entry'

ATTORNEY GENERAL TOM CLARK, Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization Watson B. Miller and limousine-loads of Capitalites last night attended a flashy "world premiere" at Keith's Theater.

The picture was "Illegal Entry," which begins its regular 15th st. run this morning with Marta Toren, Howard Duff, George Brent and Gar Moore in the leads.

From the fancy doings and the fact that it's presented as "semi-documentary," you might expect rather heady going into why people want to get into our country, what evils the unwanted commit when they get here, precisely what they're up to and what sort of people make capital of alien smuggling. This you don't get.

What you do get is a nice low-level thriller with recognizable puppets as characters. Don't misunderstand me. I enjoy this sort of thriller on its own level. While I don't for a minute doubt that the Immigration and Naturalization files contain cases exactly like this, the accent is more on the Hairbreadth Harry business than the official seals and drum-beating might lead you to expect.

Snappy Climax

The story concerns a wartime flier who's not making a success with his own airline. Asked to help the Justice agents approach the mysterious widow of one of his wartime buddies, he uncovers the fact that she's a central figure in an outfit flying aliens across the Mexican border.

She's naughty, not innately, but because she's protecting her own alien brother by working with the human smuggling ring. She seems to be pretty cozy with the ring leader resident in Mexico, but the five authors who put the story together are properly discreet about her. Ultimately, she saves our boy's neck and is ready to share the good life with him after he's maneuvered the guilty plane into United States control.

The final escapade is quite a chiller, audience cheers and all that, not such a nifty, say as Hitchcock's in "Foreign Correspondent," but mildly tingling.

Miss Toren Bows

Director Frederick DeCordova is not quite hep yet to the skill needed in making authentic, realistic background seem exactly natural. There's as much of a trick in using the "semi documentary" form and camera effectively as there is in more familiar styles.

Sloe-eyed Marta Toren, who made a charming talk before the film, is considerably more at ease in this than her earlier films and though the role is cut and dried, she's a keen lass.

Howard Duff, the picture's Steve Canyon, is up to it and Gar Moore, remembered from "Paisan," makes a sharp impression in his first Hollywood role, but let's hope they don't type him. Paul Stewart, though a likeable fellow in "Champion," plays one of the thugs with the same off-hand but convincing manner.

"Illegal Entry" will be one more picture to make the kids realize there can be a pack of excitement in Government service.

25,000 D. C. Employes In Military Agencies Given 4c Pay Raise

Pay raises were ordered yesterday for the 25,000 wage board employes in the military agencies in and near this city.

The pay boosts will average 4 cents an hour, an increase of less than 3 per cent.

About 20,000 Navy employes, half of them at its big gun factory here, will benefit by the order. Between them, the Army and Air Force have 5000 workers in this area who will get the pay boosts. The law requires the periodic adjustment of wage board salaries to keep them in line with industrial rates.

The new rates will go into effect no later than the first pay day after June 20.

Among the key jobs raised are as follows: machinists, from $1.59 to $1.65 an hour; carpenters, from $1.41 to $1.45; auto mechanic, from $1.52 to $1.57; helper, from $1.16 to $1.19, and common laborer, from $1.05 to $1.07. Some few Navy jobs were raised 8 and 10 cents an hour.

PAY ACTION: The House yesterday approved a joint resolution to allow Federal agencies to spend funds tied up in the second deficiency bill. The measure was sent to the Senate. Senate-House conferees are deadlocked over how the White House should be repaired.

Several thousand employes have missed paydays because of the jam-up. Several hundred thousand are threatened with payless paydays. Among those who missed their payday yesterday were nearly 500 employes of the Architect of the Capitol. At the last moment, Treasury scraped up enough money yesterday to meet its payroll for Customs employes.

The Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee yesterday sent these Federal worker bills to the Senate floor:

1. The Cain bill which would require veterans to get a passing grade on civil service tests before their 5 and 10 preference points were added. The provision was knocked out which would limit 10 preference points to those veterans who had a compensable disability of 10 or more points.

2. The Johnston bill to allow male employes retired after April 1 of last year to assign survivorship pensions to their wives. Under the present law the men must take a pension reduced by 10 per cent during their lifetimes. The new bill would cut their annuities only 5 per cent.

3. Another Johnston bill approved would give legislative employes another six months to participate in the civil service retirement system.

4. The Tydings bill which would extend veterans' preference to Gold Star mothers after their second marriages were ended by legal action.

The committee sidetracked the Ferguson bill. The measure would have compelled Federal officials to explain in writing why veterans were passed over in filling jobs.

LIBRARY: About 100 new jobs in the Library of Congress are provided in the legislative appropriation bill which was reported to the House yesterday by its Appropriations Committee.

Thirty-five of the jobs would be in the library proper. A request was made for 117. Fifteen would be in the copyright office, the number requested, and there would be 40 new jobs in the legislative reference service.

The library has 1834 employes; 1564 paid from Government funds, the remainder from private trust monies.

FIRINGS: Library officials were quizzed during the hearings on the number of employes fired on loyalty and other charges. They made this report:

Only one employe fired on a loyalty charge. He didn't appeal. Another employe quit after loyalty charges were made against him. No employes were fired on security grounds.

Twenty-one employes fired on inefficiency and related charges, and two other workers were fired for violating library regulations.

MUSIC: The committee specifically rejected a library request for $1500 to install music-while-you-work in its catalog card division where employes do dull and routine work. Librarian Luther Evans urged the project be approved on a trial basis. He said production had increased from 5 to 20 per cent in private offices that had installed background music.

D. C. Moves To Prevent Stocking Up On Liquor

Rations Tax Stamps To Wholesalers Before Higher Rate Goes Into Effect

The District is rationing beverage-tax stamps and may ask new legislation to prevent alcoholic-beverage sellers from stocking heavily before 50 to 100 per cent higher taxes go into effect August 1.

Guy W. Pearson, District Collector of Taxes, said he discovered some half dozen liquor wholesalers had tried to purchase liquor tax stamps greatly in excess of usual demand.

As a result, Pearson said, he decided to sell "only the normal amount" of tax stamps to liquor purveyors. He said he computes the norm on the basis of a purveyor's liquor sales for the first six months last year and a comparable period this year.

Pearson said he doubted if any wholesalers or distributors would question the legality of his stamp rationing. He decided it was necessary "If I was not going to become a party to depriving the District of some millions of dollars of needed revenue."

"The wholesalers seemed satisfied," he said, "when they learned that rationing meant no other wholesaler would get the jump on them by stocking up at the lower tax rate."

However, A. R. Pilkerton, District auditor, told a reporter last night he "seriously doubts" legality of rationing. He said he asked Corporation Counsel Vernon West "to get going immediately" and ask Congress for a tax on inventory to preclude stocking up at the current, lower tax rate.

West told Pilkerton he thought "We'd better do something about it," Pilkerton said. West could not be reached last night for comment.

While tax stamps are required for wine, champagne and hard liquors, they are not required for beer. Merchants file affidavits on purchases and then pay taxes without use of the stamps.

Therefore, the stamp rationing scheme has not restrained beer buyers, wholesale or retail, from stocking up. However, a spokesman for a beer producing firm said there has been "no material increase in demand."

He said he believed retailers and wholesalers of beer would wait to see if an inventory tax is enacted. If not, shortly before the higher taxes become effective, he said, "they'll probably stock up every bit of space they have with beer."

Citizen Group's Use of Spore Dust Stops Beetles

The Burroughs Citizens Association, pioneers in the use of milky disease spore dust against Japanese beetles in the District, can offer proof of its efficacy in combatting the insect menace.

Tests run by Department of Agriculture scientists this week of property in the area treated two years ago showed an average of less than one beetle grub per square foot. Before treatment in 1947, the same ground tested at more than 15 grubs per square foot.

Last year several other citizens associations followed the lead of the Burroughs group in promoting use of the dust in their areas. This summer many others have fallen in line.

The Burroughs association includes the area generally lying between Rhode Island ave., 16th st. and Eastern ave. ne. Property treated with the dust, in addition to private yards, includes the Franciscan Monastery, Holy Name College and Taft Junior High School and playground.

Custody Suit Tangled Up in Psychiatry

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

Sue Elaine Hankes, 4, hugs her father, Wilbur Hankes, who visited her last night

Pleading for custody of their 4-year-old daughter, a 28-year-old mother charged yesterday that her husband has adopted a "contorted Freudian philosophy' of sexual relations.

Mrs. Margaret McKinney Hankes of Canton, Ohio, made the charge in District Court. Her estranged husband is Wilbur Ray Hankes, 28, a $6000-a-year business executive residing at the LaSalle Apartments.

Mrs. Hankes asserted that her husband attempted to persuade her to undergo insulin shock therapy for what he termed a mental illness. She also accused him of abducting the child.

The husband countered that Mrs. Hankes has "pathetically confused" the daughter, Sue Elaine Hankes. He submitted an affidavit in which it was stated that Mrs. Hankes once lay down with her child beneath an open gas jet.

Hankes said he was willing to abide by the decision of a court-appointed psychiatrist as to whether his estranged wife is fit to care for the child.

Judge Edward A. Tamm read the conflicting charges and countercharges and refused to grant either parent control of Sue Elaine until a full trial is held by the court.

Tamm advanced the case for early hearing and ordered that the little girl live in a nursery home under the care of an approved physician.

Hankes was ordered to pay his wife $95 a month temporary maintenance and to pay for their child's care until after trial.

No testimony was given in the case.

Representing Hankes are Attorneys Carey E. Quinn and Albert Brick. Attorneys Joseph Janousek and Justin Edgerton represent the wife.

The husband and wife sat quietly in court. Hankes is manager of the Washington office of the Kollsman Instrument Co., according to court papers. They were married May 13, 1942.

In her affidavit, Mrs. Hankes stated that her husband attempted to domineer and convert her to his "irreligious views" and "adopted a contorted Freudian philosophy." He insisted, she said, that there should be no bonds of matrimonial fidelity. Hankes flatly denied her charges.

For his part, Hankes acknowledged he felt his wife needed treatment but said that her charges were the "pure figment of a diseased brain."

Judge Tamm pointed out that Sue Elaine will celebrate her fourth birthday on Sunday.

"The best present this child could have would be two devoted parents," he said.

Senators Quiz Young on Job Fitness Today

Commissioner Faces Questions on Home Rule, Segregation

Commissioner J. Russell Young today will go before the Senate District Committee on his pending nomination for reappointment to a fourth term.

The full committee will meet with Young in closed session, starting at 11 a. m.

Senator Matthew Neely (D., W. Va.)—only committee member who has spoken out against Young—said yesterday that he plans to question the nominee on his attitude toward ending segregation in District playgrounds.

In addition, Neely has stated he wants to inquire into Young's Federal income-tax returns for the year preceding his first appointment, 1939, and for the past year.

Another committee member, Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), is expected to question Commissioner Young on his present position on home-rule legislation.

Claudy, author of numerous books on Masonry, was grand master of the Grand Lodge of District Masons in 1943 and master of Harmony Lodge No. 17, FAAM, in 1932. He also is a thirty-third degree Mason. He heads the Temple Publishing Co. here.

House Group Calls Session On Juvenile Judgeship Today

Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.), yesterday called a special House District Committee meeting for 11 a. m. today to reconsider the bill to authorize appointment of a new Juvenile Court judge for the District.

The bill was blocked by an 8-8 tie vote in the committee Monday, after some members objected to setting up a new judgeship while continuing to pay the full salary for the existing judgeship.

The existing judgeship is held by Miss Fay L. Bentley, now a voluntary patient at St. Elizabeth's Hospital and not expected to return to the bench. The bill would end her judgeship when it becomes vacant; her term runs to August 1952.

Following McMillan's call for the meeting, Representative Smith (D., Va.) indicated he will present to the committee highlights of testimony his fiscal affairs subcommittee heard yesterday about the backlog of work at Municipal Court.

The question of the new Juvenile Court judge and the state of the Municipal Court docket were linked by the fact that one of the Municipal Court judges, Nadine L. Gallagher, has been taken from her regular job to fill in for Judge Bentley.

Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court told Smith's group his court is 18 months behind on civil non-jury cases, due to a steady increase in the volume of court business. He said 139,313 cases were filled in the 1948 fiscal year, and 150,000 are expected in the current fiscal year.

"That's an awful backlog," commented Representative Smith. Judge Barse agreed. He said the backlog could be cleared up with three additional judgeships for which legislation is pending.

The bill for the three additional judges, however, was not the direct subject of the Smith hearing since that measure is before another District subcommittee. Subject of the hearing was a bill to increase the pay of judges of the Municipal Court and the Municipal Court of Appeals. This proposal was strongly indorsed by the District Bar Association, District Government, and Justice Department officials.

Salaries of $10,000 are now paid to the judges of the Municipal Court of Appeals and the chief judge of Municipal Court, and $9975 to the associate judges of Municipal Court. Subcommittee members indicated support for salaries of $13,000 for associate judges of the two courts, and $13,500 for their chief judges. The bill now carries those amounts for the Municipal Court, and $1000 more for the Municipal Court of Appeals judges.

WCTU Indorses Two Women For Judgeships

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the District of Columbia yesterday indorsed two women barristers—Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cox—for judgeships in the District Courts.

Both were recommended in resolutions adopted by delegates at the closing session of the WCTU's diamond jubilee convention at Eastern Presbyterian Church, 6th st. and Maryland ave. ne.

Mrs. Matthews, a past president of the National Association of Women Lawyers, was recommended for a judgeship on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, legislation for which is now pending.

Mrs. Cox, a past president of the D. C. Women's Bar Association, was indorsed for a post in the Juvenile Court of the District, legislation for which is also pending.

Copies of the resolutions have been mailed to President Truman and the Attorney General.

$5 Million Is Urged For 1950 Slum Work Of D. C. Land Agency

Grant Recommends Amount in Report To O'Mahoney On Elimination Means

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The District Redevelopment Land Agency should have 5 million dollars for slum clearance work in the year beginning July 1, the Senate Appropriations Committee was advised yesterday.

The specific slum spending recommendation was made by Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, former chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, in a report to Senator Joseph P. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.).

The Senator, chairman of the Independent Offices Appropriations Subcommittee, had asked Grant to file a written statement on "how slums can best and fastest be eliminated from the Nation's Capital."

The O'Mahoney group is considering an NCPPC request for increased redevelopment project planning funds as one step to expedite slum clearance action by the Land Agency, which, since its establishment three years ago, has been denied operating money.

Urges Contract Authority

In addition, Grant urged that the land agency be given authority to contract for an additional five million dollars in fiscal year 1951.

The House and Senate Appropriations Committees are awaiting a Budget Bureau request of $2,100,000 to cover the only approved slum clearance project—the Marshall Heights area in Southeast Washington.

Both O'Mahoney and his committee colleague, Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) have indicated approval of funds for the fundless Land Agency this year.

Shortly after the Grant report was filed in the committee's public record, several Marshall Heights residents protested the plan to redevelop their area at a brief hearing before O'Mahoney.

Everett L. Edmund, president of the Marshall Heights Civic Association, told the subcommittee that he was "pretty sure" the District Slum Clearance Act—permitting the Government to possess their property for redevelopment—"would be contested in court" on constitutional grounds.

He said he would favor redevelopment only in congested downtown areas.

Marshall Heights citizens similarly opposed the plan at public hearings before the Commissioners several weeks ago.

To carry out an over-all slum-riddance job locally, Grant's report said, there is "urgent need" for:

1. Adequate appropriations to NCPPC to go ahead with project planning as required by the Slum Clearance Act, i. e., boosting the planning item in the pending Independent Office supply bill $53,700 above the amount authorized by the House.

2. Appropriation of five million dollars to put the land agency in operation without further delay.

3. Increased money in the District Appropriations bill for more inspectors in Health Department and Building Inspector's Office to enforce existing housing regulations and those of a new and tightened housing code.

4. Appropriations to the National Capital Housing Authority to start a low-rent public housing program.

Taking note of the Commissioners' plan to launch a slum "clean-up" program along the lines of the Baltimore Plan, Grant cautioned:

"The so-called Baltimore Plan is not a redevelopment plan and is entirely inadequate to do the job. It is merely a 'fix-up, clean-up' process, which may remedy appearances for the moment, and will not take care of our overload of indigent families without redevelopment of the slums and additional low-rent housing."

Quarrel Impends

Funds for New Office Building Put Directly Up to Senate

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday omitted from the legislative money bill a 10-million-dollar fund for starting the proposed new Senate Office Building.

The committee said the building fund should "be left to the determination of the Senate." Its decision was made as it approved and sent to the House the $62,200,705 appropriation bill for expenses of Congress, the Library of Congress, and the Botanic Garden in the year starting July 1.

Senators have been in conflict over their new office building proposal. The Senate Public Works Committee has given the go-ahead for clearing the site, on 1st st. between B and C ne. Capitol Architect David Lynn is to give that committee next week a revised building plan that would cut the proposed 20-million-dollar cost.

Senator Ellender (D., La.), chairman of the Senate Legislative Appropriation Committee, has urged that the entire project be stopped.

Among other proposed spending items cut from the money bill by the House committee were $25,000 for 2000 fluorescent desk lamps for offices of Congressmen, and $1500 for a year's trial of a commercial music playing service in the card division of the Library of Congress.

Also eliminated from the bill was a request for $52,520 to add 16 Capitol police to the House side.

The bill included $1,374,500 for replacing the House and Senate roofs and remodeling the chambers. It would boost the total appropriated for the project to $4,834,000. The committee said the new money is expected to be the final appropriation.

The bill also carried authorization for captain's pay to two Metropolitan police officers detailed to duty at the Capitol as lieutenants. They are Michael Dowd and Carl Schamp. Their service was warmly praised by committee members during hearings on the bill.

ABC Cites Head of Group Asking Hoodlum Cleanup

Maurice B. Solomon, who has charged that hoodlums are running unchecked in the Fourth Precinct, has some explaining of his own to do before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board today.

The board will hear charges that Billy's Mercury Grill, 615 7th st. nw., operated by Solomon, sold intoxicants to a drunk and permitted a drunk to remain on the premises. This is the second time in a year the grill has been cited for violations.

Solomon said yesterday the ABC hearing has nothing to do with his charges of widespread hoodlumism in the neighborhood.

At a Monday night meeting of the Southwest Citizens Association, Solomon asked for a cleanup of hoodlums, loiterers and undesirable persons in the area.

Named to Head Committee

Solomon was named chairman of a committee to carry the demand for a cleanup to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, and, if necessary, to the District Commissioners and Congress.

The inference that police were lax in getting after the hoodlums did not sit well with Barrett. He said Solomon visited him yesterday morning.

"I told him I think he's breeding a lot of this stuff," Barrett declared.

Barrett said that before Solomon left he was saying it was not the police who were at fault, but the courts, because they are too lenient with hoodlums.

The assertion that hoodlums have the upper hand in the Fourth Precinct is "unfounded," said Barrett. For that matter, he said, there are some hoodlums in every precinct. And in the Fourth Precinct, he added, there has been an arrest in practically every instance of hoodlumism.

Barrett pointed to the case of a hoodlum who tossed a wine bottle through the front window of Solomon's Grill last Saturday night. Unfortunately for the bottle tosser, he made his throw just as police drove by. He was fined $50 in Municipal Court Monday.

Barrett accused Solomon of not cooperating with police. He said a lieutenant from the Fourth Precinct was sent to the meeting of the Citizens Association Monday, but arrived after the Solomon committee had been formed. Barrett said Solomon did not tell the lieutenant there had been a long discussion about hoodlumism in the area.

"That wasn't kosher," said Barrett. "He wasn't acting in good faith to let the lieutenant sit there and not inform him."

Barrett said he had received telephone calls yesterday morning from two or three members of the association who were disturbed because they had not known about Solomon's difficulties with the ABC Board.

But the hoodlums and the ABC case are things apart, Solomon said yesterday.

"These hoodlums," he said, "are full grown men. They get hold of old people and rob them. The people are scared to complain because they have been threatened."

Solomon said he was threatened recently and swore out a warrant against the man. He said the man was found guilty in Municipal Court but Judge Ellen K. Raedy suspended sentence.

The man who threatened him and about five of his friends were ordered out of his grill one night about six weeks ago, Solomon said.

"They went across the street," said Solomon, "into another restaurant, ordered food, ate it, and when asked to pay they tossed dishes on the floor, pushed the owner back into the kitchen and looted the cash register."

Friend Presents Father of Six as 'Ideal' Candidate

A father of six children who "injects discipline into his house without being a tyrant" has been nominated in The Washington Post's Ideal Father Contest.

A friend of his, who wants to remain anonymous, thinks Joe Savercool of 615 59th ave. Capitol Heights Md., deserves the award because he "considers fatherhood a full-time job and a rewarding one."

The nominee, 35, works in the State Department's International News and Publications Division. "I have visited the Savercool family and I found it a truly happy group," writes his friend. "All the children are affectionate with one another and amicable with strangers."

Anyone can nominate an ideal father. Entries must be received at The Washington Post by the close of business June 16. The winner and his family will be dined at the Statler Hotel, with a show afterward on Father's Day, June 19.

1190 Graduates Set Catholic U. Record

The largest class in the history of Catholic University—1190 students—was graduated yesterday in exercises held in the school's flag-decorated gymnasium.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Catholic Archbishop of Washington and chancellor of the university, conferred the degrees and presented diplomas.

Dr. Charles G. Fenwick, director of the Department of International Law and Organization for the Pan American Union, told the graduates that no longer is it a domestic question what liberties a government chooses to grant to its people.

Speaking of Russia and the "iron curtain," he said that a generation ago "we could stand aside and trust that in due time such policies would defeat themselves. Today we realize they constitute a menace to the general peace."

"The hard reality," Dr. Fenwick said, "is that time is running against us. Science has made faster progress than morality. New instruments of destruction have been invented that give a tremendous advantage to surprise attacks.

"The result is that we live in fear and anxiety lest a handful of men controlling the destinies of a totalitarian stte may succeed in obtaining weapons which will enable them to do incalculable damage before they can be brought to account."

The exercises opened with a long and colorful academic procession across the university campus to the gymnasium.

Red-robed officials of the church marched at the rear of the long line of students wearing black caps and gowns.

Among degrees conferred were 40 doctorates in philosophy, 12 in canon law and 16 in sacred theology.

Two brothers, John and Thomas Toomey, sons of Vincent L. Toomey, a member of the law school faculty, were graduated with degrees in law. Twin sisters, Ellen and Teresa Keenan, were graduated from the school of nursing education.

Three other families were represented by husband-and-wife teams. They were Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Bionaz, 218 Cromwell ter. nw.; Mr. and Mrs. James F. Dring, 1365 Sheridan st. nw., and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Waldron, jr., Wilmington, Del

Rotary Hears Views, News Of Star High School Graduates

The Washington Post

Rotary Club President Philip M. Talbott looks over citations presented to John H. DeViney (left), 18, of 1630 Park rd., nw., of Central High School; and Richard Norford, 18, of 1715 Jackson st., nw., of McKinley Tech.

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

"We are expected to be certain in a world that is uncertain."

Thus did Clyde Lawrence Bell, Anacostia High School senior, sum up the situation of the 1949 graduating class

He spoke to the Washington Rotary Club as one of eight outstanding Washington high school seniors who yesterday deceived a Certificate of Award for their accomplishments and ability during the past year.

To Rotarians of long standing, yesterday's luncheon had a familiar ring. For 23 years now, the club has been awarding certificates to outstanding high school seniors, and hearing those seniors outline their goals in life.

For club members, there was added satisfaction in hearing Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District school superintendent, recite the achievements of previous award winners.

One was stationed at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, and later became an aide to General Bradley. Three are now engaged in atomic research. One worked on the Manhattan Project.

Of 139 students so recognized by the Rotary Club, Dr. Corning said, the school system has lost track of only four. A total of 129 entered college, 92 were graduated, and 33 are still in college. Sixty-three served during World War II, and two died during the war; one in combat and the other while rescuing companions.

Professionally speaking, Dr. Corning went on, these are the careers which the graduates chose: Six are lawyers, 1 an architect, 8 are doctors, 12 are engineers, 2 are newspaper reporters, 1 is a musician, 1 is a ball player, 2 are ministers,

Ten are in the military service, one is president of a Bible college, five are college professors, one is an assistant superintendent of schools, five are in physics research, four are merchants, one is a carpenter, one a fireman, two are service engineers, and one is in the insurance business.

And, Dr. Corning added, 68 are married.

Young Bell, 17, of 5481 Glenhill rdwy. se., led off the eight 1949 graduates in stating his hopes for the future. He wants to be a doctor, and he estimates it will be 1958 before he gets his degree.

Mayo Johnson, 18, of 6709 Baltimore ave., College Park, Md., a Calvin Coolidge senior, is going to Dartmouth "because it is a small town with lots of skiing territory. . . . Skiing is one of my first loves. Now I will be able to atone for three snowless winters in Washington." He, also would like to be a doctor in general practice.

John H. DeViney, 18, of 1630 Park rd. nw., Central High School senior, is going to Northwestern University on a scholarship. He wants to go into public speaking, but is not settled too definitely on just where.

William P. Atchison, 17, of 1741 A st. se., of Eastern High School, is going to Wesleyan University and from there, he hopes to Columbia University for graduate work in journalism, his chosen field.

John A. Lehtinen, 17, of 2144 Wyoming ave. nw., Roosevelt senior, whose father is Commercial Counselor at the Finnish Legation, plans to study chemical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Richard Norford, 18, of 1715 Jackson st. ne., of McKinley High, hasn't picked his school as yet, but he does know that he wants to go into commercial aviation as a pilot.

Pvt. John A. Sullivan

Reburial services for Pvt. John A. Sullivan, 19, who was killed in action in France November 1, 1944, will be held today at 2 p. m. at Arlington Cemetery.

Pvt. Sullivan

Pvt. Sullivan, who worked for a sheet metal company here before his military service, was a member of a tank destroyer outfit with the Third Army. He had served less than a year when he was killed.

His father, Robert M. Sullivan, lives at 1235 I st. ne.

Jacob Cohn, Executive, Dead at 64

Jacob A. Cohn, 64, president of the Harding Paper Box Co., 1420 New York ave. nw., died of a heart attack yesterday in his office.

Mr. Cohn, whose home was at 3525 Hertford pl. nw., was also a representative of the Climax Paper Box Co. of Castorland, N. Y.

He came to this country at the age of 12 and had spent the past 45 years as a resident of the District.

He was a member of St. John's Lodge No. 11, F.A.A.M.; the Scottish Rite, Almas Temple, Amity Club, Washington Hebrew Congregation and B'nai B'rith.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Cohn; a son, Harold Cohn, and two daughters, Mrs. Paul Hyman and Mrs. Edward Stern, all of Washington.

Services will be held at 10 a. m. Friday at the Danansky Funeral Home, 3501 14th st. nw. Burial will be in the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

Mrs. Martha B. Mulholland

Funeral services were held yesterday in Hampton, Va., for Mrs. Martha Bearden Mulholland, retired Treasury Department employe who died there Tuesday. Burial was in the University of Virginia Cemetery.

Mrs. Mulholland, who was 83, had been living with her daughter, Mrs. Howard Clark Thompson, in Hampton for 20 years.

She was the mother of Dr. Henry Bearden Mulholland, chief physician at the University of Virginia, and a direct descendant of Dr. John Woodson, who came to Jamestown as a physician and surgeon in 1619.

Born in Asheville, N. C., Mrs. Mulholland was the widow of John H. Mulholland of Ontario, Canada. She came to Washington in 1904 and worked for the Government until she moved to her daughter's home. In addition to her son and daughter, she is survived by four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Miss Selina W. Hutchison

Miss Selina W. Hutchison, retired Department of Commerce employe, died Tuesday at Emergency Hospital following an extended illness.

Miss Hutchison, who lived at 2104 N. Glebe rd., Arlington, retired in 1943 after 30 years with the Department of Commerce.

A native of Loudoun County, Va., she had lived in the Washington area for 25 years. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. William M. Crain and Miss Mary Hutchison, both of the Arlington address, and two nephews, Hugh B. Hutchison of Washington and Gilbert M. Hutchison of Greensboro, N. C.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 1 p. m. at the S. H. Hines Co. funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Interment will be in Chestnut Grove Cemetery, Herndon, Va.

Lieut. William J. Suit

First Lieut. William J. Suit, son of Joseph E. Suit, retired Fire Department battalion chief, 1310 Farragut st. nw., will be reburied today at 2 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Suit

Lieutenant Suit, 24, a Flying Fortress pilot, was killed in 1943. A native of Washington, he graduated from Central High School and the University of Maryland.

He was a member of the ROTC and was commissioned a lieutenant in the infantry in 1941. He entered the Air Corps in May, 1942, and was trained at Maxwell Field.

Besides his father he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Kathryn King of Alexandria.

Lieut. Schnepfe Rites Friday

Reburial services for Second Lieut. Robert H. Schnepfe, who was killed on December 9, 1944, when his boat capsized in the Roer River, Germany, will be held Friday at 2:30 p. m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Schnepfe

Lieutenant Schnepfe, 32, was a platoon leader in the 407th Infantry, 102d Division. He was awarded the Bronze and Silver Star Medals.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Schnepfe of the Westchester Apartments, 39th st. and Cathedral ave. nw., he was a graduate of Central High School. He attended the University of Virginia and later was graduated from National Law School.

A native of Centreville, Md., he was an auditor with the General Accounting Office before entering the Army. Surviving besides his parents, are two sisters, Mrs. Ronald A. Hicks of Warrenton, Va., and Mrs. Charles W. Russell of Shreveport, La.

St. Columba's Fete

St. Columba's Episcopal Church, 4201 Albemarle st. nw., will celebrate St. Columba's Day with a community fair on the grounds and in the parish hall from 3:30 to 9 p. m. today. Supper will be served in the parish hall at 6 p. m. and at 8 p. m. there will be a magic show.

Robert Cooksey

Waldorf, Md., June 8 (AP).—Funeral services were held today for Robert Cooksey, 70, a former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, who died Sunday at his home after a long illness.

Services were at St. Paul's Episcopal Church here. Burial was in Trinity Church Cemetery, Newport.

Area News In Brief

Children, Matches Blamed for Blaze

A fire believed started by children playing with matches did an estimated $3500 damage yesterday at noon to a two-story house occupied by the Rev. B. McClain Cochran and family at 3022 26th st. ne.

The fire started in the garage, sweeping through the rear first and second floors. Mrs. Cochran and a brother-in-law, Charles Rouhe, were in the kitchen feeding two of her three children, when they discovered the fire.

Rouhe carried to safety a third child asleep upstairs, as Mrs. Cochran and the other two children fled.

Children playing in the garage were believed responsible for starting the fire, according to Roy Fowkes, father of Mrs. Cochran.

Hains Pt. Bus Service

Capital Transit Co. will resume bus service to Hains Point Sunday at a fare of 20 cents, a nickel increase over last year's tariff. The District Public Utilities Commission authorized the resumption of service and the rate increase yesterday.

The line, which operates during the summer only, will run from 15th st. and Treasury pl. nw. to the East Potomac Park recreation center and golf course.

$5000 Auto Parts Fire

Automobile parts and accessories stored in a warehouse back of Monroe Ford Co., 1237 East-West hwy., Silver Spring, were damaged by fire yesterday. Firemen estimated the damage at more than $5000.

English Case Arguments

Final arguments in a hearing on complaints against Thomas R. English, District Public Welfare Department social worker, were heard yesterday by Lawrence Koenigsberger, who was designated by the District Commissioners to hear the case.

Joseph A. Kaufman, attorney for English, and Robert F. Kneipp, assistant corporation counsel, presented the arguments. English is up for dismissal on complaints about his working relations with his superior, Mrs. Ruth D. Hubbard, superintendent of the department's interstate service section.

Battle Asks Virginia Aid For Farmers

Charlottesville, Va., June 8 (AP).—State Senator John S. Battle, candidate for Governor in the August Democratic primary, said here tonight "greater opportunities must be provided for all farmers" in Virginia.

In a radio address, the Senator from Charlottesville said:

"If we are to maintain a permanently prosperous and contented rural Virginia, it is imperative that effective measures be taken to enable and encourage farmers to increase their financial returns."

Battle's address was carried over a network of 15 stations.

"The main objective of a successful farm program should be to help establish and maintain a higher level of income for Virginia farmers. It should encourage individual responsibility, develop selfreliance and reward individual initiative," Battle declared.

The senator pointed out that nearly all Virginia counties are predominantly rural, and recalled that during his 20 years in the General Assembly he had worked to improve the farmers' lot, and encourage soil conservation.

Won't Quit Governor Race, Arnold Declares

Richmond, Va., June 8 (AP).—Remmie L. Arnold, Petersburg manufacturer, tonight opened fire on "professional politicians" who have circulated rumors "that I will withdraw as a candidate for Governor" in the August Democratic primary.

"I want it distinctly understood," he said, "that I have no intention of withdrawing, and will fight to the finish."

Fairfax Group Asks Waiver On Politics Ban

The Fairfax County Federation of Citizens Associations yesterday sought permission for Federal employes living in the county to take an active part in county politics on a nonpartisan basis.

In a 14-page petition to the Civil Service Commission, the federation asked the same Hatch Act exemptions already granted to Arlington and Alexandria—the right to run as an independent for county supervisor or to serve on appointive bodies like the school board or public utilities commission.

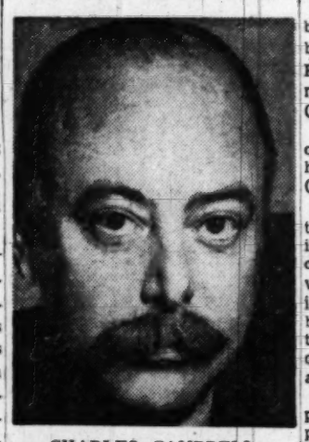
Federal employes living in the Fairfax County towns of Falls Church, Vienna, Herndon and Clifton may now take part in town, but not county, politics. Voting is the only political activity permitted for Federal employes living in Fairfax.

Harold A. Ward, chairman of the federation committee that prepared the petition, said the commission turned down a similar request during the war on grounds that Fairfax was too large an area (417 square miles) to be given such an exemption.

This time, Ward said, the request has been backed up with detailed evidence. A spot survey conducted in all parts of the county indicated that 59 per cent of employable county residents work for the Federal Government, Ward said. It also showed the proportion of Federal workers registered to vote in Fairfax is about the same as that of other residents.

These figures were based on a survey of 4035 persons, including all family members, Ward said. The population of Fairfax County is variously estimated at from 100,000 to 125,000.

Sir Oliver Franks Named to Privy Council



CHARLES CAMPBELL
Gets Order of British Empire

Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador to the United States, has been made a member of the King's Privy Council, it was learned last night with publication of King George's honors list.

Charles H. Campbell, director of the British Information Services here, was made an officer of the Order of the British Empire.

They were the only Britons in this country included in the list, issued in honor of the King's official birthday today. King George was born December 14, 1895, but it is customary to celebrate his birthday officially in the middle of the year, partly to provide an occasion for an honors list. There is another honors list at New Year's.

Bertrand Russell, the philosopher, and Sir Robert Robinson, president of the Royal Society, were made members of the Order of Merit, according to the United Press. It is said to be one of the country's highest honors, limited to 25 living persons.

John Barbirolli, orchestra conductor, and Thomas Leslie Rowan, one of Winston Churchill's wartime secretaries, were knighted.

George Archibald, Labor politician and director of the topical movies called "This Modern Age," was made a baron.

County High Schools Will Graduate 775

A total of 775 Montgomery County high school seniors will receive diplomas at graduation exercises scheduled at the various schools for June 20 and 21. The total includes 342 boys and 433 girls.

All county schools will close for the year at noon on June 17, officials said yesterday.

2 Boys, 8 and 11, Admit Causing Derailment

Baltimore, June 8 (AP).—Two small boys told police today they placed spikes on a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad track here "to have some fun," officers said.

One of the spikes caused the derailment Sunday of a Washington-Philadelphia express train here. None of the 50 passengers was hurt, but officials of the railroad estimated damage at $50,000. One of the boys was 8 and the other 11 years old.

Lions to Hear Envoy

Marie A. Esquivel, Ambassador from Costa Rico, will address the dinner of the Mount Rainier-Brentwood Lions Club at 6:45 p. m. today at the Episcopal Parish Hall, 34th st. and Rainier ave., Mount Rainier, Md.

Arlington Group Opposes Relaxing Of Hatch Act

Arlington's Civic Federation is opposing a proposed Senate amendment to the Hatch Act to allow Federal workers living near Washington to engage in local party politics.

By a 30-27 vote, the federation Tuesday night opposed the amendment approved by the Senate Rules Committee. The proposal would allow Government employes to campaign and run in local party elections if, as a group, they constitute at least 10 per cent of their community. They are now permitted to engage in nonpartisan elections.

Gambling Trial Again Postponed

The first trial of 36 indicted gamblers, scheduled to begin yesterday after long delays, was again postponed, pending argument of motions to dismiss the indictment against Henry E. Fish.

Motions will be argued June 17, with the trial rescheduled for June 23. Fish, who lives at 1007 K st. nw., is charged with setting up a gaming table for the purpose of betting on horse races.

He is one of the 36 persons indicted by the special gambling grand jury after a year's investigation. Fish was arrested March 25, after a Government raid on Hammel's Restaurant, 416 10th st. nw., where he was employed as a waiter.

J. J. Kavanagh Elected to High Hecht Co. Post

By S. Oliver Goodman

John J. Kavanagh, former general manager of the Controllers Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, has been elected vice president and treasurer of The Hecht Co.

Kavanagh

He succeeds Jay Jefferson Miller, who became treasurer of the Hecht firm in 1942 when Samuel M. Hecht, then treasurer, joined the armed forces. S. M. Hecht is now president of the company, which operates stores in Washington and five other cities.

Miller will continue as chairman of the finance committee, general manager of Hecht Brothers and vice president of The Hecht Co.

Kavanagh, the new treasurer, served in the Navy from 1943 to 1946 as lieutenant commander. A resident of Bronxville, N. Y., he is a past controller treasurer of the National Catholic Community Service, Inc., and was senior examiner and administrative assistant for the New York State Insurance Department from 1933 to 1941. He is a graduate of New York University, Fordham and Harvard and is a member of the New York Bar.

Franklin to Head Pennsylvania R. R.

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP).—M. W. Clement, 67, today was named chairman of the board of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Franklin

He will be succeeded as president by Walter S. Franklin, 65, now executive vice president. The changes, to become effective June 16, were announced following a meeting of the board of directors.

Clement has been president of the Pennsylvania Railroad since April 24, 1935. The position of board chairman was set up by the directors for the first time in the 102-year history of the road.

The board said in a statement the changes "provide an executive arrangement whereby the president may share some of the newer responsibilities imposed on top management of large corporations by conditions of the times."

Franklin, born in Ashland, Md., makes his home in Ardmore, Pa. He started at the bottom following graduation from Harvard University. He was a freight solicitor in various cities before becoming Southern freight agent for Pennsylvania Railroad at Atlanta, Ga., in 1914. A year later he was named division freight agent at Baltimore.

During World War I, Franklin served as a lieutenant colonel in the transportation corps. After the armistice he directed the return of American troops from both England and France.

In 1928 he became general agent at Detroit and a year later was made general superintendent of the Northwestern division at Chicago.

Franklin served as president of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad Co. for two years until 1931 when PRR appointed him assistant to the vice president in charge of operations. That post, then, was held by Clement.

Later in 1931, Franklin became president of the Wabash Railway Co., serving as a coreceiver of that railroad which is a PRR subsidiary. In 1933 he became vice president in charge of traffic and five years later was elected to the PRR's board of directors. In 1947 he assumed the title of executive vice president.

Franklin, at a press conference shortly after his appointment was announced, told newsmen the Pennsy—and all United States railroads—"face a very difficult problem."

"We have a declining volume in the face of increasing expense," Franklin said.

However, the PRR president-elect said he "hoped" that labor-saving devices put into operation the past few years plus increased dieselization "may get us by."

For the immediate future the PRR anticipates no trouble, Franklin said his railroad will be "in the black" for the first six months of 1949.

May's figures are not recorded as yet, he said, but "we'll show a profit," he added:

"From the looks of things and barring a lengthy coal strike in July, we'll have a larger volume of business this year than last."

For 20th Week

Bank Loans Off Another 152 Million

Dropping for the twentieth consecutive time, business loans fell another 152 million dollars during the week ended June 1, the Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday.

That sent the total of commercial, industrial and agricultural loans by Federal Reserve member banks in the Nation's leading cities down to $13,476,000,000.

Volume was off $2,156,000,000 from the business loan peak attained last December 22. The June 1 total outstanding was 731 million dollars below the level at the same time last year.

Real estate loans, running an opposite trend, advanced nine million dollars to a new record high of $4,092,000,000 at leading city banks June 1. Real estate loans were 324 million dollars higher than a year ago.

The business loan decline, attributed largely to reduced inventory buying in the face of declining prices, was featured by these principle decreases: 43 million dollars in New York City, 23 million dollars in the Chicago Federal Reserve district, 21 million in the San Francisco district and 16 million in the St. Louis district.

Holdings of Government securities by leading city banks declined 110 million dollars during the week to a total of $34,035,000,000. The big decline, 239 million dollars, was in bonds, but this was mostly offset by a 229 million dollar increase in holdings of debt certificates.

There were further declines, however, in holdings of Treasury bills and notes.

Alumni Honor Retiring Head Of Roosevelt

Three hundred alumni of Business and Roosevelt High Schools and guests last night honored Miss May P. Bradshaw, who will retire as Roosevelt principal June 30, at a banquet in the high school cafeteria.

Miss Bradshaw

Miss Bradshaw, who has been principal of Roosevelt since 1936, began her teaching career in elementary schools 48 years ago. For 40 years she was at the old Business Hig. School and its successor, Roosevelt.

The retiring principal was presented with a handbag by the alumni association.

Also honored was William Nalley, school custodian for 47 years, who likewise is retiring at the end of the year. He was the guest of the class of 1929.

Guests, including Allan Davis, retired principal, and Mrs. E. C. Wells and W. W. Rodgers, assistant principals, were introduced by H. Clay Espey, class of 1919, toastmaster. Alumni association officers were introduced by Joe Basso, alumni president.

2-Family Amnesia Case Goes to Walter Reed

Anthony V. Martino, whom the Army listed as dead or missing for five years until he turned up recently in a two-family marital mixup, arrived here yesterday for observation by a Walter Reed Hospital board of psychiatrists.

Martino, 40, said his mind went blank during combat in France, in 1944. Next thing he remembers, he said, he was settled down in New York, several months later, with a blonde wife. He never was divorced from a prewar wife.

Classified Head

Post Names John Grant Ad Executive

John Grant, who formerly was associated with the advertising departments of the Indianapolis Star and News, yesterday was named classified advertising manager of The Washington Post.

Grant

He succeeds Karl Nations, who resigned to accept a position of classified advertising manager of the Chicago Herald-American.

Grant, a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., attended the University of Tennessee before entering newspaper work in the classified department of the Chattanooga News. He transferred to the Indianapolis Star as a classified employe and worked for that paper 14 years before going to the Indianapolis News. After four years with the News he left to join the local retail advertising staff of The Washington Post three months ago.

Nations has been a member of the advertising department of The Washington Post since 1947, having served on the retail and general advertising staffs prior to his appointment as head of the classified division in May, 1945.

Two job promotions also announced yesterday were of Miss Marjorie Harker, classified telephone supervisor of The Washington Post, to assistant classified manager, and of George DeLozier, of the real estate department, who was named manager of the real estate display department.

Divers Salvage Most Of Puerto Rico Plane

San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 8 (AP).—The United States Navy said tonight divers had salvaged most of the wrecked transport plane which crashed into the Atlantic off San Juan Tuesday and brought death to 53 persons.

Only 28 of the 81 aboard survived. Bodies of 43 have been recovered and 10 still are missing. The charter plane was en route to Miami, Fla.

Hearing Held On Religious Instruction

Voluntary religious education in 18 Arlington public schools was debated last night at a public hearing in Stonewall Jackson School, attended by more than 200 persons.

It was the first public hearing on the issue held by the Arlington School Board which thus far has refused to halt the county's public school program.

After the hearing, the board deferred decision on dropping the program.

1600 Pupils Studying

The Rev. Frederick Williams, president of the Arlington County Council of Religious Education which conducts the religious instruction, said 1600 children are taught in the 18 schools by three teachers on a budget of $81000.

The program is offered to pupils of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. Funds are supplied, he said, by churches, individuals and business groups.

Opponents attacked the voluntary program as being in violation of the United States Supreme Court's 1948 decision in the McCollum case which ruled against released time classes as held in Champaign, Ill.

Julius Schreiber, psychiatrist and president of the Northern Virginia Mental Hygiene Society, charged that the program, by creating an "in-group and an out-group," destroys harmony in schools and develops tensions.

Sectarianism Disputed

Religion "cannot be separated from sectarianism" when taught in public schools, Richard B. Kenman, National Education Association official, told the group.

Miss Elizabeth Longwell, director of Christian education for the Virginia Council of Churches, denied that the Arlington system, which used the Old and the New Testaments for texts, is sectarian.

The teaching, she said, is made up of the fundamental tenets "of all denominations prominent in Virginia" and represents "over 90 per cent of all Virginians."

Adrian Schoenmaker, 16, president of the Hi-Y Club at Washington-Lee High School, said his group was unanimously in favor of the present program.

When he took the program, Schoenmaker said, he recalls hearing the story of Daniel and the Lion and "I can't see anything so bad about that."

Other Speakers Listed

Other speakers for the present program included Mrs. J. B. Small, representing the Arlington WCTU; the Rev. George Yount, of the Arlington Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Harvey Glass, incoming president of the Arlington Council of Churches.

Other opponents included the Rev. Andrew J. Robbins, pastor of the Arlington Seventh-Day Adventist Church; Rabbi Ira Sud, of the Arlington Jewish Center, and L. D. MacIntyre, chairman of the Arlington Provisional Committee for Separation of Church and School.

Second Fairchild Officer Removed In Board Battle

Hagerstown, Md., June 8 (AP).—A second Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp. official has been removed because he is siding with a movement to replace the present directors.

J. Carlton Ward, jr., board chairman, announced today that A. F. Flood has been dismissed as assistant comptroller. Ward said Flood had informed him he had agreed to be on a slate of new directors proposed by Sherman Fairchild.

Fairchild, former chairman of the aviation company, will offer new directors for election at a meeting here July 6. Fairchild twice forced postponement of the annual stockholders meeting to gain time to prepare the slate.

Ward previously announced that Richard S. Boutelle had been "relieved of his duties" as general manager of the plant. Ward said Boutelle, who also is vice president and a director, was backing Fairchild.

Boutelle commented the board's action "is consistent with the policy of relieving anyone who does not agree 100 per cent with them."

Flood, who has been with the company about 20 years, said "for some time I have not been in accord with the policies of the top corporate management."

Employes of the plant will give Boutelle a testimonial party Sunday at the Hagerstown airport.

C. & P. Net Shows Drop in April

Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday reported net income of $302,342 in April, a decline of $61,227 below the same 1948 period.

The month's operating revenues of $2,964,961 were up $109,483, while operating expenses of $2,356,755 were $203,305 heavier than last year.

For the first four months this year, C. & P. net aggregated $1,248,221 as compared with $1,248,335 in the same 1948 period.

At the end of April, there were 452,251 telephones in service here, a gain of 26,439 over the same 1948 date.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 8 (AP).—A new Government price support program provided the spark which set off a sharp advance in wheat today. The bread cereal jumped nearly 9 cents at one time in a heavy buying movement. Final prices were down several cents from the day's best.

Other cereals, as well as soybeans and lard, joined wheat in the upward push. But they did not show the strength of wheat, nor were they as active as that grain. For the most part, buying in other pits was a reflection of the wheat strength.

Wheat closed 3½ to 5¾ higher, corn was 1⅝ to 2¼ higher, oats were ¾ to 1¼ higher, rye was 1¾ to 2½ higher, soybeans were 1⅜ to 3¾ higher and lard was 12 to 32 cents 100 pounds higher.

A mad rush to buy wheat featured opening dealings. Local traders were mostly short, and an overnight announcement that the Agriculture Department would make loans on wheat piled on the ground caught these traders by surprise. The loans will be at 75 per cent of support prices for 90 days.

Many analysts felt the new program meant an anticipated flood of wheat at harvest time would not materialize. Instead, the grain would be held back on farms as producers can erect storage bins, borrowing from the Government, and then place wheat in a Government loan at 90 per cent of parity.

Maryland Tobacco

Baltimore, June 8 (AP).—Prices were steady to higher today for most grades of the southern Maryland tobacco auction markets.

The Department of Agriculture and the Maryland State Department of Markets reported the greatest gains were made in offerings for heavy crop, tips and seconds.

Sales wound up early again today as the leaf continued to move marketward at a slow pace.

Deliveries to cooperatives under the Government loan program were estimated at 5 per cent of the burden sold.

Net auction sales Tuesday were reported at 303,480 pounds at an average price of $55.26 per hundredweight. This brought season sales to 14,015,593 pounds at an average of $52.62.

Sales are running about 2,500,000 pounds ahead of the total for the corresponding period of 1948, the department reported.

Average auction bid prices per hundredweight on a limited number of representative U. S. grades included:

Heavy crop—Good cherry-red, 565; fair cherry-red, 60; fair red, 42; low cherry-red, 48.

Tips—Fair cherry-red, 54; fair greenish, 32.

Thin crop—Fine cherry-red, 71; good cherry-red, 69; fair buff, 65; fair cherry-red, 67; fair red, 62; low cherry-red, 62.

Seconds—Good cherry-red, 63; fair cherry-red, 56; fair red, 47; low cherry-red, 47.

Government Seizure... The Road to State-ism

It has been proposed in the Congress that the Federal Government be granted authority to seize plants, facilities and mines in labor disputes. This proposal is contrary to all principles of a free economy. It violates every concept of fair play. Seizure does not solve labor problems. It leads to more seizure—more government in business. Ultimately, it leads to State-ism. This is not the American way.

NO PROPOSAL ever sounded more innocent. Yet none ever was loaded with such potential danger to our American way of life. None ever made so vicious a threat to destroy private enterprise—the system which has contributed so much to the strength and growth of our country.

Some persons in high positions—persons whose views on questions of public policy are usually carefully considered, with intelligence and restraint—actually endorse this proposal for peacetime Government seizure.

That is a shocking thing! But the stature of its sponsors, or their undoubted sincerity in advocating the proposal in no way lessens the danger.

Let no one be deceived—once we embark on this road, we are headed directly toward State-ism.

Surely the very suggestion of Government seizure as a device for resolving labor disputes is an admission of weakness. At best, it is a temporary expedient. Any idea of putting a statutory time limit on the period of Government control does not help matters. It is inconsistent with the theory upon which the right of seizure is proposed.

Under our Constitutional form of Government there is certainly a better way of terminating or averting work stoppages that impair the national welfare than by arbitrary seizure of the private property of a non-offending party. Such seizure is neither a direct treatment of the problem nor a completely honest recognition of the situation.

The owners and operators of the Nation's bituminous coal mines speak from painful experience. Their properties, under war powers, were seized by the Government five times. These seizures became the vehicle for dictating terms of surrender to the Union on all the essential points at issue. They forced mine owners to make concessions that were uneconomic, and that sowed the seed for future trouble, as the price for having their mines returned to them. Government operation during the period of seizure—periods of temporary nationalization—accomplished nothing except to reveal the Government's weakness.

The gesture of writing into a seizure law a provision that the Government itself cannot make a new wage agreement for seized properties does not in any way eliminate or even reduce the fundamental objections to the proposal. It is still seizure of private property; and the weight of the Government could still prevail—against the employer or against the employees—according to the dictates of political expediency.

Far-sighted labor leaders should be the first to oppose proposals for peacetime Government seizure. Workers, under Government seizure, become Government employees. Thereby, they forfeit the freedom of action which prevails in a free economy.

The case against seizure is clear-cut for reasons such as these:

★ Seizure is unnecessary. The National Emergency provisions of the Labor-Management Relations Act are sufficient.

★ If the National Emergency provisions of the present law are inadequate, they should be strengthened, rather than go to the alternative of Government seizure. A further remedy would be to abolish the immunities which labor unions now enjoy under the antitrust laws.

★ Prospect of Government seizure destroys true collective bargaining, as was the case in the coal industry from 1943 to 1947 under the Smith-Connally Act.

★ Government seizure means that militant labor leaders are given authority to force the seizure of industries at will. They are in position to precipitate seizure by exorbitant demands. Thus "Government seizure" is really "labor union seizure" in essence.

★ Government seizure is a boomerang. Once it takes place, the Government finds it extremely difficult to terminate. The labor organizations will not permit return of the properties except under conditions satisfactory to them. This means capitulation to the very people whose action is responsible for the seizure.

★ A seized industry is generally a white elephant to the Government. Even in prosperous times the Government may build up huge liabilities. In a highly competitive period, losses to the public treasury would be enormous.

★ Government does not have the trained personnel necessary to administer seized properties, nor can it train them under emergency conditions.

★ Government seizure as a permanent policy can lead only to nationalization, not alone for natural resources, but also for all major industries; in fact, Government seizure is temporary nationalization.

★ And nationalization will inevitably lead to lowered production, less efficient distribution, abolition of competition, higher costs, growth of State-ism, loss of personal freedom for labor and management, and ultimate destruction of representative Government.

★ The American people cannot afford and do not want policies leading to these results.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE INVITATION HE received from Commissioner A. B. Chandler to come back to baseball and be forgiven, does not find Pitcher Max Lanier reacting with the expected alacrity. In fact, he is saying "nuts to organized baseball under the conditions offered."

Until this week, Drummonsville, Quebec, was just a whistle-stop somewhere in Canada, but now it is not to be underrated. Lanier finds that little hamlet able to pay him more for pitching than the St. Louis Cardinals are offering.

POVICH

Lanier applied for reinstatement, along with the other 22 players who jumped to Mexico in 1946, and then discovered that the Cardinals demanded he "make good" before offering him a contract for $11,000, the salary he was getting when last with the team.

So he is saying baseball can have its reinstatement, and he won't report. He's making more money in Canada, with his $10,000 salary and living expenses and "extras" and is not at all enchanted with the idea of returning to the big leagues on a make-good basis.

IF THE OFFER Lanier got from Owner Fred Saigh of the Cardinals is typical of the greeting the other reinstated players get, then the club owners are fouling up Commissioner Chandler's original idea of reinstatement.

Chandler made it clear in his press conference in Washington earlier in the week that the players were to be welcomed by their respective clubs at no less than the same salaries they previously drew. At first Cardinal Owner Saigh had said that paying Lanier $11,000 was out of the question. The Cardinal's owner suggested a provisional contract based on Lanier's ability to return to form in the majors, and mentioned no specific salary.

Then, prompted by Chandler, Saigh announced that he has mailed a contract to Lanier, offering him the same salary for which he contracted prior to his departure to Mexico.

"Upon expiration of the 30-day trial period ordered by the commission, I shall be happy to discuss with these players the drawing of new contracts commensurate with their caliber of play," Saigh said last night.

WHEN THE PLAYERS who jumped are getting, chiefly, is the removal of any stigma that may have attached to them as contract violators and outlaws. If they re-sign with their respective clubs, they get no real protection except a guarantee of the salary they sign for, as long as they are retained. A 10-day release notice are in all contracts.

That's one of the inequities of the baseball contract, anyway, that 10-day relase clause. The player is bound to the club for years, under the reserve clause, but the club owner can liquidate the contract in 10 days, at any point. On that score it is a one-sided document and the player gets all the worst of it.

The final test, though, is the player's ability. Good ball players aren't released, and if there is any friction with a club owner, the player's job in the majors is still safe as long as he can produce. Fifteen other clubs would be eager to sign him and take their chances on being able to make him content, especially in these days of player scarcity.

THE PROTECTION Chandler can offer to the players he is welcoming back is limited. He can demand that the club owners receive them back, at their previous salaries, but thereafter they are at the mercy of what is called "the rules of baseball," and those rules are in the owner's favor.

The players who do come back to the game can be retained by their clubs, or optioned to the minor leagues, or sold outright to the minors, if waivers are obtained. The only manner in which Chandler can guarantee employment in the big leagues to them for the rest of the season is by reaching an understanding of his own with the club presidents.

Only a few of the returning players will qualify as big leaguers, but if their welcome is to be a true one, then the majors should give all of them a good shot at making good. Any hasty releases after they report will make the spirit of their reinstatement suspect.

MAIL CALL—Postman Dewey Hodge delivers a package to Charley Lupica atop a 40-foot pole where Lupica, a Cleveland storekeeper, has vowed to stay until the Indians climb in the first place in the American League. In the package are a deck of cards and red flannel drawers sent by a well-wisher. The Tribe was in seventh place when Charley went aloft May 31. Now, it's in sixth. His perch yesterday was okayed by city health officials

City Decides Defiant Cleveland Rooter Can Stay on Flagpole

Cleveland, June 8 (AP).—City lawyers decided today that flagpole-sitting Charley Lupica can stay up on his 40-foot perch.

Happy at the news the 37-year-old storekeeper avowed anew he would stay there until the Cleveland Indians climb into first place in the American League. Lupica starts his ninth day up there today.

Yesterday the city sanitation police decided Charley would have to come down because the rope-and-bucket sanitary facilities he used were "too much like canal boat days."

Capt. Leo Schamadan of the City Sanitation Police said Lupica had no camping license and if he were allowed to stay in his loft "we'll have hundreds of people asking for permits to pitch tents in trees and camp in city parks."

But today Joseph Crowley, chief legal counsel for the city, said he had studied Lupica's case carefully and decided:

"His perch isn't a hut, tent or barracks, so he isn't camping."

Tigers Beat Yanks, 3-2, In 11 Innings

Detroit, June 8 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers cashed in on the wildness of Lefthander Tommy Byrne to beat the New York Yankees, 3 to 2, in 11 innings tonight.

The victory cut the Yankees' lead over the second-place Tigers to 4½ games.

Byrne, who issued 13 walks, got himself into a hole in the eleventh when with two away he loaded the bases to set the stage for Vic Wertz.

Wertz lined the 3-2 pitch into right field, driving in the winning run to give the Tigers their second straight victory over the New Yorkers.

Virgil (Fireballer) Trucks survived a shaky first inning and pitched the three-hitter against the Yankees for his eighth win as against three losses.

Bogart Gains Mid-Atlantic Semifinals

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Ralph Bogart who only last month added the Kenwood Invitational to his string of golf victories, seems to be well on the way to the Middle Atlantic amateur title, too.

Bogart yesterday defeated Karl Corby, 1 up, and then went on to beat his business partner, former Middle Atlantic Golf Association Amateur Champion Bobby Brownell, 2 and 1, to advance to the semifinals of the Middle Atlantic amateur.

Bogart will meet Spencer Overton, 1940 amateur champ, in the semifinal round today. Overton defeated Jack Barr, 1 up, and Lawrence O'Brien, 3 and 2.

The other semifinal will match Ed Finnessy and Jim Gardner. Finnessy defeated medalist Billy Griffin, 1 up, in the morning and then trounced Parker Nolan, 4 and 3. Gardner downed Roger Martino, 2 and 1, and Col. Jim Wilson, 1 up.

Bogart, who had surged to a 4-up lead on the twelfth hole, watched Brownell, almost even the match with a par thirteenth and birdies on the fourteenth and fifteenth.

They halved the sixteenth and Bogart rammed in a 20-foot putt on the seventeenth for a birdie and his margin of victory.

FIRST FLIGHT (first round)—Finnessy defeated Griffin, 1 up. Nolan defeated Curtiss, 4 and 3. Wilson defeated Bowie, 2 and 1. Gardner defeated Martino, 2 and 1. Overton defeated O'Brien, 3 and 2. Barr defeated Emich, 3 and 2. Bogart defeated Corby, 1 up. Brownell defeated Miller, 3 and 4.

Second round—Finnessy defeated Nolan, 4 and 3. Gardner defeated Wilson, 1 up. Overton defeated Barr, 1 up. Bogart defeated Brownell, 2 and 1.

SECOND FLIGHT (first round)—Swearinger defeated Mason, 7 and 6. Cooke defeated Chamilson, 1 up, on 20. Holtsberg defeated Slater, 1 up. Halle defeated Deel, 7 and 5. Crasz defeated Reinhardt, 1 up. Given defeated Essex, 1 up. Mehr defeated Murray, 3 and 4. Cornell defeated Schaub, 4 and 3.

Second round—Cooke defeated Swearinger, 2 up. Halle defeated Holtsberg, 2 and 1. Crasz defeated Given, 6 and 4. Mehr defeated Cornell, 2 up.

Today's pairings—9:45 a. m.: Cooke and Mason; 9:50, Crasz and Mehr; 9:55, Finnessy and Gardner; 10:00, Overton and Bogart.

Eddie Will Be Out 10 Days; Kozar Hits Homer

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cleveland, June 8. — In two hours and five minutes tonight the Nats lost a ballplayer, a ball game and third place in the American League standings.

Third Baseman Eddie Yost sprained his ankle in the first inning against the Cleveland Indians, who also fractured Paul Calvert's two-game winning streak, 8 to 3.

Yost received his injury sliding into Shortstop Ray Boone trying to break up a double play and will be out of the line-up for at least 10 days.

The second straight defeat at the hands of the world champions —and the third in a row for the Nats — dropped Washington from third place to fourth.

Cleveland's success was achieved on a yield of nine hits by three Nat pitchers, but only four of the safeties were singles. There were a couple of home runs, a triple and two doubles thrown into the barrage which pleased 21,363 customers no little.

Bob Lemon, who lasted only four innings last night, went the distance this chilly evening, expertly spacing seven hits to enter his fourth victory into the record books.

Lemon Homers, Too

Pitcher Lemon was also a good hitter, swatting a home run in his own behalf while Joe Gordon chipped in his eighth homer to further the delight of the top-coated throng.

Al Kozar highlighted the puny little Nat offensive with his first homer and a double against Lemon and scored two runs. Kozar's wallop came at a time when the Indians had climbed into a 6-1 lead, an advantage plenty ample enough for Lemon not be either disturbed or distracted over the hit.

Yost started the ball game with a single to left field on Lemon's first pitch, but two pitches later the 22-year-old third baseman was being carried off the field on a stretcher.

When Sherry Robertson grounded to Joe Gordon, Yost spilled Shortstop Ray Boone trying to bust up the double play but bruised his right ankle instead, as Boone completed the twin killing.

The sinker-balling Calvert was sailing along in fine fashion for two innings against his old teammates, but they reacted against his presence so roughly in the third inning that Calvert was ushered out of the game under cover of a four-run, four-hit frame.

A Boone double and a Dale Mitchell single made it 1-0, but Thurman Tucker's double brought in two more runs and Mickey Vernon singled Tucker home to increase the Indians' advantage to 4-0. When Calvert walked Larry Doby it was decided it wasn't Calvert's night and Dick Welteroth came in.

He retired the side on one pitch, inducing Gordon to line into a double play. Lemon's homer over the right field fence, which brought Lou Boudreau home also, made it 6-0 in the fourth inning and Gordon slammed his four-master in the fifth inning with Doby aboard to complete the Indian scoring.

Kozar's smash came in the fifth with the bases empty and the Nats had that run and hardly anything else until the seventh when Kozar's double to left, Evans' single and Buddy Lewis' pinch-double produced the other two runs.

The Nats are idle for the next two days, swinging back into action Saturday against Detroit with Walter Masterson pitching.

Barney Hurls Two-Hitter, Bums Win, 3-1

Brooklyn, June 8 (AP).—Rex Barney pitched his first complete game of the season today, a two-hitter, as the Brooklyn Dodgers subdued the Chicago Cubs, 3-1, to maintain their league leadership and run up a three-game winning streak.

Jackie Robinson paced the eight-hit attack against Bob Muncrief with a first inning triple and a third inning single to knock in the Dodgers' first two runs. Duke Snider's sixth inning walk, Robinson's sacrifice, and Gil Hodges' single, accounted for the other tally.

Over the last three games, Brooklyn pitching has allowed a total of 12 hits, and with Barney's six strikeouts, ran the whiffing total over the same span to 27.

Barney was wild in the early innings, but settled down and retired the last 10 men in order. The Cubs scored their lone run in the fifth when Frank Gustine walked and raced home on Muncrief's triple to the right-center field exit gate.

Chisox Buy Metkovich, Send Scala, Goldsberry to Oaks

CHICAGO, JUNE 8 (U.P.).—The Chicago White Sox sent Rookie First Baseman Gordon Goldsberry and Outfielder Jerry Scala to Oakland of the Pacific Coast League today to obtain the veteran George Metkovich as a replacement for Rookie Gus Zernial, who broke his collarbone.

The Sox also included an unspecified amount of cash for the services of Metkovich.

Goldsberry and Scala were sent to Oakland on option.

The Sox also bought for the $10,000 waiver price First Baseman Charles (Buck) Kress from the Cincinnati Reds, and sent Outfielder Pat Seerey to Kansas City of the American Association on option. Earlier this season, Seerey was on option to Los Angeles.

Metkovich, 28, who hit .336 for Oakland last year and has a .357 mark through 61 Coast League games so far this season, is flyng to Chicago in time to enter the Sox line-up for a night game with Boston Friday.

Metkovich had previous big league experience in Boston and Cleveland.

Mayor, Speeches, Auto All Ready, But No Scala

New York, June 8 (AP).—The sudden optioning of Gerry Scala to the Pacific Coast League by the Chicago White Sox today has the city of Bayonne, N. J., in a dither.

This is the situation:

The citizens of Bayonne were planning to give Scala, a native son, a "night" when the Chicago White Sox visit the New York Yankees next Tuesday.

Contributions had been received. About 2000 tickets had been sold. The Mayor of Bayonne had prepared a speech. And a new car had been ordered.

But now, no Scala.

"I don't know what we'll do," moaned one of the committee members.

A spokesman for the Yankees said he was interested, too. The ball club had counted on the celebration for the usual pregame festivities that accompany night games at the stadium.

LaMotta-Cerdan Fight Won't Be Aired or Televised

Detroit, June 8 (U.P.).—In what was believed to be the first move of its kind in 20 years, the International Boxing Club announced today that its middleweight title fight between Champion Marcel Cerdan and Jake LaMotta June 15 in Briggs Stadium, will not be broadcast, televised or filmed.

Nick Londes, matchmaker for the IBC, said the promoters felt they had one of the best fights of the year and that it deserved a packed house.

"This doesn't mean that the the IBC will not grant radio, television and motion picture rights for all its fights, Londes said.

He disclosed that all parties concerned, including Cerdan and LaMotta, agreed not to let the fight go out of the stadium.

The IBC matchmaker revealed that he had offers as high as $60,000 for the radio-television rights.

"It wasn't that we weren't offered enough, but we thought it would be more of an attraction to get fans to the fight if that was the only way they could see or hear it," Londes said.

Kline Pitches, Bats Eastern To Title Over Tech, 4-0

Righthander Eddie Kline pitched and batted Eastern to its first Interhigh baseball championship in four years last night, as the Ramblers shut out McKinley Tech, 4-0, before 2500 at Griffith Stadium.

It was Kline's looping double to right-center in the second inning, which drove in the first two Eastern runs.

It was Eddie's second win in three starts against Tech this year, and the Ramblers' third victory over the Trainers in their four meetings.

The game was marred by five Tech errors, and the tossing of paper onto the field.

Jack Pope, Tech's righthanded author of a no-hitter and two one hitters this season, was touched for seven hits by Eastern and suffered his second loss against seven victories.

The Ramblers broke into the scoring column in the second when Teddy Dyer walked, Dave Keys singled, and Kline connected for his two-run double. They added another in the third on Harry Kallas' walk, Pope's balk and George Billups single to left. Singles by Billups and Keys and an error wound up scoring in the fifth.

Player Limit Stretched 30 Days for 'Jumpers'

Returnees Get Full Tryouts

Cincinnati, June 8 (AP).—The 25-player limit may be exceeded for only 30 days by major league ball clubs holding contracts of men Commissioner A. B. Chandler reinstated last Sunday.

And whenever a team puts one of the boys into a championship game, the grace period ends for him and someone other than a returned player must be lopped off the list.

Commissioner Chandler so advised club owners today. At the same time, he threw some protection to the 18 men formerly outlawed for jumping to the Mexican League. He told the owners they shall not be released unconditionally, nor their contracts assigned to a minor league club, until the expiration of the 30-day period.

The 30-day period will begin on the date each player is returned to the fold of his particular club, it was said at the commissioner's office.

Shortly after announcing the reinstatement of the players, the commission said a reasonable amount of the time would be given the clubs before they would have to return to the 25-player limit.

Chandler's ruling would seem to give more protection to teams which have no returnees.

Four National League clubs—Brooklyn, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis — have reinstated men to deal with, while Detroit, Chicago and Philadelphia have the same problem in the American League.

Lou Klein of the St. Louis Cards, and George Hausmann of the New York Giants, infielders, have applied for reinstatement, Ford Frick, president of the National League, announced today.

They brought to eight the number of National League jum

Trot Driver, 84, Injured

Eighty-four-year-old Elbert Saunders, handling the reins on Miss Lawrence Tip Hanover, was injured last night in a three-horse pile-up in the seventh race, second dash of the Senator, feature of Rosecroft raceway's 11th night.

Saunders fell under the pack, but escaped with a possible arm fracture and a slight concussion. He was removed to a hospital for X-ray.

Sidney Volomite, on top when the trouble hit, steered clear of the pack and won the second dash, outlasting Mr. Peter Mite, 2-5 favorite, to win by a neck. Howard Allen drove the winner and Joe Hylan handled the favorite.

Sidney Volomite, outsider in the betting, paid $18.60, $4.40 and $3.80, while Mr. Peter Mite returned $2.80 and $2.20. Silver Hope was third, returning $5.00.

Field of 162 Seeks $2000 Pot of Gold

By Fritz Howell

Chicago, June 8 (AP).—America's top-flight golfers had their last free ride today around Medinah's famed Course No. 3.

And most of the field of 162 in the final practice round failed to find the answer to a flock of questions this exacting layout will ask as the forty-ninth National Open Tournament gets under way tomorrow.

Included in the cast of aspirants for the throne abdicated by injured Ben Hogan are 131 professionals, 1 semipro, and 30 amateurs. All appeared puzzled by the meandering Medinah maze with its tree-trimmed fairways and postage stamp greens.

Ten former champions will be seeking the winner's $2000 pot of gold along with seven PGA and four national amateur kings. But there was no assurance the new ruler would come from among that batch of tournament-tested talent, for this is the kind of course where the better than average shot maker has just as much chance as the expert.

The consensus among the professionals was "anyone good enough to qualify for this tournament can win it," which would tend to make the three-day 72-hole medal play test a wide open affair all the way. The course, approximately 7000 yards long, plays a tough par 36-35—71.

Regardless of the wide-open angle, the boys who make a business of betting a bob on this and that have established Sam Snead, Masters, PGA and National celebrities victor, as the favorite at 6 to 1. Bobby Locke is next at 8 to 1, and Lloyd Mangrum third at 10 to 1.

Lord Byron Nelson, who hasn't been playing too much lately, was quoted at 20-1 despite four rounds of 72-71-71-71 for 285 over last weekend—a score picked by most of the pros as good enough to win. Nelson wasn't on hand for today's last free look at the layout, having popped out of town to pick up some expense money in a couple of exhibitions.

D.C., New York Firemen Play Benefit Ball Game July 15

Washington's second annual benefit baseball game between the Washington Fire Department and the New York firefighters has been scheduled for Friday night, July 15, at Griffith Stadium.

Youth of the entire Washington area will benefit, with proceeds going to the Police Boys' Club of Washington, and similar recreational organizations for boys in Montgomery, Prince Georges and Arlington Counties.

Arrangements for the game were completed yesterday at a luncheon meeting of more than 50 civic leaders, fire department officials, officers of the Police Department and representatives of the Police Boys' Club at the Statler Hotel.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Nationals, was present and announced that he would donate the use of the stadium for what he described as a most worthy cause—"helping to make better citizens of our youngsters."

Kip Edwards, prominent member of the Touchdown Club, is general chairman of the game and presided at the luncheon. Edwards recalled that last year over 8000 people attended the inaugural game, which saw the visitors come through with a late rush to win.

Fire Chief Clement Murphy, whose men make the games possible, personally thanked Mr. Griffith for his kindness.

General admission has been kept at a minimum to give every one a chance to help the boys. General admission is $1, and box seat tickets $2. Tickets will be on sale at all fire departments in the metropolitan Washington area.

House Group Votes to End Leoffler's Golf Concession

pense by Leoffler and couldn't find adequate receipts for $13,889 paid out.

Leoffler, 61-year-old native of Providence, R. I., who has been doing business in Washington since 1908, insisted that Barr and Robinson were incorrect in their figures.

"There's not a single exception that will hold water," he shouted. "I want this fraud business straightened out, I have my reputation to think about."

Poulson, a certified public accountant, said he had been quoted correctly when he called Leoffler's conduct of his business "morally fraudulent and as premeditated as though the money had been taken out of the till."

Poulson cited the figures of Barr and Robinson and repeated his charge.

"It's a lie, it's a lie," exclaimed Loeffler. Poulson said that was a matter for the Public Lands Committee to decide and Chairman Redden cautioned Loeffler to be more "diplomatic."

Poulson said to his congressional closely about this accounting services and asked to see the work sheets on the Leoffler business. He also questioned him about his fee of $25,515 for the past five years.

Bernstein exploded, "It's nobody's business what I charge. If a client doesn't like it, he won't retain me."

Poulson said to his Congressional colleagues, "I know something about the ethics of a certified public accountant, he's been violating them."

Leoffler still was sizzling hours after the subcommittee's decision. Asked for comment, he said, "I don't know any more about it than you do."

He launched into a lengthy defense of his business operations and said, "I still have a commitment that's as good as gold in court. But I hope it doesn't have to go that far.

"They've tried for three months to find something on me but can't. It's all a frameup, Poulson's doing this for publicity. He's quitting Congress and wants to make a name for himself.

"I have some rights, I hope."

Poulson, who did most of the financial investigating for the subcommittee, said, "It's up to the Government to take action now. But I'm not through. I'll be watching to see what is going to be done about these discrepancies that have been uncovered and the Government officials who have been so negligent."

James E. Schwab, sr., vice chairman of the Recreation Board, said, "We'll run the courses to satisfy the golfers, not to make a profit."

Not helping the muddled situation any is that the Recreation Board will want the Interior Department to purchase the equipment on the courses and hopes the District government will advance it $50,000 for operations. Both are major appropriations targets.

Narragansett Strike Averted

Providence, R. I., June 8 (AP).—A threatened strike by jockeys at Narragansett Park was called off early this afternoon after a conference among a committee of riders and track officials over the former's objection to the height of the track's inner guard rail.

John (Red) Pollard, one of the conferring jockeys, said the Narragansett management agreed to measure the height of the inner rail at Suffolk Downs in East Boston and make the Narragansett rail conform to the same height. Resurfacing and rebuilding of the racing strip through the years has reduced the height from the ground to the top of the rail.

Speaker Pulls Away From Electron to Win at Charles Town

Favored Ariel Gift A Poor 3d

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 8.—C. B. Carter's Speaker, a 3-year-old who has been knocking at the door in eight races, finally bounded out of the maiden ranks by whipping a good field of distance horses in the featured Fairfax purse.

The Orangfe, Va., owned daughter of Battleship, won going away by three parts of a length with C. H. Lamparter's Electron second and five lengths in advance of Miss Virginia McKenney's Ariel Gift, the favorite in the field of eight.

Hill Rides Neat Race

Speaker, a stablemate of Warstory, the current champion here, was overlooked in the betting, probably because she was facing older horses, and paid $24.20. The chestnut filly was clocked in a creditable 1:50 2/5 for the mile and one sixteenth over a fast track and under cloudless skies.

Jockey J. R. Hill, rode the winner and turned in a neat performance. He rated the filly while Cacique II, Electron and Hairanette vied for the pacemaking honors, when the real racing began, Electron shook off Cacique II and appeared to have things his own way in the early stretch.

However, Hill placed Speaker to a drive and the filly responded, circling horses and then going after and wearing down Electron. She was opening a gap at the end. Electron easily was second best. Ariel Gift, an early trailer, rallied mildly and then weakened.

A pair of thrilling nose finishes figured in the daily double which paid $23. In the opener, E. N. Kratz's Flying Wise got up in the last jump to take the camera decision from J. Frederick's Pawnee Boy.

The winner paid $3.80. In the second, H. Ledas' Blue Echo caught Mrs. L. E. Everhart's Road Scraper right on the wire to bring his backers a $7.60 payoff.

Stanley Miller Best Rifle Shot In Marine Corps

Quantico, Va., June 8.—Tech. Sergt. Stanley G. Millar of 710 South 4th St., Kelso, Wash., entered in competition with the top Leatherneck shooters from all over the world, was crowned the best rifle shot of the Marine Corps today as he fired a score of 568 out of a possible 600 to win the All-Marine Corps rifle matches.

Millar's score of 568 is only one point short of the record for All-Marine Corps rifle competition established here last year by M/Sergt. Fred Butcher from Parris Island, S. C., and his nearest competitor in today's shooting was M/Sergt. John A. Ward of Sidon, Miss., with a score of 558.

Palestinian Works Out

New York, June 8 (AP).—Palestinian, a leading candidate for the $75,000 Belmont Stakes Saturday, worked a fast 1:38 3-5 mile today at Jamaica. The time is exceptional for Jamaica, which has a slow strip and sharp turns.

Fisherman Hits Daily Double—Two on One Hook

By Ralph Murdock

HAVE YOU EVER heard of two fish being caught on a single hook?

It is quite a rarity, but it has actually happened at Fontana Village, N. C., where a double catch of bass was made at Fontana Lake.

Murdock

There must have been more fish than bait swimming around in Fontana Lake in the Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina when two large-mouth bass made a mad dash for a "Lucky Thirteen Plug." The result—a daily double that flashed a total of 6 pounds on the scales from Mr. H. H. Miller of Taccoa, Ga. In Mr. Miller's party were Mrs. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Cheek. and continuing through 54-thread to all-tackle, on which no line limit was imposed.

The subject has been under study for several years among the world-wide members of the The foursome captured a total of eight bass.

THE GAME AND INLAND Fish Commission of Maryland has isued the following regulation which became effective June 1:

"It shall be unlawful in the State of Maryland to take 'bait fish' of any description from any trout stream or its tributaries. No person firm or corporation shall take or have in possession more than 35 bait in any one day taken from nontidal waters of this State. This regulation shall not apply to bait fish propagated or reared commercially."

BECAUSE OF the difficulty in manufacturing the popular synthetic fishing lines to conform with the old "three pounds per thread" standard, the International Game Fish Association has changed its scoring to the breaking strain of the line used in making the catch.

Previously, record catches were classed by the number of "threads" composing the line beginning with the three-thread I. G. F. A. These clubs recently voted more than 20-to-1 in favor of the new classification method.

HERE ARE four dyed-in-the-wool fishermen who make fishing what it is. They are George L. Williams, Oliver W. Madden, Frank Crump and John A. Wilson.

Hearing of some excellent catches of red and black drum at Oyster, Va., the local foursome put in a call for a boat. They got a "busy" signal for six hours.

Finally, a boat was located and the anglers were off for the fishing grounds. Daylight saving time put them on location an hour early. Hooks were being attached to the lines when Capt. Henry Stiles arrived. "Those hooks are no good down here," said the skipper. "Put these on and if you hook a big one, you might land it."

With these words, their fishing morale reached a new high. Whole hard shell crabs were used for bait. Intense expectation prevailed. In fact, it prevailed for five hours, and was still prevailing when the captain called it quits. Not a drum was hooked but the perserverance was still there.

They changed to squid bait and in one hour landed enough large trout to turn a dismal fishing trip into a successful one.

CAPT. RODIE LANGLEY at Solomons Island hit the jack pot on rockfish when his party nabbed 102 stripes. They weighed from 2½ to 10 pounds. Rodie caught the rock by trolling and chumming with grass shrimp. An excellent catch of 38 jumbo size hardheads was also taken by the same party. The successful anglers were Phil Lustine and his wife Alma, Harry Wolf, Samuel Wolf and George Sperling.

Capt. Leon Langley, another grand fishing guide in the same area, caught 33 big hardheads. Leon said, "The hot weather is steadily heading the fish up the bay. Croakers are now being caught out in the ship channel in 50 feet of water. Most of them are big ones that average 3 pounds."

Weekend Suggestions

ROCKFISH—Eastern Bay area, near Bloody Point Lighthouse. Catches up to 35 reported this week. Chumming best procedure.

HARDHEADS — Solomons Island. Catches up to 35 reported this week. Shrimp is okay for bait but peeler crab is preferred. Trout will take the latter.

WHITE PERCH—Patuxent, Severn and South Rivers have cleared. Sport should improve here. Use bloodworms.

CRAPPIE—Patuxent River at Hills Bridge and Pig Point area. Minnows furnished at these spots.

SPOT—Chesapeake Bay, scattered from Solomons to Shady Side. Catches up to 42. Use bloodworms.

Dear Folks:

Frank Gall, trainer for the Funkhouser horses, isn't the leading conditioner here but he has an excellent percentage. He has a knack of keeping Wingy and Super Flight, his two mainstays, at top form and on the improve. Among the newcomers to the training ranks, former Jockey Danny Scocca is doing well. Jockey Butsy Hernandez is riding for him and turning in an excellent job. Here's a horse you wont have to bet on any more—Indian Star. Sam Fillman gave him to Bobby Lee, a nearby Virginia boy, with the proviso that he never be raced again. Harold Holland, the capable starter here, has been a turf official for 11 years and is the fourth generation of a New Orleans family which either raced horses or served as officials, See you on the rail.—Bill.

New York Boxer Dies After Fall

New York, June 8 (AP).—Evangelist Ramos, 28, died today of a skull fracture and brain injury received last night when he tripped during a boxing bout at Marra's East Side gymnasium.

Police said Ramos tripped while boxing with Joseph Malone, 19, striking his head on the ring floor. Ramos regained consciousness but later, when he became ill, he was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Detectives said a technical charge of homicide would be placed against Malone. He is scheduled to be arraigned later today in felony court.

Montgomery Budget Backed By Civic Body

A proposed Montgomery County budget of 17 million dollars, calling for a 10-cent tax rate increase, was indorsed last night by the Montgomery County Civic Federation. The vote was 52 to 4.

Backing of the 10-cent hike followed a stormy session in which Delegate Blair Lee 3rd, representing the Silver Spring Board of Trade, led the opposition.

Lee contended that county payments on $3,780,000 in State funds would not begin until 1951 and increased revenues beginning July 1, amounting to $400,000, should make the increase unnecessary.

Action Slated This Month.

The proopsal by Lee that the federation refuse to indorse the setting aside of $370,000 next year to be applied toward the school debt was voted down.

The total budget figure indorsed by the group, during the meting at Bethesda Elementary School, was identical to that proposed by County Manager I. G. McNayr.

Final action on the budget figures is slated for this month by the County Council.

Included in the record figure is $7,834,000 for general operating purposes to be financed by county funds; $6,654,000 for capital expenditures and about $2,500,000 for miscellaneous purposes to be financed by special receipts.

School Fund Backed

In a resolution, the federation urged the County Council to make available $25,000 for Montgomery Junior College and that a salary schedule for teachers and principals be adopted by the County Council.

Advocates of the salary schedule proposal said the move would eliminate "constant bickering" between the county Board of Education and the County Council over what salaries teachers should receive.

Graduates Hear Hebert

Two hundred and twelve members of Southeastern University's graduating class last night heard Representative Hebert (D. La.) warn against excessive Government spending and paternalism.

Hebert spoke at commencement exercises of the university held in the Interior Department auditorium.

"What would it profit America if we gave freedom to the world and lost our own liberty?" the speaker asked.

"While we are giving money to help free other countries, we face the danger of losing our own freedom through a paternalistic government," he asserted.

A Washington man, Chester R. Cavaliere, 2904 Naylor rd. se., and Frank W. Morris of Tennessee, an employe of the FBI, were awarded the Scholarship Keys for high averages. Cavaliere, an Internal Revenue Bureau employe, also received the Sigma Alpha Sigma Fraternity award for scholarship.

Haller E. Bybee, a Navy man assigned to the Naval Medical Center, won, in absentia, the Alumni Award presented by Attorney Joseph M. Mathias.

Honorary doctor of law degrees were conferred on Dr. Carson P. Frailey, executive vice president of the American Drug Manufacturers Association, and William Montgomery, head of the Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Peter J. Maas, university president, addressed the group on the virtues of hard work and paid tribute to Dr. Thomas J. Frailey, university marshal and law professor who is retiring after 30 years service to practice law in Emmittsburg, Md.

Diplomats' Concert Is Enthralling

By Paul Hume

The Mexican Embassy provided a striking backdrop for last night's Latin American Diplomatic Corps concert.

The concert was given for the sustaining fund of the National Symphony Orchestra. It can be considered a victory concert since the fund has been attained in full.

Tycha Turlitaki Symeonides, Greek dramatic soprano, sang nine songs to open the program. Benjamin Tupas, Philippine pianist, added four piano compositions from Latin America. Then the native music of our southern neighbors really took over.

The Turlitaki voice is a brilliant lyric soprano with operatic vibrations all through it. Her Russian songs, and the Mirror Aria from Thais carried a great impact. Her Lieder singing is a bit too emotional for some of the songs of Schubert, and a rapid vibrato in intense passages mars the quality of tone. But her high soft singing was genuinely compelling.

Benjamin Tupas is a young pianist of great talent. He understands both his instrument and the problems and possibilities of using it for South American music. He was recalled by the enthusiasm of the audience.

But ah, the native costumes and dances that filled out the evening! Maria de Toutorsky was enthralling in an Aztec dance, with her dazzling headgear.

Finally, moving into the flaming native courtyard, the gathering saw Mexican dances, and heard Mexican songs, with North and South American singers and dancers mixed in an international display of talent.

4th Tick Fever Case Suspected

The Prince Georges County Health Department yesterday received a report of a possible tick fever case involving a Villa Heights, Md., woman in her 20's.

f the case is definitely tick fever, it will be the fourth reported this year in Prince Georges County. Three children reported ill earlier all have recovered as a result of treatment with chloromycetin.

The doctor in the new possible case said the patient has all the symptoms of the fever, but no record of tick contact has been found. The patient, he said, was well on her way to recovery yesterday.

Woman May Head Labor Party During Elections

Blackpool, England, June 8 (AP).—A miner's daughter may head the Labor Party during next year's general elections.

Miss Alice Bacon, a schoolteacher who became a member of Parliament in Labor's victorious sweep in 1945, was elected vice chairman of the party today.

Sam Watson, 61-year-old former miner, was elected chairman. Officers hold office a year and the vice chairman usually is moved up to the top post.

'Night of Thrills' Show Will Be Televised

"The Night of Thrills" Pageant will be seen on television for the first time this year when WMAL-TV televises all the events from 8 p. m., until conclusion on Friday.

The annual circus and pageant is sponsored by the Masonic Fraternity and the Order of the Eastern Star for the benefit of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home.

The show will be held at the Griffith Stadium where the queen, Miss Esther Rice, will be crowned by Clark Griffith.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—Robert E. Sherwood asked Irving Berlin and Moss Hart if they'd mind having his partners in the Playwrights Producers—Maxwell Anderson, Elmer Rice and Kurt Weill—attend the final rehearsal of "Miss Liberty" on Monday night. Berlin and Hart were reluctant to consent, apprehensive about the comments the three might make, but finally gave their consent . . . The three visitors watched the rehearsal, then joined the author, the songwriter and the director. They told Berlin that his songs were wonderful, told Hart his direction was flawless, then turned on their partner, Sherwood, and said: "Now listen, Bob—you've just got to rewrite the last scene."

Edmund Goulding, the movie director, was flying from Los Angeles to New York, and the plane started to rock and dip because of a storm. The hostess distributed magazines to the passengers, hoping that reading would ease their woes . . . Goulding opened his magazine, and then suffered acute agony. The hostess rushed to his side, and tried to calm the writhing man. "I can suffer a storm. I can suffer anything," Goulding groaned, "but not this"—and pointed to the page showing John Loder as a "Man of Distinction."

Fillipo Del Guidice, producer of "The Guinea Pig," has an Academy Award Oscar. It had been awarded to Sir Laurence Olivier for "Henry V," and Olivier gave it to him after announcing that Del Guidice really deserved it. Olivier made a similar announcement last week, when he received an Oscar for "Hamlet" . . . The producer, new in New York, said: "In this business you make films either for money or for taste, but not both." . . . Olivier, in referring to J. Arthur Rank, who financed Del Guidice's production of "Hamlet," said: "Mr. Rank has two matchless qualities. He is a thoroughly good man, and he has lots of dough."

Nat Karson, the producer-designer, flew to Denmark for the Elsinore production of "Hamlet." Before he left he paid three months rent to his landlord, restaurateur Lynne Gilmore. She asked him: "Do you expect to be in Elsinore that long?" . . . "Perhaps," said Karsen. "Shakespeare to the contrary notwithstanding, there's something wonderful going on in Denmark."

Eliot Elisofon, the cameraman, who just returned from a trip through the Pacific, came back with tales of a baseball team—tales which may send some big-league scouts to the Marshall Islands. For on Kwajalein, Elisofon saw a baseball team of Micronesians, small and agile natives of the atolls, play a series of ball games and win them all. They played against Navy teams, and Admiral Duke Ramsey was so impressed by their ability that he presented them with baseball uniforms, spikes, gloves, etc. . . . they were taught to play by the Japs. They beat Admiral Ramsey's flagship team, 13-2. They have a pitcher who never has lost a game. The Navy may fly them to Hawaii, and then to San Francisco for exhibition games.

Police Chief Has to Dress For Five Jobs

In the course of a single day, Police Chief Elliott H. Howe of Falls Church occasionally has to make a lot of quick changes in his getup.

Howe

This is because of the five city jobs Howe holds, some of which require police uniform, some civvies.

Howe pointed out yesterday that he is (1) police chief, (2) city sergeant, (3) sanitary inspector, (4) investigator of juvenile delinquency cases, and (5) observer and custodian in lunacy hearings.

"I do all these jobs for one salary, that of police chief," Howe commented.

If Howe sets out to make an arrest as police chief, he wears his uniform. If he goes out as city sergeant to serve a civil warrant, he must be in civilian attire. As sanitary inspector, he occasionally cracks down in uniform on criminal violations.

But as the juvenile investigator, and when sitting in lunacy hearings, Howe reverts to civilian garb.

"I have to be a real quick-change artist to keep up with all my jobs," Howe said.

Virginia Deadline For Candidates Made Local Choice

Richmond, Va., June 8 (AP). — Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond ruled today it is up to local party officials to decide whether June 2 or 3 was the qualifying deadline for candidates seeking election to party committees in voting to be held simultaneously with the August 2 primary.

Almond's opinion to State Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington confirmed informal statements from his office that June 3 was the final date on which candidates for the General Assembly and local offices could qualify to get their names printed on the official ballot.

Fenwick requested the ruling on behalf of the Arlington County Democratic Committee.

He wrote Almond that the Arlington committee had determined June 2 was the deadline for candidates to qualify. All Arlington candidates for the House and for the County Board filed by that date and so did most candidates for the county Democratic committee. However, several seeking committee posts filed on June 3.

Seniors Given 6 Goals At Sidwell Friends

Leonard S. Kenworthy, former program director of UNESCO, last night suggested six lifetime goals to the senior class of Sidwell Friends School.

Kenworthy said the goals should be to "individualize, socialize, idealize, specialize, synthesize and intellectualize."

He addressed 44 graduates at commencement exercises on the lawn of the Grayson property, 3825 Wisconsin ave. nw., next to the school.

J. Austin Stone, president of the board of trustees, discussed the school's history and announced tentative plans to build another classroom building.

Edwin C. Zavitz, headmaster, presented the diplomas.

Junior College Graduates 57

Fifty-seven students were graduated yesterday from the junior college of Georgetown Visitation Convent in exercises held in the auditorium of the school.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, presided. The commencement address was given by Col. Frank A. Allen, jr., who served on the staff of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower during the war.

45 Pass Virginia Pharmacist Tests

Richmond, Va., June 8 (AP).—The State Board of Pharmacy announced today that 45 persons passed examinations given by the board here Monday and Tuesday.

Among those who passed were: Louis C. Campbell, jr., Arlington; Herbert O. Hansen, Paul C. Martin, Carl F. Rotz, Campbell B. McFall, Clyde E. Whitley, Edward L. Palder, all of Washington; and Charles B. Hawthorne, Arlington.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

Embassy Fetes Greet Star, Aid Symphony, Bid Adieu

LATIN-AMERICAN embassies give an entertainment each year for the benefit of the sustaining fund of the National Symphony Orchestra. This yearly affair took place last evening at the Mexican Embassy. A gala program of music and dancing followed by a buffet supper was attended by hundreds of diplomats and their wives. Participating in the benefit were representatives of 20 Latin-American countries.

Promptly at 9 o'clock guests began to arrive at the embassy, where they were received in the green drawing room by the Ambassador and Senora de la Colina, Mrs. Thomas Burke, chairman of the benefit; Senora de Heurtematte, chairman of the dance committee, and Senora de Peon de la Valle, wife of the Mexican Counselor.

The program of entertainment included songs by Mme. Tycha Purlitaki Symunides, dramatic soprano, and a program of Latin-American music by Benjamin Tupas, pianist. Justo Sierra, First Secretary of the Embassy, briefed the audience on the native dances which followed. Pretty girls in native costume danced La Bamba of Mexico and the Tamborita of Panama. A beautiful tableau of Mexican girls in costumes of the 20 different provinces of Mexico was held in the conservatory as a finale to the program.

The buffet supper was held in the dining room, with delicacies from every Latin-American Embassy. A large bouquet of red and white roses centered the candle-lit table, and strolling musicians played guitars.

Initial Gans Reception Honors Departing Walkers

THE hospitable doors of the Cuban Embassy opened wide yesterday for the first reception given by the new Ambassador and Senora de Gans since their arrival early in the spring. Caribbean countries were well represented at the fete. The guest of honor was the former acting chief of Caribbean Affairs for the State Department, William W. Walker, who with Mrs. Walker is leaving soon for Uruguay to take up duties as First Secretary at the American Embassy.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of Uruguay and Senora de Dominguez-Campora, Chief of Protocol and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Daniels, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. John E. Peurifoy, the Assistant Secrtary of State and Mrs. William L. Thorp, and Leonard Price, chief of the Cuban desk at the Department of State.

The Cuban Minister of Agriculture, Virgilio Perez, and Senora de Perez, who are in town en route from Canada to Cuba, also attended yesterday's party. Among Caribbean diplomats and their wives were the Ambassador of Costa Rica and Senora de Esquivel, the Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro, the Ambassador of Guatemala and Senora de Gonzalez-Arevalo, the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Valle.

Lovely Swedish Actress Honored by Bohemans

MISS MARTA TOREN, beautiful Swedish actress, was honor guest at a reception held yesterday at the Swedish Embassy by the Ambassador and Mme. Boheman. The reception was from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock, preceding the opening of Miss Toren's latest film, "Illegal Entry," at Keith's RKO Theater.

Members of the Department of Justice were invited to attend the party, as "Illegal Entry" is a documentary film in which the department collaborated. Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark were among the guests, as well as J. Edgar Hoover and Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America and Mrs. Johnston.

Diplomatic guests included the Dean of the Corps, Norwegian Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne; the Danish Ambassador and Mme. de Kauffmann, the Minister of Iceland and Mme. Thors, Miss Margret Thors, and the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jutila.

WITH a starlit sky as the roof and the moon sailing overhead, the Shoreham terrace is a popular dining and dancing spot during the summer months. Miss Elaine LaFevre, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Jay LeFevre, expects to be here most of the summer, will spend a lot of evenings at a terrace table for two. With her is Walter Rice

Rings on Their Fingers

Rear Admiral Lun S. Fiske, USN, Deputy High Commissioner of the Trust Territories of the Pacific, and Mrs. Fiske of Guam, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Julianne Fiske, to Lieut. Comdr. Patrick Tiffany Vincent, USN, son of Charles Ridgly Vincent, and the late Mrs. Vincent of Chicago. The wedding will take place June 18 in Coronado, Calif., and Admiral Fiske will come to Coronado to give his daughter in marriage.

The bride-elect attended schools in Coronado and the East, and studied at George Washington University, where she was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority.

Commander Vincent, special events officer of the Eleventh Naval District, attended Pawling School, N. Y., and Francis Parker School in Chicago. He is a graduate of Denison University, Ohio, and took graduate work at Northwestern University. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

Mrs. Fiske arrived recently in Coronado, and with her daughter is at the home of Mrs. Charles L. Cross, jr., the former Miss Nancy Fiske, at 800 San Luis Rey ave.

Bailey—Robinson

Mrs. Edward Par Bailey of Falls Church, Va., and Wilmington, N. C., announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Clarice Pleasants, to Charles David Robinson of Candon, N. C., and Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Tingley Robinson. The wedding will take place June 18 at the Falls Church, in Falls Church, Va.

Miss Bailey attended St. Mary's School in Raleigh, N. C., was graduated from Sweet Briar College and also studied at Columbia University. Her fiance, a Navy veteran, was graduated from the University of North Carolina.

Robinson—MacAnanny

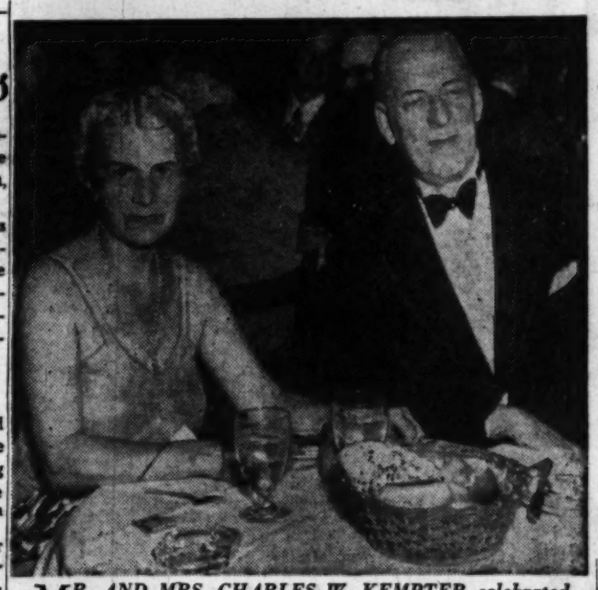
Miss Virginia A. Robinson and Raymond E. Mac Ananny have chosen June 16 for their wedding date. The ceremony will take place at South Baptist Church in Worcester, Mass.

Miss Robinson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melville G. Robinson of Worcester, and her fiance, a Navy petty officer, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mac Ananny of Pittsburgh, Pa. He has been stationed in Washington.

Galbraith—Barbour

The engagement of Miss Edna June Galbraith to Lieut. William Gray Barbour is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Galbraith of Owen Sound, Ontario, Canada. Lieutenant Barbour is the son of Mrs. Jean Gray Barbour of Boston, Mass.

The bride-elect has been attached to the British Missions and the British Embassy in Washington for the past four years. Her fiance is stationed at El Paso, Tex. The wedding is to take place July 2 in this city.



MR. AND MRS. CHARLES W. KEMPTER celebrated their silver wedding anniversary dancing every dance to Barnee's band on the Shoreham terrace. Mr. Kempter is with the State Department

In the June Bridal Parade

Miss Dina Morelli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Morelli of Quincy, Mass., became the bride on June 1 of John Wayles Kennedy, son of Mrs. Laura Hebb Kennedy and the late John Wayles Kennedy. The ceremony took place at Holy Trinity Church.

The newlyweds will spend their honeymoon in Europe and then reside in Paris for a year where they will study at the Alliance Francaise school. Mrs. Kennedy, a graduate of Simmons College, Boston, Mass., served with the Red Cross in Paris and Germany from 1945-47.

Chadwick—Hulburt

The marriage of Miss Betsy Ann Hulburt to Dr. Donald Roger Chadwick took place June 3 at St. Paul's Church, Alexandria, Va.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward O. Hulburt of Alexandria. Dr. Chadwick is the son of Mrs. Fay Billings Chadwick and the late Chester Robert Chadwick of Wollaston, Mass.

Miss Catherine Fairbanks Howell of Baltimore, Md., was her cousin's only attendant. Dr. Paul Marvin Brown of Portland, Ore., served as best man and the ushers were Dr. Fritz Holmstrom and Dr. John M. R. Bruner.

The newlyweds will live in Philadelphia, Pa., following their wedding trip to Nags Head, N. C. The bride, who made her debut in 1941 at the Bachelor's Cotillion in Baltimore, has just completed a course in medical illustration at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. She was graduated from St. Agnes School in Alexandria and the University of North Carolina.

Royal—Raynes

Lieut. and Mrs. Curtis Royal, USAF, who were married recently at Harmon Air Force Base, Guam, will return to the States in the fall.

The bride is the former Miss Pauline Anna Raynes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph R. Raynes of Washington. Lieutenant Royal's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Royal, also of this city.

Married Almost a Year to Man She Credits With Every Virtue of Good Mate, Girl Asks Help in Managing Her Inflammable Jealousy

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am married almost a year. My husband has all the virtues of a good mate and never a day goes by that he doesn't tell me he loves me.

Yet, though we are a perfect match—I am sure of that,—I am troubled by jealousy. If Dave just glances at another girl, or mentions how pretty some girl is, I get a terribly jealous feeling inside me, which makes me miserable.

I tell myself it's natural for anybody to remark about a pretty girl, but when Dave does so, I suffer. It preys on my mind and my imagination runs away with me. I try to talk myself out of this reaction, but my attempts to reason with myself don't help.

Please advise me, at once, what attitude to take when my husband remarks how pretty some girl is; and I thank you in advance for any assistance you can give me. G. S.

Maybe Bridegroom Has Poor Manners

DEAR G. S.: One gets the impression that your husband is often remarking on pretty girls; and if so, it is a habit he should correct,—not that it means he has a roving eye or fickle fancy, necessarily, or that he might be untrustworthy, but because it is an offense against manners. And someone has shrewdly observed that "manners, morals and money" are mighty important to happy marriage.

How do you think Dave would feel if you quite occasionally mentioned to him that this man or that one—met at a party, glimpsed on the street, a next-door neighbor, an office associate—was "terribly good looking" or "has a wonderful physique," or "a certain dash like Clark Gable" and so forth?

Doesn't common sense tell you not to do such a thing? that it would be tactless in the extreme; the worst way in the world to talk to a devoted bridegroom,—a sin against "savvy" practically guaranteed to hurt his feelings, mortify his hope of holding your interest, and cause him to clam up in vague disgust at your shallow inventory of the human scene. Of course it does; and I'm sure you've never made that mistake. Then why should he?

Is Her Philosophy of Marriage Sound?

YOU GENEROUSLY argue that it's natural enough for anybody to remark on a pretty girl; to which I say, it may be natural enough, as the usual thing, in a young man still looking for his mate and responding instinctively, with eagle eye, to Old Dame Nature's sales campaign. But it's psychologically inappropriate to

Brookses Plan Nonquitt Visit

MR. and Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke entertained at cocktails yesterday at their house in Georgetown to say adieu to their friends for the summer. They will leave Washington on Monday for their summer home at Nonuquitt, Mass., stopping in Philadelphia and Connecticut to visit friends.

Two recently completed portraits, one of Mrs. Charles Wahl, the other of Mrs. Paul S. Magnuson, painted by Artanef Tarsef, noted Bulgarian artist, were on view. Mr. Tarsef has excellent portraits of both Mr. and Mrs. Brooke in his collection of Washington subjects.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooke will have visiting them this summer Hans Sulzer, former Swiss Minister to the United States, and Mme. Sulzer, who will come from Switzerland. And occupying the Bates cottage on the estate for the summer will be Harry Fisher, former national president of the English-Speaking Union, and Mrs. Fisher.

Glogau.

Mrs. William Douglas Bush was Miss Carolyn Page Thomas before her wedding yesterday at Metropolitan Memorial Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Banks Thomas of Washington and the bridegroom, an Army lieutenant, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Bush of Tampa, Fla. The Rev. Edward G. Latch performed the ceremony and a reception followed at 2600 16th st. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin and lace and carried white orchids with her prayer book. Miss Patricia Thomas was maid of honor for her sister and W. D. Bush was best man

Goodrich.

Mrs. Robert Octavius Minter, jr., the former Miss Catherine Ann Goode, became a bride last evening in Martinsville, Va., with the Rev. Edwin S. Sheppe, jr., officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Hurd Goode of Martinsville, Va., and her husband, a Navy Ensign, is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Robert Octavius Minter of Jacksonville, Fla. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of tulle and Brussel's Point de Gage lace embroidered with seed pearls. She carried an heirloom fan with a spray of white orchids and lilies of the valley. A reception followed the ceremony at Forest Park Country Club.

Bessler.

Mrs. Allen McGlohn Miller, whose marriage took place last evening at the Church of St. Clement, Alexandria, Va., is the former Miss Helen Parry Cooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Brooks Cooke of Storisende, Alexandria. Mr. Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Elroy Miller of Springfield, Mo. The Rev. Darby Wood Betts, assisted by the Rev. B. B. Comer Lile, performed the ceremony, and Mr. Cooke gave his daughter in marriage. With her gown of white marquisette and lace she wore a crescent hat with orange blossoms that held her veil. She carried orchids and lilies of the valley with her prayer book.

Del Ankers

Mrs. Elmer G. Via, jr., is the former Miss Dorothy Jane Jerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilber L. Jerman of Arlington. Her marriage took place June 7 at 8 p. m., at the home of her parents. Her uncle, the Rev. J. Evan Balderson, officiated. For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and net, fashioned with fitted bodice and full skirt that fell into a train. Her veil of illusion fell from a headdress of seed pearls, and she carried an arrangement of white roses and babies' breath. After motoring to Niagara Falls and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Via will reside in Arlington.

The bride is with the U. S. Air Force in a secretarial a capacity. Mr. Via served with the Army two and a half years and was with the Timberwolf Division in the European Theater.

Hazzard.

Mrs. Frederick S. Knowles before her marriage Sunday afternoon was Miss Wilmpje Ann Long, daughter of Mrs. Wilmpje Long of Alexandria, Va. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cline H. Knowles of Arlington, Va. The Rev. Hedley J. Williams performed the ceremony at St. George's Episcopal Church in Arlington, Va., and Henry Waalewyn gave his cousin in marriage. She wore white lace, a seed pearl coronet holding her veil, and carried a gardenia with her white prayer book. The newlyweds will make their home in Arlington. Mr. Knowles is a premedical student at the University of Maryland

Zweig

Mrs. Joseph Thomas Tarrisi was the former Miss Susan Catherine Wade, before her marriage in the Holy Comforter Church on May 28. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Wade of Washington. Mr. Tarrisi is the son of Rosario Tarrisi of Johnstown, N. Y. The bride wore heirloom satin with inserts of Chantilly lace and a long train. Her veil of illusion fell from a halo caught with sprays of orange blossoms at the sides. She carried a bouquet of brides' roses and lilies of the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Tarrisi went to Niagara Falls on their wedding trip and will live at the Euclid Apartments.

Mary Haworth's Mail

a married man, no better suited to his riper status than a changing "now-falsetto-now-basso" voice would be.

So take a fresh appraisal of the situation, fortified this time with a more objective discerning attitude, before you conclusively damn yourself as the morbidly jealous wife of a supposedly blameless spouse. Dave may need a summons to grow; and if he is adolescently remarking habitually about pretty girls, tell him with some asperity that you find it disappointing, and ask what he'd think of a wife who was always giving "rave notice" to passing gents.

Also, ask yourself whether your philosophy of marriage is wrongly based. Possibly you think—mistakenly—that sex attraction is the one-and-only binding tie in marriage, or in any and every man-woman attraction. The truth is, admiration or respect and genuine liking—as for a dear friend—are equally (or perhaps a shade more) necessary to sustain marriage. And if Dave holds you in such regard, it's foolish to quake in fear every time he says "pretty!" of another girl.

LET'S be big about this Father's Day business and give the old boy something he actually wants, for a change. How about a really solid piece of clothing, for instance. The lightweight sports jacket (above) would fill the bill nicely and give him an extra coat for summer and fall wear. Made of soft shetland wool, it has four patch pockets, is single-breasted with three buttons. Comes in shades of blue, brown, natural and tan. It is worn with glen plaid trousers and panama hat. Available at Raleigh Haberdasher

On Father's Day

A Wise Child Will Maketh Father Glad

As father himself may have already hinted, he has a day of his own coming up June 19. And there had jolly well better be a little remembrance or two around the house that Sunday, or dad is liable to renege on the rent.

It's time he put his foot down because he has not fared too well on previous Fathers' Days. According to information supplied by the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, he's been lucky to net half as many greeting cards as mother gets on her special day.

In fact, the only countries in the world which even mark the day, outside of the United States, are Canada, Haiti, Honduras, China and Sweden.

Moreover, there are still some spots on the globe where he is anything but the top man he is in America. On Palau Island in the South Seas, the ruling matriarchs can have any male executed if he even disturbs their contemplation. Near Sumatra, dad has to go live with his wife's family; children take their mother's name—and only daughters inherit property!

In the African Sudan, father is in even worse shape. Mother may return to her parents after bearing five children, leaving the old man to look after the kiddies.

But in other parts of the world father began lording it over his family in a big way back in Biblical times. In those days it was considered a crime punishable by death for a child to give dad any "back talk." Throughout northern Europe a father felt disgraced if a son in his teens appeared publicly in his presence. Greek fathers selected wives for their sons, and no arguments allowed.

Champion father of ancient times undoubtedly was King Solomon. He had 700 wives and 300 concubines. There is no record, however, of how many youngsters played hide-and-seek in the royal palace. Solomon had a little-known modern counterpart. Emperor Mulai Ismail of Morocco had 300 wives and 700 concubines, reversing Solomon's proportion. He died in 1727 at the age of 81, leaving 548 sons and 340 daughters.

In America we did not get around to honoring him with a special day until 1910 when the Spokane (Wash.) Ministers Association sponsored the first city-wide observance. In 1924 President Coolidge recommended we make it a national affair.

Each year since the idea of observing Father's Day with cards, gifts and tributes has gained in popularity. While he still trails mother in outward demonstrations, he is making progress bit by bit. He's a persistent fellow, dad, and not a little practical. Who said he won't like that tie you select—he can always give it away for a graduation present, can't he?

Enough for All to Enjoy Today At the Southwest Sidewalk Fair

Dorothy Mason is officially the editorial and research assistant at the administrative offices of the Public Library of the District of Columbia, but to thousands of residents and school children of Southwest Washington she has come to be known as the emcee of one of the most colorful annual events in the District—the Southwest Sidewalk Fair, which will be held today at 7th and I sts. sw.

Among the exhibits which will be open to the public from noon to 8 p. m. will be those of Barney Neighborhood House, the Southwest Community House Nursery School, the D. C. Tuberculosis Association's "Wheel of Chance" and the hobbies made by the employes of the Bureau of Federal Supply.

The covered wagon, signifying "Opportunity—1849-1949," and the women dressed in costumes of the period, will add a dramatic touch to the occasion. Activities of the boys' clubs—the Junior Police and Citizens' Corp and the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club—will attract both boys and parents. The colorful and imaginative art of the elementary and junior high school children will also be featured.

Among the 27 other organizations that will participate in the fair this year will be the nutrition section of the American Red Cross, the D. C. Cancer Society, the Southwest Health Center, the Juanita K. Nye Council House, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and the Southwest playgrounds. The Southwest Citizen's Association and the Southwest Civic Association will be present to greet residents of the community. Music will be furnished by the United States Army and United States Air Force Recruiting Office.

It was four years ago that Mrs. Mason, in her capacity as reader's adviser at the Southwest branch of the Public Library, initiated this community enterprise. Recognizing that the resources of the library and other voluntary and official agencies were not being used to their fullest capacity, Mrs. Mason called a meeting for the purpose of discussing ways and means of making these various services known to the community. Out of this discussion came the Sidewalk Fair.

Since 1946 every organized group has had the opportunity to come together under the sponsorship of the Library and actually show the community by way of exhibits, posters and demonstrations the work they are doing against a background resembling a county fair with the spirit of a carnival.

The women's division of the National Conference of Christians and Jews will present one of the leading exhibits in the fourth annual Sidewalk Fair.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Hortense Amran, Mrs. Frank Ralston and Mrs. Margaret Headley, the visual presentation will demonstrate instances of discrimination and how the people of a community should meet it. This will be illustrated pictorially in a 30 by 40-inch montage.

In addition, during the course of the day, slides will be shown on the "Catholic and His Religion" and "Getting Acquainted With Jewish Neighbors." Some of the slides will be shown in an electric-lighted illumination box.

THREE student veterans won the short story contest sponsored by the Washington chapter, National Society of Arts and Letters. Award winners were announced at the society's annual scholarship benefit held Tuesday at the home of Colonel and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim. Ralph Waldo Walker of Wilson Teachers College was presented first prize of $100. Second prize of $50 went to Hugh Gordon Davis, a freshman at Maryland University, and William Michael Starrs, a junior at Catholic University, received the third prize of $25. The Post regrets its erroneous listing of the names in its Wednesday edition.

WCTU Parley Urges Prayer To Aid in Fight

Delegates to the diamond jubilee convention of the D. C. Woman's Christian Temperance Union yesterday adopted resolutions calling for (1) Nation-wide prohibition, (2) outlawing of interstate advertising of whisky and beer, and (3) requesting the railroads to discontinue the sale of all alcoholic beverages on trains.

The resolutions, passed at the concluding session of the three-day convention at Eastern Presbyterian Church, also advocated an intensified publicity crusade by church, school and temperance leaders against the use of alcoholic beverages in any form.

Preamble of the resolutions stated, "We renew our vows against the liquor traffic through organization, education, and legislation, reinforced with prayer—the mightiest force in the world."

Mrs. Guy Glossbrenner was elected president of the District WCTU at the afternoon session.

Other officers elected include Mrs. John Readey, first vice president; Mrs. Oswald Frommelt, second vice president; Mrs. C. C. Pulver, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Eugene Benson, assistant corresponding secretary.

Also included on the program were the presentation of life certificates and memorial certificates to members of the organization.

Mrs. Caroline E. Coates, president, presided throughout the convention.

Cruises Planned For Servicemen

Kenna Maine Post No. 37 of the American Legion is giving a moonlight cruise tonight, for servicemen of the various units. The cruise will be held on S. S. Bear Mountain. Mrs. Jerry Swartz, wife of the commander of the post; Mrs. Doris Pruitt, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the post, and Mrs. Walter L. Morgan are in charge of arrangements.

Miss Jeanene Watkins, president of the Senators Daughters Club, has announced that the club will join other organizations in giving "Unification" moonlight cruises. The club will give a cruise on the S. S. Bear Mountain on Sunday, June 12, inviting servicemen of the District area, as well as servicemen from Fort Meade, and Quantico.

Fine, Lasting Wall Coverings Are Heirlooms of the Future

By Lucia Brown

Wall coverings that can become heirlooms of the future—admired in their antique beauty by your children's children—were introduced here yesterday.

Made of fabric with six coats of paint baked on, they come in designs of rare distinction and exquisite coloring and are applied to walls in the same manner as ordinary wallpaper.

Joseph B. Platt, industrial and interior designer, is responsible for the lovely patterns and coloring of the new coverings. As seen yesterday at the Union Wallpaper Co., they interpret on canvas 48 inches wide a number of highly varied ideas.

There's Moyen Age, for instance, a leafy fernlike fantasy that is an all-over design. In contrast to this are patterns in bold scale, such as jungle rhythm, Chinese floral and Chinese water gate, which repeat only one full design every 48 inches. Petite charm is found in some of the other patterns—fleurette, paisley and Chinese star, for example.

For the first time, according to its makers, striated effects and textures such as Bombay, which looks like the miniature designs seen on India cottons, are produced in smart monochromatic colors on fabric. Background interest is also stressed in the dyed oak pattern, a handsome wood grain that appears bleached and dyed in colors ranging from pastels to deep tones of green, red and blackish brown.

Parents and Parties

As children move into their 'teens, they are interested in being on their own. Whereas, earlier, it was perfectly acceptable for parents to be right in the center of any parties held at home, now, the youngsters would rather have them out of the picture.

Some young people have insisted that Mom and Pop plan to be away from home on the evening the party is being held. Even when one feels that children can be trusted, this scheme is questionable. Situations may arise in which a little adult counsel is important. Excessive rough-housing, for instance, is very difficult for junior hosts and hostesses to handle alone.

A suitable compromise seems to be one in which parents are on hand along with their youngsters to greet the arriving guests. After this has been done, they gracefully retire to another part of the house where they can be "on call" if needed. Sometimes, too, a little help with refreshments is most welcome.

The main point is that youngsters be permitted to be largely on their own but that there are experienced hands in the background should things occur that are just a little too much for the young people to handle themselves.

About Various Types of Rugs

I am buying rugs for my new home and have had recommended to me a type of rug called "Orora" made by Gulbenkian. Do you know of this type rug? Is it an American Oriental, just an Oriental type, or what type rug is it? Also, guide me as to the merit of this type rug.
W. H.

This rug is a machine made American Oriental and is considered a good wearing rug made by a reliable firm. In discussing the subject with rug buyers in several stores, I was not able to find one which had this rug in stock, but the rug buyer in a furniture store on 7th st. has said that he knows the rug's characteristics and would be glad to give you any additional information you wish. He is also able to order the rug for you. You can reach him by calling Sterling 5151.

I have a limed-oak dining room table which I had kept a plastic table cover on. The plastic covering had a white felt like finish on the bottom. After hot dishes were placed on it, white fuzzy imprints were left on the table. We have tried washing with mild soap and water, but the imprints still seem to stick. We would appreciate it very much if you would help us on this matter. W. F. T.

Make a paste of oil and powdered pumice or rotten stone. With a soft cloth, rub it onto the stained areas, taking care to use a light pressure and rub with the grain. This is an extremely mild abrasive and should remove the fuzz nicely. When clean, wipe the entire top with clear oil on a clean soft cloth. Finish by giving the table top a good application of wax, vigorously rubbed. If this treatment does not remove the stain, the heat has penetrated the finish and complete refinishing the table top will be necessary to remove the blemishes.

My sink board is covered with linoleum. I would like to paint it and process it to make it washable. Since it is not my property, I do not care to invest too much money. W. H.

Before painting, wash the linoleum, dry thoroughly and go over the entire surface with turpentine or varsol to completely remove all wax or grease. Dry thoroughly. Now, apply a coat of high grade flat paint and when thoroughly dry follow it with a coat of high grade quick drying enamel. When the enamel is thoroughly dry, apply a well-rubbed coat of paste wax to protect it against water. Taking care to always wipe the painted surface dry after there has been water on it and keeping it covered with wax will prolong the wear of the surface.

Can you tell me where silk stockings can be bought in Washington? E. H. W.

Of the three large Washington department stores I called, all carry silk hosiery in their hosiery departments.

Dreams Come True For McGregor Twins

On May 21 there appeared in this space the story of Thomas and Rob Roy McGregor of 3732 Holmes lane, Alexandria, Va.

The twins had gone through school together, and taken examinations for West Point together. Only 10 appointments were available. Rob Roy had just squeezed under the wire to get the tenth one; Thomas had just missed out.

The twins were pretty glum about the prospect of being separated. But today they're walking on air.

Senator Sheridan Downey of California has given Thomas a West Point appointment—and now the twins can go on working in double harness, in the service of their country.

So many dreams never quite come true in this cruel, cruel world of ours that it's nice to tell the other kind of story once in a while.

SOUND ADVICE

The suggestion that my picture appear in this space gets an emphatic veto from Marjorie Adams of 101 Fairhaven ave., Alexandria, Va. Marjorie writes:

"When I was a little girl, a mystery man named Johnson came to our town. He never appeared anywhere without a large bandage on his little finger, and as time passed, he became a favorite topic of conversation.

"It was my own private opinion that he had five tiny toes growing out of the top of his little finger. Others in our town held to similarly intriguing views.

"Then one day Johnson appeared without the bandage, and we saw that his little finger was just an ordinary little finger.

"There wasn't any more mystery to Johnson, so we forgot about him and began looking for something else to talk about.

"So profit by the example of Johnson, and don't spoil the mystery by publishing your picture."

MISCELLANY

Eight youngsters from the 6300 block of Georgia st., Chevy Chase, Md., presented an opus titled "The Backyard Circus" last Saturday, and turned over the entire proceeds ($18.87) to the All Saints Church building fund. The circus stars and their ages: Larry Elgin, 8; Carol Layton, 9; Larry Nielson, 9; Nancy Mae Nielson, 12; Nancy Childress, 12; Claire Wolford, 12; Evelyn Elgin, 12; and Cathy Butler, 13 . . . A recent mention here of Carl H. Claudy, jr., brings back memories of the old Washington College of Music at 17th and Pennsylvania ave. nw. to Mrs. Marion N. Huff of 205 1st st. ne., who studied piano with Mr. Carter there. She wonders if he's the same Carl Claudy who took violin lessons then . . . Did you know that Helen Hamer of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw. is a WAG? . . . In typical Washington fashion, members of the Wayfarers Actors Group of All Souls Unitarian Church are known by the group's telescoped initials—all of which leads deftly into a commercial: The WAGS will present three 1-act plays at Pierce Hall Tuesday night (8 p. m., 75 cents) . . . M. O. Coleman of 520 7th st. se. notes that our morning contemporary recently published an edition in which the various pages bore varying dates . . . Mrs. William S. Baker of 60 Randolph pl. nw. loves to tell the story of how she learned traffic safety from her daughter, Wilhelmina. When Wilhelmina was only 5, Mrs. Baker took her by the hand and started to cross the street with her one day. But Mama was preoccupied with other thoughts, and hadn't stopped to wait for oncoming traffic. So Wilhelmina saved the day with: "Mommy, you're old enough to know how to cross streets. At your age, you should know that nobody can cross the street without looking both ways, except a bird."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two adorable, playful 6-week-old kittens, part-Persian." (Woodley 6012.)

"Young, pretty, gentle, obedient, completely housebroken female cat. Will deliver." (Hillside 5059.)

"Four kittens; three striped, one black and gray." (Otis 7763 from 4 to 6 p. m.)

WRONG BIRD LAYS EGG

Ernest McIver of 3109 Circle Hill rd., Alexandria, Va., says that all the humor at the National Celebrities Golf Tournament wasn't furnished by the contestants.

Mac overheard two ladies in the gallery talking about Arthur Godfrey. More specifically, they were talking about his now-famous story of the two geese who got into the hotel elevator—the story in which one of the geese exclaims: "Oops! I think I've been peopled."

One of the ladies in the gallery confessed that she had told that joke several times, but nobody laughed.

She couldn't figure out why, until she discovered that she'd been telling it about two eagles.

Liberals Try to Reclaim Douglas

By Drew Pearson

Liberal Democrats are doing some frantic missionary work on Illinois' strong-willed Senator Paul Douglas to steer him away from his right-wing drift.

Douglas

When Douglas ran for the Senate last fall the charge of pink and left-wing radical was constantly hurled at him by the Chicago Tribune. Friends of Douglas knew this was anything but true. But they did not know that once elected to the Senate he would veer so sharply to the right. Now some of the Senators who were elected in the same senatorial turnover last November fear their colleague is actually edging over to the Republicans.

What really worries the Democrats is that Douglas has been conferring privately with Republicans on the Taft-Hartley law. He also favors more compromises than the Administration approves, won't accept a flat 75-cent minimum wage, and is even more vigorous than Republicans in advocating economy.

One liberal Senator, listening to Douglas preach economy on the Senate floor, shook his head sadly.

"Douglas came into Congress as a great liberal," the Senator flung over his shoulder, "but he'll end up as a great conservative."

Other liberal Senators who rode the Democratic tide into the Senate with Douglas last November—such as Humphrey of Minnesota, Anderson of New Mexico, Kefauver of Tennessee — have tried backing Douglas into a corner and giving him a friendly pep talk.

But one Senator complained: "It's no use. He just gets his back up and bristles."

Another liberal colleague tried to explain Douglas' behavior: "He's just knocking a few balls out into right field to prove that he's not a radical and a Communist."

Douglas Is Amused

Douglas, himself, chuckled the other day at his colleagues' concern.

"Liberals sniff each other just as dogs do," he twinkled. "Don't worry. I'm still a liberal."

Then with a grave frown, he added: "There's a danger of liberals and conservatives becoming stereotyped."

Explaining his stand on economy, Douglas declared: "I believe in spending less, but I believe in spending it humanely. Some want to economize by eliminating social welfare. I want to economize on other things to make more money available for social welfare."

Instead of the flat 75-cent minimum wage called for by President Truman, Douglas wants a 75-cent minimum wage with an escalator clause, permitting it to go up or down depending upon business conditions.

Some of Douglas' worst critics are Government economists. Though Douglas was an economics professor at the University of Chicago, Government experts contend his economics aren't sound.

In reply, Douglas snorts: "It's guilt by association in reverse."

Note—Douglas has proved his ability as both a man of letters and a man of action. Though an over-age professor, he enlisted in the Marines as a private in the last war, worked up to the rank of lieutenant colonel. Twice wounded in action, he was awarded the Bronze Star for heroism.

Housing Hullabaloo

Bickering over the public housing bill was so heated in the House Rules Committee the other day that New York's stately GOP Congressman Jim Wadsworth grabbed his hat and threatened to walk out.

Fireworks started when Representative Church (R., Ill.) charged that the people chiefly benefiting from the housing bill were "too lazy" to look for homes.

This brought a hearty "amen" from another Republican, Representative Nicholson of Massachusetts.

"The poor," he said, "we will always have with us. They had them in Jesus' time, before and since that time." He added that he opposed the "handout" philosophy of the housing bill.

"I'd like to invite these gentlemen to come to my district, where they would see thousands of homeless people who are not poor and not lazy," angrily broke in Indiana's two-fisted Ray Madden, another Democrat.

"Workers in the mills in Gary and other plants are forced to live in trailer camps, where there are as many as 700 families bunched together. These people are crying for homes of their own and they could afford to pay seven or eight thousand dollars. But they can't afford to pay the $20,000 and $30,000 being charged for homes by the big real estate boys."

Merry-Go-Round

Mrs. Eugenie Anderson of Red Wing will be the next American Ambassador to Denmark. She's the Democratic National Committeewoman from Minnesota . . . Henry Kaiser, jr., has announced that Gary Cooper, who played Lou Gehrig in the movies, has joined the Lou Gehrig Foundation to combat the dread disease, multiple sclerosis. Young Kaiser has fought a valiant battle to recover from this same disease, which killed Lou Gehrig. FBI men are investigating the sale of a large section of Brooklyn waterfront to the Coast Guard by the late Joseph P. Day, a big New York real estate operator. The land, known as Manhattan Beach, was sold to the Government during the war. However, after the deal—which netted Day $5,918,000—the Government found out that part of the "land" it bought was under water. Another part belonged to the State of New York.
